BLAST-ACHESON ATTACK PLOTTED BY G. O. P.

CZECHS SAY THEY WERE SHANGHAIED TO WEST GERMANY

58 Chose To Return To Czechoslovakia; 26 Elected To Stay

MYSTERY SURROUNDS PLANE LANDING AT ERDING

By DONALD DOANE

ERDING, Germany, March 25.—(AP)— Twenty-six Czechs elected tonight to stay in Germany as fugitives from communism, thereby partly unraveling the mystery of the dramatic, unheralded landing of three Czechoslovak planes loaded with 85 persons at this U. S. Air Force base yesterday.

Fifty-eight Czechs who chose to return to Czechoslovakia, among them the president of the Czech air line, said they were shanghaied in flight by seven of the 12 crewmen. They said one of the planes was captured at gun-point.

Miss Katherine Kosmak of New York City, librarian at the U. S. Information Service Library in Prague and the 85th occupant, returned to Czechoslovakia today.

She said most of her fellow passengers "seemed terribly surprised" when they landed here among U. S. Air Force men, instead of Prague, their destination.

The fleeing Czechs refused to disclose the inside story of how they arranged to get control of the three DC-3 type liners leaving from the widely separated airports of Brno, Bratislava and Ostrava and land them minutes apart in the middle of this surprised base.

MEDICAL SOCIETY BACKS BOND ISSUE

City Board Of Health Also Gives Endorsement To Project

The urgent need for adequate sewerage facilities, which will be provided if the proposed bond issue is approved by Monroe voters on April 4, was stressed yesterday by two groups who should know best—the Ouachita Parish Medical Society and the City Board of Health.

The parish Medical Society has passed a resolution "heartily endorsing" the construction of sanitary sewerage. The health board pointed out that epidemics of various diseases could be caused by open sewerage, and urged that the "entire city be adequately sewered."

The following letters were addressed to Mayor John Coon and Commissioners Frank X. Cline and J. P. Simmons by the two groups: "Gentlemen:

"At our monthly meeting held March 2, 1950, we passed the resolution quoted herein without a dissenting vote. We sincerely wish the city every success in this much needed public improvement.

"RESOLUTION

"BE IT RESOLVED by the Ouachita Parish Medical Society in legal meeting that the Society heartily endorses the construction of sanitary sewerage for the entire City of Monroe. Our city has been in jeopardy from a health standpoint for many years due to the lack of this much needed facility. Open sewerage is a constant menace to the welfare and health of the people of Monroe and we cannot urge too

'HEAT'S ON' ON BOURBON STREET

N. O. Police Order French Quarter Clean-up After Dunn Death

NEW ORLEANS, March 25.—(AP)—The heat was on the sometimes high, often low, life of the old French quarter today with its B-Girls, Jazz bands and jaded G-Stringers.

While he awaited a coroner's report on the death Jan. 1 of wealthy, Nashville, Tenn., Contractor Frank Dunn, Jr., Police Supt. Joseph Scheuering shook up his police force and ordered a cleanup.

The move came shortly after Detective Chief Harry Daniels said that if the coroner found Dunn died of "knockout drops" — chloral hydrate — he would charge two women with murder.

Dunn, a former Vanderbilt University doothall star, died in a night club while here for the Sugar Bowl game and Coroner C. Grenes Cole attributed his death to a heart ailment.

The explanation left friends suspicious and last week the body was exhumed in Nashville at the request of Frank Manning, chief investigator for Louisiana's revenue department.

Manning said tests by chemists

SEARCH FAILS TO TURN UP MISSING COMMITTEE FILES

Lost Data—Containing Lawmakers' Letters—Called 'Political Dynamite'

PHOTOGRAPHIC COPIES MIGHT BE AVAILABLE

WASHINGTON, March 25.—(AP)—House members failed today to locate a missing file — described as "political dynamite" — containing correspondence between lawmakers and an organization now tagged subversive.

The 'dynamite" label was pinned on the papers by Pittsburgh Attorney Harry A. Sherman while talking to reporters shortly after he testified before the house un-American activities committee.

Sherman, an official of Americans Battling Communism Inc., told the house group he may be able to find a photographic copy.

While Sherman testified that the papers have "little probative value" in the committee's investigation of communism, Rep. Kearney (R.-N. Y.) said afterwards:

"If any copies are around we're going to do our damnedest to learn if there is anything relevant in them."

The committee held an unusual Saturday session to discuss the mystery of the papers. Loss of the documents was reported to the committee yesterday by Matthew Cvetic, for seven years an FBI undercover agent in Pittsburgh Communist circles.

After a preliminary two-hour secret huddle, the committee called back Cvetic and Sherman.

Both men testified that Cvetic personally carried the papers into the committee room February 18 for preliminary questioning on Communist activities in western Pennsylvania.

They were last seen, Cvetic testified, with his brief case on a chair in the committee room when he went to lunch.

Sherman identified the papers as a "voluminous," file of correspondence between members of Congress and the American Slav congress.

Elephants Stampede, Hurt Trainer

POMONA, Calif., March 25.—(AP)—Two circus elephants, frightened by the whistles and bells of two passing trains, broke loose and rampaged through this orange belt town, seriously injuring one attendant before they were captured.

Police Sgt. Ed Stevens said the huge animals, both females, were being led back to a circus train last night after a performance of the Clyde Beatty Circus when they were panicked by the noise of trains on a nearby track and tore loose from their handlers.

Leroy Spellman, 29-year-old attendant, was injured after he chased one and tried to capture it in a vacant lot. Police said the animal picked Spellman up with its trunk, dashed him to the ground, kicked him and attempted

7 Killed In Mid-Air Airplane Explosion

Converted B-25 Hurtles To Earth Bringing Death To All Aboard; Second Major Crash In Arizona In Three Days

PHOENIX, Ariz., March 25.—(AP)—A converted B-25 blew up in the air near here today and plunged seven employes of North American Aviation Co., Los Angeles, to their deaths.

The big ship broke into pieces which scattered over a half-mile area. The main part of the plane plowed a five-foot deep trench in a field.

This was the second major plane crash in Arizona in three days. An Air Force B-50 exploded in flight and fell on the desert near Gila Bend Thursday, killing 12 crewmen. Two occupants parachuted to safety.

North American's B-25 was bound from Washington, D. C., to Los Angeles it had taken off at El Paso today. North American said its employes were taking the craft to various Air Force bases for demonstrations.

The plane was flying through drizzling rain when it exploded over state highway 87 about three miles from Chandler, southeast of Phoenix. The crash occurred about 11:45 a.m.

Allen Roland, a ranch worker ditch near the highway. The tail assembly dropped at the roadside. The bodies of the victims were crushed in the fuselage. There was no fire.

Truman Says Cut In Aid Might Bring War

KEY WEST, Fla., March 25.—(AP)—President Truman warned the congressional economy block today that sharp cuts in foreign aid spending might precipitate a third world war.

"We will save nothing if we ignore the needs of other nations now only to find that the result is World War Three, he declared.

Vast Expense Of Absolute Atom Security Explained

WASHINGTON, March 27. — (AP) — Congress was told today that "if the United States tried to achieve absolute security against atomic attack it would have to spend more than $300 billion and become a garrison state."

The analysis of civilian defense against a-bombs was given the senate-house atomic committee by Paul J. Larsen, director of the office of civilian mobilization in the national security resources board.

Larsen said in testimony given in closed session March 23 and made public by the committee today that perfect security against atomic attack "obviously is not possible."

"Nor is an attempt to achieve absolute security desirable under present conditions unless we are willing to become a garrison state," he said.

He said that, looking at the problem from a security standpoint alone, the solution might appear to be compulsory dispersion of people and of industry, but he added:

"The dollars and cents cost of decentralizing some 200 cities in the United States having populations of 50,000 or more would probably be in the neighborhood of $300,000,000,00.

"The social and political costs of such decentralization might put an end to democracy as we knew it. To accomplish such a program of compulsory dispersion we would have to be willing to become a garrison state."

He added that "if too much of our national effort is expended for military and civil defense purposes the very liberties we are trying to make secure will themselves be endangered."

Conceding that this country is not ready for an atomic attack, Larsen said that civilian defense planning must be done at the community level, with the federal government standing ready to aid in case of an onslaught.

William A. Gill, coordinator of the N. S. R. B.'s civil defense planning, disclosed that arrangements are underway to link this coun-

U. S. Peace Planners Failed To Seriously Consider Soviet Split

Long Secret Documents Made Public; 'Postwar Foreign Policy Preparation' Published In Detail By State Department

By Edward E. Bomar

WASHINGTON, March 25.—(AP)—Long secret documents showed today that top-level U. S. planners spent six years getting ready for the peace without seriously considering the possibility of a postwar split between Soviet Russia and the West.

The state department published today a detailed report of advance planning which started in 1939. The report was compiled at the direction of President Truman, who was supplied with a copy of it before leaving on his current vacation trip to Key West.

The 726-page volume on "postwar foreign policy preparation" includes six preliminary drafts for a United Nations charter and some two score other documents. Virtually all were based on the assumption that the Western Powers and Russia after their victory over the Axis would be able to get together on the settlement of world problems.

Reporters were told by Harley A. Notter, state department official who wrote the narrative and had an active part in the planning, that "thought was given" during World War II to the possibility Russia might not cooperate. He said papers were prepared on the subject but "only at the working level" and never reached the stage of actual decision. This means they got nowhere on the upper levels.

One published document was a 1943 report of an internal state department planning committee which advised that in case of big power friction Germany would hold a balance of power and Russia "would be in a position to use the Communists to strengthen Germany," to foment disorders and advance Soviet aims.

The report had its origin in a desire Mr. Truman expressed April 19, 1946 for a record of the advance preparation made under the direction of the state department. The first recorded step was the

FRAMES QUESTION FOR EISENHOWER

Senator Will Ask If Nation's Air Power Considered Adequate

WASHINGTON, March 25.—(AP)—Senator Robertson (D.-Va.) said today he will ask General Dwight D. Eisenhower whether he feels the nation has adequate air power when the wartime allied commander testifies in the senate this week.

Eisenhower, now president of Columbia University, has accepted an invitation to appear. Probably Wednesday, for questioning by the senate appropriations subcommittee which is considering funds for the armed services.

Robertson and other senators on the group said they are puzzled by the speech last Thursday in which Eisenhower indicated a belief that the United States has disarmed beyond reasonable safety.

Secretary of Defense Johnson had reported earlier that Eisenhower had approved the defense budget now before Congress. It calls for spending just over $13,000,000,000 cash in the fiscal year beginning July 1, plus another $1,000,000,000 in contract authority.

Robertson said it is his guess that Eisenhower is concerned about air power.

Bridges Says 'Parade Will Start This Week'

Foreign Policy Critics Disclose Plans To 'Go After' Secretary State As M'Carthy's Prize Charge Is Nearing Showdown

WASHINGTON, March 25.—(AP)—A number of senate Republicans plan to "go after" Secretary of State Acheson in a new series of attacks.

Senator Bridges (R.-N.H.) told reporters today that "a whole group of Republicans" will be at work on the blast-Acheson project for the next few weeks—"and the parade will start next week."

The New Hampshire Republican is expected to lead off with a senate speech attacking the man whose department and Far East policies have come under increasing G.O.P. fire.

The move was disclosed as a showdown appeared near in the hunt for Communists and spies in the state department set off by Senator McCarthy(R.-Wis.)

McCarthy's prize case — his charge that Russia's main spy in this country is connected with the state department — was before the senate investigating committee together with confidential FBI data about the man, whose identity has not been made public.

Exactly when the data shows was not announced. Whether it supports McCarthy's charge may be known Monday when FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover appears before the committee at a public hearing, accompanied by Attorney General J. Howard McGrath.

The Washington Post said the FBI files do not back up McCarthy's accusation against the individual — nor come close to it. Some Democratic senators privately expressed the same view.

McCarthy was said to feel that the kind of analysis given four members of the committee by the FBI is not adequate. He has contended that proof of his case is in the FBI files.

Administration leaders in the senate apparently had made no plans yet to counter the new Republican campaign against Acheson. McCarthy and Senator Wherry (R.-Neb.) led off this week with

YOUNG GIRL DIES OF SEVERE BURNS

Ft. Necessity Minister's Home Destroyed In Fatal Explosion

WINNSBORO, La., March 25.—(Special) — Evon Campbell, 16-year-old daughter of a Fort Necessity minister who was critically burned early Friday morning, died at 1:25 a. m. today at the Winnsboro Sanitarium.

Miss Campbell, whose condition was termed as "very critical" Friday afternoon by the attending physician, was burned completely over her body in an explosion set off when she poured tractor fuel on hot coals in a stove.

Her father, the Rev. John S. Campbell, a Holiness preacher, said he had to carry his daughter two miles on his tractor and another mile in a rowboat before reaching the Ft. Necessity-Wisner highway and an awaiting ambulance. The fire destroyed all the family belongings and their small farm home which has been isolated by backwater from Beouf river for the past month.

Funeral services for the girl will be conducted at the Holly Grove Church near Wisner at 10:30 a. m. Sunday. The Rev. Jack Jones and the Rev. D. Mills will officiate at

Odd Casket Unearthed

OAK GROVE, La., March 25.—(Special)—More than 1,500 adults and children journeyed today to view the strange sight of an aged iron coffin accidentally removed from a hillside while a hauling contractor was at work near here.

It was on display at the residence of Jewel Head.

The casket was said to be the old-type which was popular many years ago. It is made of iron, having approximately 30 bolts around the edges, and a window in the top to allow view of the remains.

The hauling contractor, Henry Tyson, said he was trying to uproot a tree trunk on the side of a hill and the casket was uprooted instead.

There was no positive identification on the remains. However, persons inspecting parts of the mummy-shaped coffin, said that three uniform buttons were found which led to belief that the remains were those of an army officer or a sea-captain. Also found were three pearl shirt buttons and a finger ring with a Masonic emblem.

Witnesses said that in the lower jaw only two teeth had not been filled with gold.

It was said that an official from L. S. U. would be called in to help identify some of the material and perhaps the identity of the person.

PARISH TO VOTE ON BOND ISSUE

Property Owners Outside Of Monroe To Pass On $5,200,000 Project

Ouachita parish property owners, outside of Monroe, will go to the polls Tuesday to cast their ballots for or against the issuing of bonds to the amount of $5,200,000, with which to expand and revamp the parish schools here.

Polls will open at 7 a.m. and close at 6 p.m. All parish white schools will be closed for the day and many of the teachers will serve as officials at the polls.

So far as now in evidence there is no organized opposition to the carrying of the election as a vital need, far greatly expanded parish schools in apparent to all who are well informed.

In order to be carried, the election will require two majorities, that of the number of people casting their ballots and a majority of the property value that is represented.

The important thing in the minds of those who desire to see the issue carried, is to get the people out to vote. All persons in the parish outside of the city of Monroe, are urged to cast their ballots as this election is regarded as one of the most important of any that has been held here for many years, been held here for many years, perhaps that has ever been held.

FRANK BUCK IS DEAD

World Loses Genial Traveler

By MARK BARRON

NEW YORK, March 25.—(AP)—Frank Buck, the "bring 'em back alive" wild animal man who died in a Houston, Texas hospital today, was a foot-loose Texan, who found the wide spaces of his own lone star state too confining.

He started his rambles in early youth to the out-of-way corners of the world.

He was an explorer, a producer of motion pictures, an author, and a man who brought wild animals and snakes back to the United States for show purposes and for studies by scientists. He was as well known in the Museum of Natural History as he was in Hollywood movie studios or in New York publishing houses.

Mrs. Osa Johnson, widow of explorer Martin Johnson, said today that Buck "certainly faced the utmost in dangers in the jungle world" and added that she was shocked and saddened by his death.

"I first met him in 1936 in the Hotel Rassles in Singapore," she said, "he was with the sultan of Johore at the time and everyone in the Orient knew him. He had a gift of knowing people quickly, making friends."

Another of Buck's close friends is Raymond C. Schindler, noted private detective.

"Frank was a great lover of music," Schindler said. "When he returned from one of his explorations into the jungles he always headed for the opera the moment he got into New York. About the only time I ever went to the opera was when Frank would come back to New York and force me to go with him."

When Buck was in Hollywood working on one of his animal pictures, he always lived at the Schindler home. But, he rarely expressed any interest in the human trails that detective Schindler was pursuing. Buck was more interested in lions, tigers and elephants.

John Ringling North, head of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey circus, said in Tampa, Fla., today that the death of Buck is "a great personal loss to me and to circus people everywhere."

In 1938 the Ringling circus spectacle — the grand finale of each performance — was built around Buck and his group of wild animals. Buck was also associated with the circus before and after the 1938 personal appearances in getting wild animals for the big top major acts.

As a showman, Buck was an impresario who had all the tricks of Ringling Brothers with the ballyhoo of Flo Ziegfeld and Billy Rose combined. He could make a gor-

Don't Lose Your Vote

The confusion in locating proper polling places cost several hundred voters an opportunity to cast their ballots in last Tuesday's primary. That was particularly true in cases where voters waited until almost 7 o'clock, and then found their names were not on the lists at precincts where they had been voting for several years.

For one reason or another, voters' names were shifted from precincts other than those for which they registered. In one instance that we know of, a properly registered voter visited four precincts in the vicinity of his residence, and found that his name was not on any list of qualified voters. We are told that that occurred in many cases.

Four important issues will be voted upon within the next ten days. Next Tuesday property owners throughout the parish, outside the city of Monroe, will decide whether or not to approve a bond issue for expansion and improvement of the Ouachita parish school system. On April 4, a parish-wide vote will be held in a runoff primary to select a state representative, Monroe citizens will vote on a bond issue to provide sewerage for the entire city and West Monroe will select five aldermen.

The difficulties experienced in last Tuesday's primary brings to mind the following suggestions: Check with the registrar of voters to learn exactly where you should vote, vote early, and, most important of all, take your registration certificate with you when you go to your voting precinct.

No citizen who is properly registered should be deprived of his vote. The importance of the issues confronting our people in the forthcoming elections makes it imperative that all of us are given the privilege of expressing our preference through the ballot box.

Millions Of Human Lives Saved

In New York, California, the District of Columbia and other places lawmakers are facing this issue: Should dogs be used for medical research?

The issue isn't new. It keeps bobbing up in states and cities all over America. But the odd thing is it is being kept alive by a very small but loud minority. A public opinion poll showed 85 per cent of United States people believe dogs should be available to medical science.

The objectors protest that dogs subjected to medical experiments are "cruelly" treated. They decry the fact that some of these animals are "cut up" in surgical tests. And they argue that dogs aren't necessary to research.

What are the facts?

Millions of lives have been saved as result of research performed on dogs and other animals. Diseases which once were mass killers—smallpox, diphtheria, lobar pneumonia, typhoid, syphilis and diabetes—today are largely under control because of animal experiment.

All serums, anti-toxins and vaccines were first worked out on animals. The discoverer of valuable streptomycin says its worth could not have been determined without tests on dogs. The United States Food and Drug Administration requires that all new drugs be thoroughly tried on animals before being applied to humans.

The search for cures for cancer, high blood pressure, polio and other dread diseases is absolutely dependent upon use of test animals. Dogs are particularly useful in cancer studies, for their physical and chemical make-up is in many ways close to that of humans.

Dogs employed in research are not pets but unwanted animals marked for death in public pounds. When experimenters get them, some die in the course of tests. But other dogs live on for a long time. All are given good care. Anesthetics are used whereever possible when surgery is called for, but naturally not every operation is painless.

It is estimated that medical research needs could be met if only about 1/25 of the unwanted dogs were turned over to schools and laboratories. Right now 29 of the nation's 78 medical institutions receive dogs and cats from community authorities. The other 49 have to patronize black markets to get the animals they need. Only two states, Wisconsin and Minnesota, have laws making unwanted dogs available for research.

At best the opponents of animal research may be described as sincere but misguided people. At worst they are irresponsible crackpots whose minds are cluttered with a wide assortment of phony notions about medical science. But whether sincere or not, all anti-vivisectionists are in fact the enemies of medical progress.

The only way to say it is that they are more concerned with saving dogs than they are with saving humans. Indeed, an eastern newspaper survey showed that four out of five anti-vivisectionists who were parents said they would not sacrifice a dog to save a child's life.

It's up to the overwhelming majority of Americans who wisely grasp the need for animal research to make sure that this strange but noisy minority does not have its way. Every medical school should be allowed the dogs it requires for vital studies. After all, humanity begins with human beings.

Did It In Spite Of Him

Back in the mid-1940's Henry Wallace was up for confirmation in the senate as secretary of commerce. Quite a few people were against him and the general debate was hot.

Wallace had written a book entitled "Sixty Million Jobs." Therefore many of his supporters took the view that if you were against Henry, you were against 60,000,000 jobs for the American people. A vote against Wallace was a vote for unemployment—so went this curious argument.

Well, Henry got the job but he didn't keep it long. Despite his apparent deep concern for full employment, there were other things that interested him more. He projected himself onto the global scene, leaving mere economic matters to lesser lights.

And now—today—we look back suddenly and realize that total employment in the United States averaged 60,100,000 jobs for the year 1949. Furthermore, the best estimates indicate the 1950 average will be somewhere around 61,200,000.

The amazing thing about this is that we managed to do it without any help at all from good old Henry.

BASCOM N. TIMMONS

There's some question whether the Voice of America or its critics, especially those in congress are best qualified to explain what goes on "inside USA" if foreign listeners to our government sponsored programs are to have accurate information.

Since the critics delight in picking flaws in the broadcasts being sent to foreign countries and in the personnel which the state department selects to prepare the scripts and deliver the broadcasts, it is not surprising that the qualifications of Ernst Hoffmeister, German born news commentator currently handling programs beamed to Germany, were questioned.

Hoffmeister, it developed in a house quiz on state department functions, had said in a broadcast just before the German elections:

"The so called principle of a completely free private enterprise, allegedly in vogue in the United States and a model to the world, does not exist. . . . Take the adjustment of prices, rents for housing railroad rates, minimum wages of workers, minimum returns to the farmer; the state, the government is always obliged to intervene with a regulating hand where private initiative is unable to harmonize with the interests of the population. That is generally recognized".

Representatives John J. Rooney (Dem., N. Y.) and Karl Stefan (Rep., Neb.) were sharply critical of the broadcast said it misrepresented our free enterprise economy. Directors of the Voice programs apologized for some of the wording, particularly the sentence beginning "the state, the government, is always obliged to intervene", but added that "at that time the strongest nationalistic elements in Germany were arguing for . . . no restrictions and no control and in doing so they portrayed that as being a picture of the United States". Most members of congress seem to have recognized Hoffmeister's description of the U. S. under present conditions without acknowledging that the government has any such obligations.

Carleton Skinner, who jumped from Chief of the interior department's public relations to become the first civilian governor of Guam at the age of 36, flew here from his new assignment to tell a house committee about the headaches and hopes of his new job, but he didn't tell them about the tensest day he has had since he went to Guam.

The "boy governor" whose knowledge of navigation put him in the U. S. Coast Guard throughout the last war, told some of his friends about the stop made on Guam by President Quirino of the Philippines, en route to the U. S. for an operation.

There are 13,000 contract laborers from the Philippines of Guam, he explained, and one of them had been screened as to their background or political affiliations.

"The state department just explained that under the circumstances, an attempt to assassinate Quirino might very well be made, then left it to me," he said. And they didn't tell me till the last minute. We had every armed man on the island on guard from the moment Quirino arrived until he left, about six hours. "The biggest problem was to watch the Filipinos, all of whom wanted to cheer their president. But the bitter political feuds going on in the islands, we had to watch all 13,000 —and nothing happened. But I would prefer setting up security coverage for President Truman any time".

U. S. Senate Charles W. Tobey of New Hampshire, regarded by his colleagues as one of the two "typical" Yankees in the senate, (George D. Aiken of Vermont is the other) gathers his neighbors from miles around for hymn songfests when he is home, likes to tell stories about preachers (preferably southern preachers) when in Washington.

Interrupting a heated senate debate on the natural gas bill Tobey told his story, which was apropos of nothing in particular.

"A southern preacher had been looking with longing eyes for a new parish. He heard of one that was vacant about 70 miles away and hitched up his mules and drove over to apply for the job.

"When he returned, several days later his wife asked:

"'How did you make out? Did you get the church?'

"The Reverend replied that he had not.

"'Didn't you preach well enough?'

"'I preached so well I welled them. The tears ran down their faces.'

"'Then why didn't you get the job?'

"'Well, the last night I was there they had the annual church supper. I sat at the head of the table and the deacon who sat next to me said, 'Brother, will you have some corn?', and I passed my glass instead of my plate. So, I lost that church' ".

PITCHING HORSESHOES

MIND OVER MENU

Sauerbraten, I'd like to explain for the benefit of the gastronomically unhep, is the East Side equivalent of ambrosia, and when served properly this meat dish is usually swimming in a golden brown gravy, flanked by potato pancakes — those heavenly derivatives of the lowly spud.

Well, the other Thursday, tortured by a craving for this delicacy, I loaded my pockets with bicarbonate and trekked down to a certain restaurant on the East Side which, with the possible exception of Luchow's, serves the only sauerbraten in New York worth a second drool.

The dinner rush was over by the time I arrived, and a waiter with a face like rained - on leather plopped a bottle of seltzer in front of me, an assortment of breads and four pieces of pig-iron cutlery wrapped in a napkin. Then, without waiting for me to order, he disappeared into the kitchen. Ten minutes later he returned and set a steaming platter of sauerbraten in front of me.

I was about to dig in when it occurred to me that I hadn't ordered — or had I? Could it be that, obsessed by my craving, I had muttered "sauerbraten" while he was setting the table? Had I doodled the word on the cloth?

When the waiter brought the coffee, I said, "How did you know what I wanted?"

"I been workin' here twenty-five years."

"But how could you tell?"

"By looking at you."

"I didn't think it showed," I said.

"Okay, now you know. You don't want no dessert so here's your check."

The incident bothered me all week, and so last night I decided to give the telepathic waiter another try. As per usual, I had a yen for sauerbraten, but to confuse him I concentrated on roast duck.

This time, however, instead of hot-footing it to the kitchen, the tray-toter gave me the slow up-and-down. "Make up please the decision," he said. "Roast duck no or sauerbraten yes?"

"Sauerbraten yes," I said meekly.

"Let me in on the secret," I said when the meal was over. "How do you do it?"

"Hard to put a finger on it precise," he said. "Mainly, it's a lot of little small things. When you're in the business long enough, comes a time you know what it means when a customer's nose shivers or, say, he drools a couple drops like he's thinking about something juicy. Or take when a vegetarian comes in, he looks kinda disinterested in food to begin with, and you get an idea by the way the corner of his mouth lifts whether he's thinking of sour cream."

"Don't you ever make mistakes and get in trouble?" I said.

"Mistakes I don't make, but trouble I once got into. Last year two of our customers got married - the lady a vegetarian and the man a steak-rare type. When they came in for a meal after the honeymoon, I naturally went to the kitchen and brought out blintzes with sour cream for the wife and a big muszhk steak for the husband. When the wife saw the steak, right away she began to yell.

"'You lied to me,' she said. 'I married you with the definite understanding no more meat.'

"'The waiter made some terrible kind mistake,' said her husband. 'I was thinking about blintzes and sour cream same like you.'

"'My mind musta been someplace elsewhere,' I excused myself to the couple. So I took back the muszhk steak while the husband's eyes followed like a hungry dog, and then I brought him on a plate a whole head cabbage, unstuffed, and told him, 'Enjoy.' "

His story finished, the waiter scooped up his tip and switched off the neon sign in the window. "Is time now I should have a little bite something myself," he said.

I studied his face and tried to figure out by the droop of his underlip what he was going to eat, but his face wasn't talking — at least to me. "What're you going to have?" I finally asked.

"I don't know," said the waiter. "I can't make up my mind."

New York Day By Day

NEW YORK — Sixty-three years ago George M. Cohan, nine years old, made his debut at a theater in Haverstraw, a town now boasting nearly 6,000 inhabitants, on the west bank of the Hudson, in Rockland county, near New City and Nyack. A plaque on the wall of the old theater, once a skating rink, commemorates the appearance of little George there, but the exact date has been lost. Even George did not remember it in his later years, when I knew him.

The Cohan family, very poor, lived in Haverstraw for a short time. The town claims two other boys who made good in the City. James Farley and Charles V. McAdam worked in the brickyard there. The town was about the same size then as now.

Artist Morgan Dennis, known for his remarkable sketches of dogs, doctors up his scenic postcards from Florida, where he spends as many of the icy days as possible, away from ice. Usually he sketches into the scene a dog or two, with a hazy outline of himself in some ludicrous situation. He's a good correspondent, too, but prefers postcards to letters.

I am still in the dark as to why the postoffice department does not issue a stamp in honor of Oscar Odd McIntyre. We have stamps commemorating the hen, the most obscure authors and scientists, and a new stamp is issued at the drop of a vote. But Odd McIntyre was the most widely read writer who ever lived. I will qualify that statement only to this extent: he was more widely read during his lifetime than any other writer during that person's lifetime. Shakespeare and Paul have been more widely read than Odd. But not during their lifetimes.

There is a stamp honoring Will Rogers. That is meet and fit. But O. O. M. had twice to ten times as many devoted followers, over a much longer period. He was a good American. What's the matter? Didn't Odd kiss the correct foot? He was not a foot-kisser, you know.

Dortha Barnhart, of Rossville, Ind., is a lady who loves to gossip. But always good gossip about good people. She sends me now a bit of gossip about a blind man, Stanley H. Church, Port Huron, Mich. She says he has not only made himself independent of his handicap, but has encouraged and helped many blind persons and many handicapped persons who are not blind. That's the kind of gossip I like to hear. Tell me some more, Dortha Barnhart.

Emmett Rountree, Houston, Texas, reminds me of an article of column I have been intending for a lon gtime to write. It is on the question, may we expect to meet our animal pets in the other world? That is a mighty serious question to many of us who love animals. I have talked to Doctors of Divinity and to a Doctor of Sacred Letters about this matter, and I am still seeking knowledge. If any reader has any ideas in the zone of animal immortality, I would be happy to hear from him. I do not think this is a closed doctrinal subject. I believed that the doctors are a little at sea regarding it. Their opinions, as to whether I may have my good old dog, Captain Kidd, in the Beautiful Grove which is called Paradise, seem to vary with their own interests in animals.

So far as my limited learning extends, there is nothing in the Christian or Jewish doctrine that says of heaven any more than that it is a state of perfect happiness.

Then, if I want my dog, I believe that I shall have him.

Here Captain Kidd! Come here!

OUR CHILDREN

"MY COUNTRY"

I hope it never goes out of fashion to cheer for and sing about My Country, accenting "My". The home means all there is of beauty and peace and joy to each of us, and while we live each in his separate place and feel at home, the greater home is the one that holds us all, our country.

Sometimes as one reads the papers and the magazines and listens to the radio, it seems that love of the country is passing out of fashion. We are accused of all sorts of things from imperialism to selfish agression and that by our own citizens. It is right that we feel free to criticise our government with a view to keeping it honest and keeping it free, holding it to the ideal of freedom within the law which our founders established, but it is also right to cheer for our country, express our love for it and our devotion to its standards.

We have a proud history, a wonderful story that has the power to thrill young hearts and inspire the youthful minds with a deep love for their land. We have heroes whose stories are enough to lift children out of their chairs cheering. We should recount those tales and make the most of what they imply in courage, foresight, intelligence and sacrifice.

The accent on the sacrifices that were made that we might live in freedom should be loud and prolonged. Our children and our youth are the most fortunate in the world. They have the best of homes, the best food, the best care the finest educational opportunities of any generation in all history. Children have no knowledge of the cost of these, nor of the benefaction they bestow until we point them out, which we must do lest they accept great gifts without an understanding or gratitude.

Unashamedly, I would put America first, always. It is first. I would teach the children the story of its founding, of its struggles, victories and defeats. I would tell the stories of George Washington and his armies. Of Benjamin Franklin and his tireless, patient work for the establishment of the nation, of Jefferson and his service to freedom. And always impress on the children the beauty and the glory and the power that is their country until their chests swell with pride and their hearts for the flag that represents her.

Surely we have defects, being human, but we have freedom, justice, a good life and a great good country and we should never lose sight of that fact and never cease to serve, defend and uphold her. Patriotism should not pass from among us and the schools must see that it burns brightly in the souls of the children, the American children, many of whom have known different lands and different ways. Teach them about these United States, that they may love their country as their homeland, the home of their souls.

An easy way to learn multiplication tables has been devised by Dr. Patri. If your child needs help in this problem, send for leaflet P-5, "Trouble with Number Tables." To obtain a copy, send 5 cents in coin and a stamped self-addressed envelope to him, c/o this paper, P.O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N.Y.

George E. Sokolsky:

THESE DAYS

RECAPITULATION

It is important for those who wish to think straight to get away from the headlines of the day and to consider the forces and movements that are rapidly changing our lives.

As one listens to the clack-clack on the radio or looks at the enormous headlines in the newspapers, the emphasis is on the unbelievable. Communists everywhere; a king upsetting Belgium; Great Britain in the hands of Socialists; the president sunning himself in Florida while his country is stunned by homosexuals and Communists in high places; a nation frittering away its wealth while it loses battle after battle in what is called a cold war, which is neither cold nor a war but a steamroller flattening out the world.

It would seem to be profligate and wasteful to worry about partisanship or about the careers of individuals in the face or our necessity to build a great strength to withstand the shock of the next few years — and we shall be very shocked as every nation is that has lost a war.

Let us recapitulate:

In 1939, Europe went to war because Hitler sought to build an empire based on the destruction of the freedoms of man. The world did not know that the Hitler-Stalin alliance included the Molotov-Ribbentrop pact for the division of Europe and Asia between Germany and Russia.

In 1941, the United States entered that war on two fronts; one in Asia; the other in Europe. The United States stated its war objectives in the form of the Atlantic Charter, which set forth high ideals of human freedom and national independence, for friend and foe, for countries large and small.

By 1943, we had deserted those principles. At the Teheran conference, arrangements were made which, for Europe, practically implemented the Molotov-Ribbentrop pact. By 1945, the Teheran principles were also applied to Asia.

The world was divided between the Russian and the Anglo-Saxon countries, at the River Elbe, with the 38th parallel as the dividing line in Asia.

The acceptance of this byzantine concept of human bondage by the United States and Great Britain, a departure from the traditions of the race since Magna Charta, at the Potsdam conference after the war, encouraged the Russians to believe that the western nations had shot their bolt and were hereafter to be regarded as decadent.

We now need to move from what we know to what we may presume; namely, that the Russians analyzed our weaknesses from their own experience with us. They established in each western country an effective Communist party whose members despised their own country and willingly served Russia. They found such persons not only among the proletariat, but in the upper intellectual circles, who were among old families of distinction, among the wealthy and within the government. This has

MONEY IS NOT WEALTH

To a great many people the statement that money is not wealth would seem both trite and obvious. These individuals would know that if money were wealth, the government could quickly make everybody rich by starting the printing presses and furnishing everyone with an ample supply.

It is undoubtedly true, however, that the great majority of the people do not recognize the statement that money is wealth as a fallacy. Otherwise, the governments in many countries could not hoodwink the people with their financial legerdemain.

The Socialist government of Great Britain, for instance, could not arbitrarily set the value of the pound in terms of dollars and make the British people believe it is worth that amount. It does not make a pound worth $2.80 just by saying it is worth $2.80. There was no more difference in the actual value of the pound the day before it was devalued than the day it was devalued. Or the day after it was devalued. Since devaluation, the pound has sold as low as $2.25 on the open money market. And if you want to find real value, that is the place to look for it—there is neither sentiment nor arbitrary value in the free market.

Of course, what happened was that Great Britain had held the pound at a value of $4.03 long after the economy of Great Britain did not justify such a price. In the meantime, Great Britain had gradually been going bankrupt. The devaluation was a confession of at least partial bankruptcy—an admission that the government was only able to pay 70 cents on the dollar. So the government of Great Britain officially robbed the holders of the pound sterling of 30 per cent of their money—just as the government of the United States robbed the holders of the dollar of 42 per cent of their money in 1933 when we went off the gold standard.

For we do not have to look at Great Britain as the only horrible example of a government manipulating the value of its money to support its own political aims, without regard to justice or honesty in its dealings with the people. The dollar was not tied to the pound sterling or to any other money, but it was tied to gold. Our money was issued by our government under the pledged promise that it could be redeemed in gold at any time by the bearer. In going off the gold standard, the government violated this pledged promise. This was in effect the beginning of a serious chain of events revolving around the immoral concept that it is possible to "get something for nothing"—and it was begun by our own government. If the government ignores honesty in its dealings with the people, how can we expect the people to be any more honest than they have to be in their dealings with the government?

We have now reached a point where an amount of money that would have been considered adequate wealth twenty years ago, that is, adequate to carry out the purposes which its owner had in mind, whether protection for his family, income for retriement, or otherwise, is by no means adequate now. And the prospects are that it will be even less adequate in the years to come. For the whole trend now among our political leaders—and we find little to choose between the two parties—is to continue those practices which will make the dollar worth less and less, to continue those practices, in other words, which destroy the real wealth behind the dollar. So long as we are extravagant in government, so long as we live beyond our income, so long as we continue to pile up the national debt, so long as we continue to dole out subsidies, etc., we will continue to edge along the road to bankruptcy, we will continue to find our dollar worth less and less.

Thrift and honesty are still virtues, even though our own government penalizes the first and ignores the second. But they are virtues we have almost lost in recent years, and until we find them again we can only face an ignoble future.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q—What American boat race corresponds to the Oxford and Cambridge boat race held on the Thames in England?

A—The intercollegiate rowing races at Poughkeepsie, N.Y., are generally regarded as the American equivalent of the Oxford races. The leading American rowing colleges (except Yale and Harvard) have sent eight-oared crews to compete over the four-mile course on the Hudson River at Poughkeepsie, N.Y., since 1895.

Q—What are joing freight rates?

A—Joint freight rates apply to shipments moving over the lines of more than one railroad, revenues from which are divided among the participating railroads on an agreed basis.

Q—Is the raccoon found anywhere in the world besides in the United States?

A—The raccoon is found only in North and Central America, from Alaska in the north to Costa Rica in the south. It is common to the whole of the United States.

Q—With what countries is the United States still in a formal state of war?

NOTEBOOK

NEW YORK,—(AP)—I never knew how detestable the word "boss" was until my wife became one.

I don't mean the first time — when we were married. I mean the second time, when she hired me a secretary. This indirectly made me a "boss," which is certainly a four-letter word anyway you spell it.

Actually my wife, Frances, is the real boss. But I can't make anybody else believe it.

It all began about a year ago when Frances came in and saw my cluttered desk top. It was a waist-deep mare's nest of sleeping press agents, thrice - around - the paypole wisecracks, letters from indignant readers (all signed "X"), a flay from Guatemala, a well-fuzzed coconut demanding the admission of Hawaii as the 49th state, eight lumps of sugar and five used paper coffee containers.

"This is a disgrace," said Frances. "What do your employers say about it?"

"You know how employers are—just daylight wives," I made the mistake of replying. "They think it's disgrace, too."

"What you need is a secretary," said Frances.

Personally I would rather have had a dancing girl. But a couple of days later in strode the wife of a friend of mine, and I asked her, "Why, Laurie Wells, what are you doing here?"

"I'm your part-time secretary," she said. "Frances hired me."

Well, if I have learned one thing from 12 years of marriage it is never to question what my friends say my wife said, so I took her at her word.

In a day or two she had cleared off the debris. By then I was in the same situation as my employers. I had reached the peak of business efficiency. The old mess on top my desk, into which I could burrow and find anything I wanted, was orderly filed inside my desk in so many confusing folers that Stanley could have spent his lifetime searching there without ever being able to find Dr. Livingstone.

Now when I ask for something, Laurie says, "Just a moment, Boss," and disappears into the desk. Three hours later I go to lunch, and when I come back she has forgotten what she was looking for — and I have forgotten what I wanted. But, boy, it's a neat-looking desk.

The phone used to ring, and I'd say, "He's gone." Now when it rings Laurie answers and says, "Yes, here he is." That has forced me to give up a lifelong belief that of every 10,000 phone calls a man gets only one is worth saying "Hello" to.

When I pick up the phone myself, it isn't for me. An indignant female voice says, "Why aren't the children of public school 41 getting pomegranates for lunch? I hear they are serving them at public school 1,312."

It turns out that she really wants Laurie. My "sec" is a P-T-A president, and she is active in every good cause from the society to put more cottages in cottage cheese to the association for equal rights for confederate dollars.

"Why don't you strike a blow more often for worthwhile things, Boss?" asks Laurie. "You can make a better world!"

Me? With only one typewriter and a wornout ribbon? Ah, if it were possible!

But she shouldn't call me "Boss." That word revolts my whole nature. I don't want to control anything or boss anybody, myself included. I want everything to be absolutely free. I dislike the exercise of power so much that I wouldn't put a mothball in a drawer and tell it how many hours to stay on duty.

Laurie — "My sec" — is a wonderful, great-hearted, sweet-faced mother who has livened up the desk I labor from a great deal. Her smile kindles up the joint.

But she shouldn't call me "Boss." I know my place — just the friend of the husband of my wife's office wife.

Mackenzie's Column

Did you ever check back to determine the most fateful moment of your life, and what you were thinking in that fleeting instant?

Your columnist has been asked to perform that operation on himself for our Saturday adventure and has found it rather a fascinating type of reminiscence. It's easy to understand the interest in the subject, for I often have wondered what has passed through the mind of some individual whom I have seen encounter a fast moving crisis.

There was for instance the poor devil I saw go to the electric chair—my first experience with legalized killing. The sight haunted me for days, and I kept wondering what dominated his thoughts—if anything—during that last minute when he was approaching the chair and being strapped in.

Was it fear? (I didn't think) so. Regrets? His sins? The hereafter? Some loved one?

Several years ago when my wife and our young son and daughter were in England, Mrs. Mac got trapped in a burning passenger train and for a bit there seemed no escape. She says her dominant thought was whether the children could get along without her.

I suppose everybody who has spent his life knocking about the world hunting thrills has encountered crises of the flash-flood sort. War naturally produces many of them and my experience in two world conflists and some revolutions was no exception. One of the odd things I have come up against was this:

William Phillip Simms (then of the United Press) and I, who were attached to British general headquarters in France as war correspondents during the first world conflict, one day climbed to the top of the famous Vimy Ridge, north of Arras. From the razor-edge top of this ridge one could look for miles across the plain on which a host of Germans was entrenched.

Phil and I got into a small shell-hole on the crest and proceeded to look the field over with binoculars. We must have been careless about the reflection of the sun on our glasses, because the Germans spotted us.

A five-point-nine shell—one of the nastiest explosives in World War One—landed and exploded with terrific force just to our right. A moment later another shell blew up an equal distance to our left. The German gunners were bracketing us, that is, placing a shell on either side of their target before putting a third in the middle.

"The next one will be in this shell hole," I said to Phil.

I had hardly spoken when we heard the devil screaming towards us. We both flung ourselves flat on our faces in the hole. That wasn't due to thought on our part but was what amounted to a reflex action based on our training.

As we dived the big shell landed right in the hole beside us and threw dirt over us. I don't know what Phil was thinking, but in the split second as that shell landed I wondered what it was going to be like to be blown to pieces. It was purely an academic appraisal.

This was followed instantaneously by realization that the shell hadn't exploded on contact as it was supposed to do. I looked up at Phil and he looked at me. With one accord we jumped out of the shell hole onto the skyline and ran for the back of the hill.

The Germans spotted us and clamped a barrage around us. Things were hot, and our emotions certainly were those of unhappiness and self-preservation.

The shell which landed in our hide-out was the only dud the enemy threw in our vicinity that day.

The recently coined word "simulcast" means that a program is broadcast on radio and television at the same time or simultaneously.

IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON—Carloads of military equipment are pouring into eastern seaports for shipment to western European countries under the North Atlantic Pact.

It should start moving to Belgium and the Netherlands any day now and to Italy in about two weeks. France and Britain already are receiving fairly heavy allotments of naval and air craft. (The number of B-29s being sent to Britain is an official secret, but informed persons say it is 75).

The accent soon will be shifted from heavy aviation and naval items to ground troop weapons—rifles, machine guns, tanks. Most of these will go to France, according to the Allied plan, because it has the most available manpower.

Security Blunder

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Expect tighter rules for screening air force reports to congress as a result of the latest security blunder.

The air installations division outlined at least 17 classified projects in a booklet supporting its request for funds in the 1951 budget.

Apparently the report went out without clearance and was given to reporters at the capitol before air force officials concerned with security knew what had happened.

Bugs and Controls

WASHINGTON—(AP)—It was Senator Anderson (D.-N. M.), former secretary of agriculture, who exterminated a novel plan to offset bug damages to crops by loosening crop controls and price supports.

Veteran Senator Elmer Thomas (D.-Okla.) got a senate-house conference to agree to planting of 50,000 extra acres of cotton—one acre of cotton for every two acres "green bugs."

With an assist from Vice-President Barkley, Anderson got the bill sent back to conference. Anderson drew some smiles with his argument that if congress starts fighting bugs with price props "there is no limit to it."

Anderson said the system might be used "against the encroachment of the potato bug—and, if any are interested in moonshine, there can be protection against lightning bugs."

Primaries

WASHINGTON — (AP) — With many primary filing deadlines still far off, 52 Democrats and only 34 Republicans have announced for 36 senate seats at stake in November.

Most of the difference is on account of the fact that only one Republican has announced for a southern seat—from Florida—as against 12 Democrats, and in Ohio seven Democrats are fighting for the right to oppose Senator Taft. Taft is unopposed for the Republican nomination.

Capital Briefs

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Although there's no apparent shortage of farm labor, agriculture department officials point to reports from field offices that many farmers plan to shift to crops they can handle with less manpower.

Chairman Wood (D.-Ga.) predicts the house un-American activities committee will approve the anti-Communist bills sponsored by himself and Representative Nixon (R.-Calif.) before the Easter recess.

Senator Taft (R.-Ohio) concedes it may be difficult to muster the 49 senate votes necessary to kill President Truman's recommendation to abolish the office of general counsel of the national labor relations board.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The suggestion by United Nations Secretary General Trygve Lie for east-west peace discussions probably won't get to first base with the U. S. state department. Secretary Acheson, who contends the road to peace is to strengthen the anti-Communist world, seems to be giving it only polite consideration.

A proposal to send the omnibus appropriations bill back to appropriations committee with orders to cut off another billion, is gaining favor among both Republican and Democratic house members. Every member would get a chance to vote in favor of economy—but the load would be on committee members.

Don't look for any 2 1-2 or 7 1-2 cent coins to come out. Mint Director Nellie Tayloe Ross is dead set against it—says conditions don't justify it and it would be expensive too.

United Nations

LAKE SUCCESS — (AP) — Another threatened Russian boycott promises to speed up work on one of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's pet projects—a United Nations declaration of human rights. The U. N. commission for human rights, of which she is chairman, meets this week to work on the declaration. Since much of the session was supposed to consider Russian proposals, it may dispose of its work in three weeks, about half its usual time, if the Russians stay out.

ASMARA, Eritrea—(AP)—The U. N. commission for Eritrea will end its work here early in April and probably will submit recommendations for disposition of this former Italian colony to the U. N. general assembly by June 15.

LAKE SUCCESS—(AP)—A worldwide conference to find out how much money participating governments can give under President Truman's point four program will open here May 16.

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—A University of California surgery professor, Dr. William P. Longmire, Jr., says a machine built to maintain blood circulation outside the body shows great promise. He says such a machine probably will be the next big development in heart surgery.

Not Worrying

NEW YORK — (AP) — Retailers aren't too worried about Easter volume. Though many forecasters believe sales won't come up to last year's, almost all think the grand total for March and April will equal or exceed that for the 1949 period. Big merchants are ready to spring post-Easter promotion.

POMONA, Calif.—(AP)—The chamber of Commerce is raising money for an air marker with letters 97 feet high, to be painted on the roof of the Los Angeles County Fair grandstand. The chamber says it will be the world's largest air marker, visible from 18,000 feet.

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya—(AP)—A U. S. army medical team is here searching for a way to banish the dangerous disease scrub typhus with sprays and repellants attacking mites and chiggers, which carry it.

been as true in the United States as in France, Italy or Great Britain.

They also discovered a marked tendency for the intellectuals, particularly scientists, to forsake the the basically Christian traditions of their civilization.

Therefore, they decided to move swiftly. In Europe, they resorted to Marxian propaganda; in Asia, they successfully went to war. In Europe, their influence has expanded beyond the Elbe, but they have failed to take Italy, France and Western Germany. They have, however, taken Czechoslovakia and Hungary, which were altogether in the Christian world.

The governmental resistance to this advance has been trifling. The American diplomacy based itself entirely on dollars, which is not enough. Even in the expenditure of dollars so many subterfuges had to be employed that no rallying to a great set or principles of life appeared. While such a concept as the Marshall Plan can produce a statistical success, it has failed as a spiritual force. In Asia, China was deserted and became Russian by default.

Now this is the story and here is where we are now. And all the apologies of such a man as Dr. Philip Jessup and the strongly worded speeches of Dean Acheson will not help, because the map is what it is.

Denials do not prevent the lines on the map from moving and when ever they do move, it is to our disadvantage. Yet, this also is so true: The authors of our defeats, the makers of our failures are still managing our affairs.

James Marlow:

THE NATION TODAY

WASHINGTON, March 25.—(AP)—Senator McCarthy, Wisconsin Republican, has made broadside charges of Communists and pro-Communist in the state department.

He singles out one man in particular as the "Top Soviet espionage agent in this country." McCarthy said his whole case will stand or fall on the truth of his accusations against this man.

So far McCarthy's charge against this person has not been made publicly—that is, in a way which would permit its use in public print without leaving the one who printed it open to a libel suit.

Nevertheless, the man's name is known all over Washington because when McCarthy named him, in a non-public way, the man's identity immediately leaded out.

McCarthy's charges at first covered a couple of hundred people. Since then he's narrowed down his list of allegedly disloyal persons very sharply.

He has claimed that if President Truman would let congress—through a subcommittee of the senate's foreign relations committee—get a look at the state department files, proof would be found for his accusations.

So far he's proved nothing. But Senator Tydings, Maryland Democrat, and chairman of the senate subcommittee—it's made up of three Democrats and two Republicans—has asked Mr. Truman for permission to see the state department files.

Mr. Truman still hasn't given his answer but yesterday the FBI let the subcommittee see some of the information in its file on the man McCarthy says is a "top Soviet espeonage agent".

The committee had to go over to the office of Attorney General McGrath for a look at this information with a pledge that it would not disclose what it saw.

McGrath pointed out that the fact that there is an FBI file on the man is not an indictment against him. He said the FBI investigates anyone against whom some information has been given, if the information seems worth running down.

Just what Mr. Truman will do—whether he'll let the subcommittee see all the files on all the other people named by McCarthy or just a few or none at all—remains to be seen. He probably won't give his answer before next week. But—

It's hardly likely the FBI let the subcommittee see the file on this one man without Mr. Truman's consent since he's taken a strong stand against letting congressional committees prowl around in the personal files of people employed in the executive branch of the government.

If he refuses to let the subcommittee see any more files, he would not be the first president to take such a stand.

As early as 1796 President George Washington refused a request from the house of representatives which requested a copy of the instructions to U. S. ministers who negotiated a treaty with Great Britain.

In 1825 the house asked President Monroe for certain documents covering the conduct of U. S. navy officers in the Pacific. Monroe refused. He said to hand over the documents might subject individuals to unjust criticism.

STATE WINNER OF ORATORICAL CONTEST

Winning first place in the annual state high school oratorical contest sponsored by the American Legion, Thomas Matheny (left) of Hammond is shown here receiving the victory plague from Dr. A. M. Shaw, Jr., English professor at Centenary College, who presided at the state meet held at Louisiana Tech. Matheny, who defeated seven other district champions at Ruston, will represent Louisiana in the national finals to be held in April at a place to be designated later.

Late Officers Provide 'Kitty'

Monroe policemen this week converted a parking meter into a table model "kitty" in an effort to obtain a traffic analysis billboard for the city.

Officers reporting to work a minute late, getting a second call on a detail and etc. are tried by a police officers court and their fine deposited in the "kitty."

Capt. Jack Davis of the traffic department, said soon as enough funds were raised by the meter a billboard showing a monthly traffic analysis of accidents in 1949 and 1950 will be erected in a prominent site in Monroe.

This is the first such project of the department, Capt. Davis asserted, and is apparently receiving favor from all officers. He added, "It's all in fun."

Fourth Sunday Singers Making Hit At Church

The Fourth Sunday Singing Association is affording gospel music and song lovers with interesting programs every fourth Sunday of each month.

The musicians and singers of the association give out with the old-time favorites at the Church of God, 813 Montgomery street, West Monroe.

The newly-organized West Monroe "Harmonetts" including Edith Harris, Mary Davis and Mrs. Naomi Knighton, with Mary Jo Spears at the piano, promises to be a highlight of the program, along with the "Youth Quartet" and the Duncon Brothers string band, and many other special singers.

The public is cordially ivited to attend the program.

HOLLYWOOD, March 25.—Look for an early reconciliation announcement from John Carroll and Lucille Ryman, still "going steady" despite their Mexican divorce. . . . Mrs. Fred MacMurray is recuperating from a serious major operation performed at the Mayo Clinic.

Understand that Nora Eddington's step-mother will be one of Errol Flynn's key witnesses in his custody suit; she's continued to live in Flynn's house despite her daughter's divorce. . . . In this morning's mail is a letter from an American now in South Africa. I want to pass along the comment he has to offer on a movie from the homeland—undoubtedly okayed by the MPPA for export abroad. He writes: "One of the long chilly evenings at Magamba was enlivened by an American movie. We do ourselves no good, in fact great harm by sending out our secondest of second rate movies for foreign consumption. I feel very strongly on the subject. I haven't seen anything that isn't apt to give the local movie-goer a very distorted, erroneous picture of the USA. However, be that as it may, along with the horrible feature was a short, with the Department of Justice stamp on it. It was not very well done either. Ninety-eight per cent was on how to commit a good crime, and the other two per cent was a little tailpiece saying 'crime doesn't pay.' If they expect the natives here to remember the moral, and not the techniques that really intrigue them, they are jolly wll mistaken."

Man Trying To Enter House Fatally Shot

WELLINGTON, Kas., March 25. — (AP) — Two 13-year old girls spending the night together were disturbed by a noise outside their bedroom window last night.

Palmela McKnight and her friend Shirley Wallace, quietly ran to another room and aroused Pamela's parents, Mr. and Mrs. I. L. McKnight.

The father loaded a 12-gauge shotgun and accompanied by his wife went to the girls' room. A man was climbing through the window. Mrs. McKnight suddenly switched on the light. McKnight fired. The intruder toppled back into the yard and died within 10 minutes.

Police Chief Jimmie Little said the dead man was identified as Luther Francis Gore, 26, an Oklahoma city railroad laborer. Coroner J. L. Phillips ruled the killing justifiable homicide.

Art Expert Now In Monroe With Treasured Painting

Want to see a treasured painting Hitler thought enough of to keep on his desk during World War II—and to insure for $50,000? Lend an ear. . . .

George Andre D'Arlier, 53-year-old art expert, who tours the nation exhibiting treasured works of art, has gotten around to Monroe. With him this trip is a picture titled "Blowing Bubbles." It's signed by Matthys Naiveu, who painted it in 1721.

"Blowing Bubbles" was, according to D'Arlier, taken from it's owner, the Innsbruck Museum, by Hitler's army. The dictator, the art expert said, kept it on his desk until liberating American forces got their hands on it and returned it back to the museum.

A Frenchman purchased the painting from there and later, upon his death, D'Arlier bought it. That was June 6, 1949.

D'Arlier said the painting was kept on Hitler's desk during the World War. He said he would be glad to show it to interested parties if they would call on him today at room 329, the Virginia Hotel.

A Frenchman, D'Arlier, 53, was born at Monte-Carlo, reared in Paris and graduated from the University of Aix-En-Provence. He began his study of art work at Rome, Italy at the age of sixteen.

During his interesting career, D'Arlier said he had been called upon by various governments to pass on famous paintings and under the administration of Franklin D. Roosevelt, was assigned to a group of art experts brought together to return the owners all treasures of art stolen by the Nazis.

D'Arlier, whose home is in New York City, was naturalized in 1934. He said he was enroute to Hot Springs, Ark. for a short vacation. However, he pointed out, "I plan to bring an art show here this coming November. The show, he said, "will be conducted at the Virginia hotel."

20,000 Jobs Now Open With U. S. Navy

Men of all trade categories, veterans and non-veterans alike are needed. High school graduates are also needed to fill special vacancies at this time.

There is no waiting to join the Navy as in the past, it was reported, and it is contemplated that sharp increases in quotas will be obtained by this area monthly throughout the current fiscal year.

If interested in an organization that now offers meals, lodging, free medical care, highly specialized training in many different trades, opportunities unlimited for the go-getter, and a chance to see the world free, all leading to retirement benefits after 20 years service, then contact your nearest navy recruiter at once. Statistics now show that navy men are among the highest paid individuals in the United States in take home pay and opportunities.

Reds Demonstrate Against Dismantling

BRUNSWICK, Germany March 25.—(AP)— A crowd of about 1,000 Communists demonstrated here today against the dismantling of the former Hermann Goering Steel Works.

August Hollander, chairman of the Communist party of lower Saxony, told the demonstrators the western allies are ripping down the plant for strategic reasons.

"They want to make a dead zone of this area for the next war," Hollander declared.

The allies have said the big plant was built solely for war production and cannot be operated economically.

BETTY MARBURY GETS NEW HAND

11-Year-Old Girl Refuses To Wear Artificial Limb In Public

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 25. — (AP) — Betty Lou Marbury got a new hand today but she refused to wear it in public.

The limb and its attachments — a metal hook and a plastic hand — were wrapped in paper and tossed in the Marbury car out of sight.

Explained the 11-year-old's father, Clay Marbury:

"She doesn't even want to talk about wearing it. And I'm not going to force her to wear it. I told her she could do what she wanted to with it."

A cancerous growth forced the removal of Betty's right hand and forearm last December. She had asked the nation to pray that she would recover without the operation.

The child whose faith and courage stirred thousands viewed the artificial limb with doubt and wonder. She was too awed of the hook to pose with it for a picture.

The hook will be used more than the hand, made mostly for looks, technicians said she probably would be fitted for two more limbs before reaching maturity.

Eventually she will get a mechanical hand designed both for appearance and utility. First she must learn to use a simpler apparatus.

Betty, now rosy cheeked, is living a full life for a child who was dreading surgery and possible death three months ago.

She has caught up with her work at school, where she is an honor pupil. She has been baptized at the First Baptist Church in her home town of Brownsville, Tenn.

And she still is feeling the effect of her plea for prayer, written in a childish scrawl to the Memphis Commercial Appeal.

She gets letters daily from across the country. People still tell her they are praying for her and offer encouragement.

The latest occasion for this was her visit to the limb company office for the arm.

A 35-year-old night watchman, Charles McCall, recognized her and limped up to greet her. He yanked up a leg of his trousers and exposed an artificial leg.

"I've had that ever since I was just a little older than you," he said. "I don't mind and don't worry about yourself . . . You've been mighty sweet."

Observed Marbury, a farmer and part-time carpenter:

"People all over the country have sure been nice to us . . . You just never know who's your neighbor till you get in trouble."

PURDUE CASHIER IS ON PROBATION

Pleaded Guilty To Embezzlement Of University's Funds

LAFAYETTE, Ind., March 25. — (AP) — A former cashier of Purdue University was put on probation for five years and fined $50 today for embezzlement of university funds.

William Walter Hollensbe, 40, prominent Lafayette resident, pleaded guilty to the embezzlement charge in Tippecanoe Circuit court.

Circuit Judge W. Lynn Parkinson also disfranchised Hollensbe and held him incapable of holding any office during the period of his probation.

Hollensbe, president of the Lafayette Elks Lodge at the time of his arrest and active in civic affairs, was sentenced on a grand jury indictment charging embezzlement of $2,300.

Another indictment charging Hollensbe with embezzlement of an additional $2,700 was dismissed several weeks ago at the request of Prosecutor Samuel Lehman.

Hollensbe was placed in probationary custody of Edward J. O'Connor, former Lafayette police chief, one of 15 character witnesses who testified at today's hearing.

The state board of accounts reported last year that it found a total of $20,103.75 missing from Hollensbe's accounts at the university. Chief Examiner Otto K. Jensen said at the time that the shortages had occurred between Jan. 30, 1940 and Aug. 10, 1949, when Hollensbe disappeared.

He was arrested several days later at a tavern in Michigan. His wife was in a private hospital at the time and he was returned here on a charge of child desertion.

He was held on the child desertion charges until his indictment, although he was free on bond the entire time.

R. V. Stewart, vice-president of Purdue, testified today that the entire amount missing in Hollensbe's accounts had been recovered from a bonding company.

CURE IS PAINFUL

DES MOINES —(AP)—Elwyn Pearson's plan for getting rid of wasps proved more painful than stings. The wasps had been stinging his stock in the pasture. He discovered the nest in a large gas pipe used as a fence brace. Pearson threw gasoline into the pipe, and lit a match. There was a blast which threw fire over him, resulting in burns that required hospital attention.

WOODEN BIRDS LOOK LIKE THIS? That's what Charles Greenough Chase of Wiscasset, Me., thinks and enthusiastic critics agree with him. He exhibited his wood carvings at the Museum of Natural History in New York to show how the individual characteristics of various birds can be expressed in walnut, mahogany, maple and apple wood. More than 20 species of American birds are represented in his sculpture, including the ruffed grouse, eagle, sea gull and others.

PREPARING FOR GRAINGER EVENT

Completion Of Band Auditions Marks Major Portion Of Preparation

Completion of auditions for band members marks the first major phase of preparation for the Percy Grainger music festival which is being sponsored by the music department of Northeast Junior College.

Choral auditions for the festival also are practically finished, announced James F. Monroe, head of the department, who has scheduled the attraction for April 17, 18 and 19. Both groups will participate in programs on the last day of the event.

The first full rehearsal for band was held Friday night with a full organization of about 65 musicians, including players selected from Winnsboro, Bastrop, Ouachita Parish and Neville High Schools. The young musicians showed a high degree of skill in sight reading of some difficult music, Monroe said.

Francis H. Burke, of the N. J. C. music faculty and director of the festival band, declared, "We believe that we have some of the best high school musicians of Northeast Louisiana in the organization." He added, "There were many excellent players auditioned who could not be included since the size of the band has to be limited to requirements of the music to be performed."

This group will play some symphonic band compositions, with Grainger as piano soloist, and will also accompany the choral group of some hundred voices in several numbers.

The first choral rehearsal will be Monday at 6:30 p.m. in Brown Hall on the N. J. C. campus. This group, like the band, will comprise selected singers of various high schools in this area, who will join the college chorus under the direction of Miss Gertrude Sandrock of the music faculty.

Prominent Cuban Statesman Succumbs

He got a minor job in the education ministry under his father in 1926. Later he joined in the rebellion that overthrew Machado in 1933.

SHADES OF PAUL BUNYAN

MECHANIZED LOGGING. A FULL TREE LENGTH SLASHER SAWS A COMPLETE TREE INTO EIGHT FOOT LENGTHS IN ONE OPERATION.

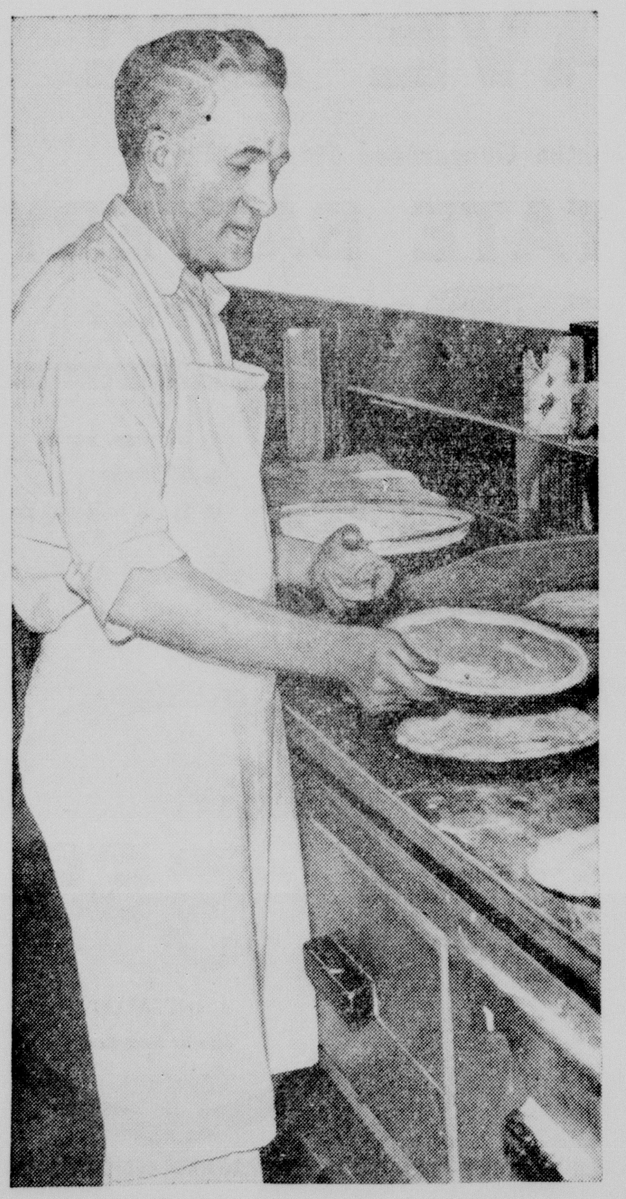

READY FOR SLEIGH RIDE. Pulpwood cut during the summer is piled near a winter road. Here a clam loads logs onto a sleigh.

There's little doubt that Paul Bunyon would call today's logging camp a lumberjack's paradise. Camps have gone modern—even those in remote areas. Take, for instance, a Minnesota and Ontario paper company camp in the Flanders area in Ontario, virtually a hundred miles from nowhere. There the 'jacks cut up a lot of pulpwood in the summer, then haul it out in the dead of winter. At the camp you'll find shower baths with hot and cold running water. Regular mattresses replace the old time ticks stuffed with hay or spruce boughs. A camp generator runs such things as radios and electric razors. A two-way radio links the camp with the company headquarters at Fort Frances. The Flanders camp is pictured here.

SET in heart of Canadian wilderness, the camp is laid out in neat, orderly rows. Lake in back of camp is used as landing port for planes.

COOK Dan Jaryczeski turns out 45 pies a day.

LUMBERJACK'S wash goes into commercial laundry type tub.

OLD DOBBIN still plays a part in logging despite use of modern power machinery. Here he proves most practical in skidding out a half cord of pulpwood.

PHYSICIAN leaves a Minnesota and Ontario company plane after flight from Fort Frances, far to the south. Pilot Gillon hands the doctor his case.

ASSISTANT logging superintendent Bob Potts uses electric razor.

VAST EXPENSE

try's defenses with those of Canada.

He said there had been complete agreement on the necessity of coordinating defense planning for the two countries and standardizing air raid warning systems and other equipment.

Larsen said if an American city were attacked now, it would have to rely largely on its own fire-fighting, police and medical services, with technical assistance from the federal government.

He urged passage of a bill by Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D.-Colo.) which would authorize the use of federal services and supplies in alleviating all disasters.

Larsen said the question of being ready for an attack is "necessarily a relative matter," adding:

Frankly, I wonder whether we would want to be in a state of absolute readiness. Do we want our women and children evacuated from our cities? Can our cities stand the cost of moving their hospitals and fire stations to outlying areas?

FRANK BUCK

rilla have the box office appeal of Gypsy Rose Lee.

He never forgot his early training as a youth amid wild life in his native Texas. He trapped his first python, 28 feet of sudden death, by throwing a Texas rope lasso over its neck and then snubbing it to a tree just as if he had snubbed a heifer calf back on the prairie.

But, Buck was a careful man with all his dangerous forays into the wide spaces of every continent of the world. He was never careless, took every measure to safeguard himself and others although his natural sense of humor made him sometimes appear to be disdainful of any danger.

Once I met him in Alexandria, Egypt just at the moment I was preparing to go into Arabia, Somaliland, Ethiopia and some other way stops. I had known him previously in the United States when he was editing some of his motion pictures here. Telling him of my journeys for the next few months, he asked what I had done and what I knew about preventive medicine before going into those countries. For the next half hour Buck told me and diagrammed directions for everything a white man should do before going into the jungle or desert for the first time. If he hadn't I probably wouldn't be here to write this.

Among the many admirable things about Buck was that he would never fake a picture or a story. Many of the stories that he told in his books and articles were exciting and the scenes would easily have been performed by the jungle animals in the Hollywood movie studios. But, Buck insisted that all animal scenes in his pictures be the real thing even though they might not be as good pictorially as those made by the trained lions, elephants, and other animals in the Hollywood jungles.

Although they were stars and earned a fortune for him, Buck said that animals were bad actors. He contended that they were both dangerous and temperamental, and not even good ham actors.

He liked elephants and detested camels, which is the only proof needed that explorer Frank Buck knew everything there is to know about animals. Elephants are friendly to people. Camels spit in your face.

U. S. PEACE

appointment on Sept. 16, 1939 by Secretary of State Cordell Hull of Leo Pasvolsky as a special assistant primarily to work on peace problems.

This was followed over the next six years by hundreds of studies and recommendations by special committees and other agencies, with several government departments represented. An active figure among the officials who took park was Alger Hiss, recently convicted of falsely denying he passed secrets to a courier for a Red spy ring. His name is listed in the record 22 times.

Another person listed as taking part in the peace preparations was Henry Julian Wadleigh, formerly of the state department's trade agreements section. He admitted last year that he passed state department papers to a Communist party spy ring before the war.

New Type Incubator Saves More Babies

HOUSTON, March 25.—(AP)— A new type incubator is credited by St. Joseph's infirmary attendants with saving the lives of babies.

Sister Carmen of the hospital's maternity ward said today babies born prematurely or in poor condition have made immediate improvements after being placed in one of the new air lock incubators.

Dr. Allan Fenny Bloxsom, Houston physician, helped invent the machine. They use compressed air and pressure can be adjusted to meet the needs of the baby.

An ordinary incubator, Sister Carmen explained uses only atmospheric pressure and cannot be adjusted.

The two air locks at the hospital were donated by Mr. and Mrs. Corbin Robertson, Houston. Mrs. Robertson is a daughter of Hugh Roy Cullen, millionaire Houston oilman and philantropist.

The locks were put into use early this year.

Woman Shot While Talking To Policeman

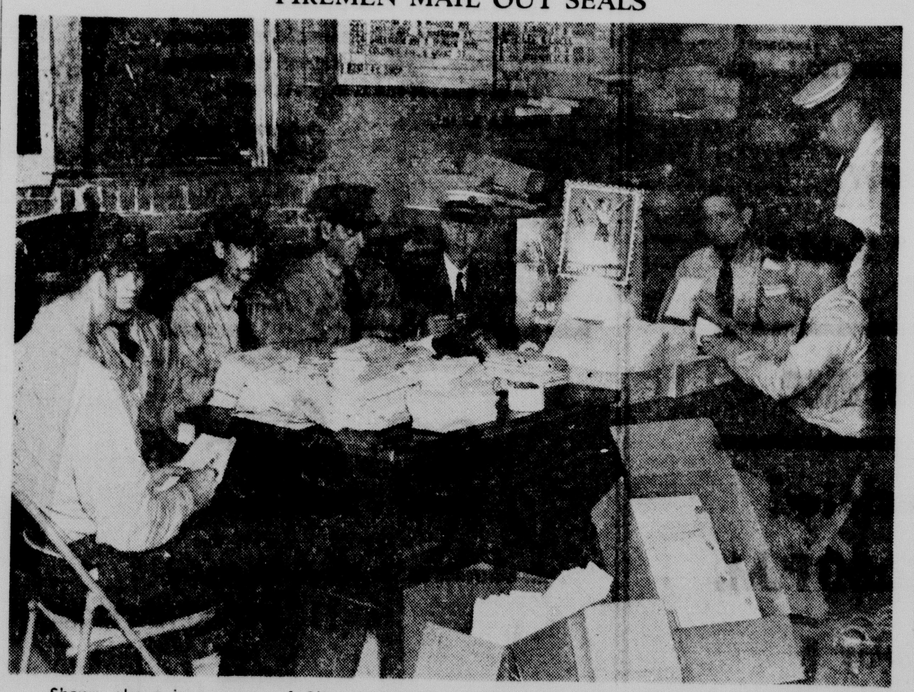

While a Negro woman told a West Monroe patrolman that her husband had threatened to kill her, he appeared between two houses and opened fire on her with a double-barreled shotgun.

Mattie Lee Brown was hit in her left shoulder, neck and face with No. 5 squirrel shot. Hospital attendants at the Conway Memorial Hospital said last night her condition was fair.

Police were looking for Ivy Brown, 33, in connection with the shooting. Chief of Police Jeff Caldwell said the Negro ran as soon as he fired. Officers later recovered the shotgun. The shooting occurred in front of 104 South Fifth Street.

Brown was said to be wearing blue overalls and white shirt when last seen.

FIREMEN MAIL OUT SEALS

JES' RAMBLIN'

she is a fiend for news. Last year she managed to get a total of 15,378 inches of D. A. R. news recorded in real printers' ink in the pages of daily papers of the state. This was some feat as the year before only half this amount of publicity had passed into columns of the press, with others at the helm.

Because of her indefatigable efforts, she received a commendatory letter from the D. A. R. president and at the same time was named on the national press committee of the Continental Congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution in Washington. All this makes Mrs. Stovall feel really quite proud, and as another achievement she has recently been elected regent (top officer) of the newly-formed D. A. R post in West Monroe.

Many friends of E. R. Dawson will wish him rapid recovery from an operation which will be performed this week in the Vets' hospital in Alexandria. He had spent two or three months there, and had undergone a serious operation, but recovered sufficiently to come home to stay two weeks.

Easter is just around the corner and it is quite suitable that the Crippled Children's Society should have chosen this great date that marks a symbol of hope for the sending out of Easter seals. Easter is a promise of life eternal, so is the Easter seal a symbol of hope to the crippled child—a promise of an opportunity to live a normal life.

The Crippled Children's society fill the gaps in the public program operated by the state, where certain services are not fully covered by this source such as are needed medicines, braces, orthopedic shoes, transportation, etc.

It is most essential that each one who receives in the mails these Easter seals mail back a single dollar as payment, or if one is able to exceed this sum, the remittance will be most welcome and will do more good than any can fully realize.

The seal this time shows a boy with arms outstretched as he hurls aside his crutches in glee.

Here's one going the rounds in the Twin Cities which we brand as certainly an unusual way of advertising. A certain small photo studio here—we'll not advertise it by name—calls up people on the phone and asks if one can spell the name of the man who owns the studio.

The man or woman at the receiving end of the phone, is amazed at the simple request and at first is about to pass it off as a joke. But he is told it is in dead earnest and he complies with the request.

"Oh you are wonderful! Why, you can spell fine! Now you have won and can have $6 worth of pictures and all you now have to do is to pay a single dollar to a lady who will make a call on you soon!"

We lack the fame of Callendar, the little backwoods town that suddenly leaped into international fame when it became home of quintuplets, but we have not so far away, Jonesville, the place where in a houseboat home there are triplets, born to astonish medical science on three successive days! Already like the man who builds a better mouse trip, there is a beaten path to their door, only the path has to be made by a boat for there is no other approach.

The Hardie triplets, they are the ones being considered, are husky and like the famed quints, they arrived in a family already extremely poor and with a goodly number of brothers and sisters already in the home circle.

The Hardies and their physician have been kept busy the past week opening letters. A total at last report was $400 raised. One letter contained a check from Governor Earl K. Long and one from Congressman Otto E. Passman. The congressman enclosed a copy of the Congressional Record which contained a story of the birth of the triplets.

The manufacturers of Gerber's baby food and pet milk are supplying food for the newcomers.

An Associated Press photographer found his way after much difficulty to the houseboat moored on the edge of the swollen river and secured pictures of the three new arrivals. Seems as if fame is headed this way.

to roll on him before he scrambled away. He was taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital where Dr. George W. Jones said Spellman's injuries included four or five broken ribs and multiple abrasions and bruises.

Many residents in the eastern residential section of Pomona were awakened as the scared and trumpeting pachyderms crashed through yards and streets. The police switchboard was flooded by persons reporting that "monsters" were on the loose.

One of the elephants rammed through a fence at the Pomona Tile Manufacturing Co., parking lot, roamed through an orange grove and then crashed through a chain link fence at one of the city's reservoirs. At that point a panting attendant caught up and called to the elephant. The beast responded by ramming through another section of reservoir fence, but then submitted peacefully to capture by the attendant.

The roundup of the pair took an hour and a half. After their capture the circus train left for San Fernando, Calif., not far away.

the services and interment, under the direction of the Mulhearn Funeral Home, will follow in the Holly Grove Cemetery.

Besides her parents, Evon is survived by a sister, Lavonne Campbell.

When asked if help would be given the burned-out Campbell family, C. C. Nelson, chairman of the Franklin Parish Chapter of the American Red Cross, told a Morning World corrsepondent that a shortage in the chapter's fund would prevent immediate aid.

The Red Cross chairman went on to explain that of money donated in Franklin parish last year, fifty-three percent was spent locally to employ a secretary for the local organization and for telephone and telegraph expenses. The remaining forty-seven percent, he pointed out, went to the national organization.

When asked about the possibility of securing immediate aid from the natnoial branch, Nelson replied: "They won't let us have the money because it's too near the time when we will be able to use this year's donations."

He explained that the donations given in the current drive would be available April first.

In addition to his duties as pastor of a church, Campbell operates a small farm nine miles south of Ft. Necessity.

ALBANY, N. Y.—(AP)—Sometimes banks can be too well protected.

Employes at the First Trust Company were locked in for 45 minutes after closing hours. A door that's supposed to keep burglars out wouldn't open for them from the inside.

In the nearby village of Chatham, bank customers were in tears when a short circuit in the bank's protective gas system flooded the place with tear-gas.

in Louisiana and Tennessee showed Dunn had been loaded with more than 30 grains of the knockou ptotion — enough to kill him.

The police head ordered Capt. Joseph Sonnenberg, a man known as a tough disciplinarian, to take over the French district where a lone man is fair game and a weak drink often costs a buck.

Scheuering directed his captain to clean the area, famed for its good food, ancient homes and sucker traps, of girls who go from club to club picking up men, cab drivers who solicit for prostitution, and B-drinkers.

B-drinkers are bar girls who persuaded customers to buy them drinks. They in turn are served a watery concoction, but they get a commission on the total bill.

Manning said Dunn had been lured to his death by a B-girl.

Detective Chief Daniels said five unidentified persons had been taken into custody as witnesses in the Dunn death, but that four would be released tomorrow or Monday.

Daniels said one of those held was a man associated with the two women. Others arrested were two waitresses, the bandleader and a maid in the nightclub where Dunn died.

Daniels said the two women sought in the case were not now in New Orleans.

No warrants can be issued, he added, until the coroner changes his official verdict from death due to heart ailment. The coroner was said it did not know when to exout of town today and his office pect a report.

"The City Board of Health begs to advise you that the sewerage facilities of Monroe are grossly inadequate. The city has some open toilets and privies. The extension of the sewer system to every section of Monroe is badly needed. if the health of our people is to be safeguarded. As long as septic tanks and privies exist in Monroe our people are subject to the following diseases such as diarrhea, malaria and typhoid fever. While the proof is not definite there is some evidence that points to infantile paralysis as a result of open sewerage. We sincerely urge you both professionally and as citizens that the entire city be adequately sewered.

FRENCH STRIKES ARE LETTING UP

Number Unemployed Dwindles But Normalcy Still Not In Sight

PARIS, March 25. —(AP— The French strike wave is slowly running out of steam, but normalcy is still not in sight.

At the height of the strikes approximately 500,000 workers were off the job. Today that figure had dwindled to about 300,000. By Monday it will be sharply reduced by the return of 70,000 gas and electricity workers, who accepted government terms today and started to stream back to stream back to work.

This will leave as the biggest groups still out: metal workers, 150,000; construction workers, 40,000; social security office workers, 30,000; and textile workers, 4,000.

There are about 11,000,000 salaried workers in France, so that at the height of the strikes, approximately one of every 22 workers was out. In addition, there are 160,000 unemployed.

Most of the strikers want more pay. A monthly boost of 3,000 francs (8.50) is the average target. Terms in the gas and electric settlement were not disclosed.

The Communist-led national union of dock workers ordered a 24-hour strike Monday by dock workers in all French and Tunisian ports. The demonstration was called ostensibly to protest the arrest of striking dockworkers during a walkout at Marseille, which began five weeks ago as a demand for increased wages.

assertions that the secretary should be dropped.

Bridges speech is expected to be followed by others.

Senator Knowland (R.-Calif) said members of a senate appropriations subcommittee will demand an explanation Monday from the state department on what is being done to keep the British from turning over 75 transport planes to the Chinese Communists.

Acheson and Ambassador Phillip Jessup — who recently visited the orient — are due to discuss the Far East situation Wednesday with the senate foreign relations committee, and the state department has started a series of informal meetings with lawmakers to explain the administration's aims in the China area.

Knowland said he is interested particularly in keeping American-built transport planes in Hong Kong out of Communist hands.

These planes were flown out of China several months ago as the Chinese Nationalists armies crumbled. The machines were the property of the government-owned Nationalist airline directed by General Claire Chennault.

The British impounded the planes and they still are being held in Hong Kong with the Chinese Communists trying to get control of them from the British.

"These planes," Knowland said, "would be a material aid to Communist China which is in alliance with Communist Russia."

MONROE SPORTS IN INTRA-SQUAD TILT TODAY

LOCALS GET 1ST BASEMAN FROM GEORGIA STATE

Ruark Hitting Ball Hard In Daily Workouts; Box Seats Available

Manager Al Mazur will send his Monroe Sports through their first intra-squad game of the 1950 spring training season this afternoon. With only five full days of workouts and only two days of batting practice included, Mazur isn't expecting wonders from the 30-odd ball players, but, with the first exhibition game slated for Wednesday afternoon against Louisiana Tech in Ruston, the skipper feels its about time for the lads to get a little actual competition under their belts.

Today's workout is scheduled for 1 p. m. with the domestic entanglement taking off one hour later. As to the makeup of the two squads Mazur is keeping mum on the matter at hand, saying he'd rather see who looks how today before assigning chorse for the five-inning folde-rol.

Parnell Ruark, who's been slugging the ball long and hard in the two days of batting practice, continued his onslaught against Mr. Spalding's product. Friday, the Sparta, Ga., native lofted three of the horsehides over the far reaches of left field and into the desolate pasture land beyond. Although he failed to connect for the distance yesterday, he managed to massage the pellet vigorously.

Mazur also remarked on the improvement of the hurling staff between Friday and yesterday. Wildness plagued the attempt at batting practice on the former date, but yesterday the chunkers began to find the plate and offer a liberal target for the willow-wielders.

Additional help is forthcoming for the locals, according to Paul Manasseh, business manager.

First Baseman Ray Mendoza, a six-foot-five behemoth, has been purchased from the Dublin club of the Georgia State League. Mendoza agreed to terms over the telephone from his home in San Diego, Calif., and is already en route to Monroe, expected to arrive today or tomorrow.

Although he hit only .255 for the Class D entry, he compiled an enviable long-ball hitting record in his initial pro season. Mendoza is being counted on to increase the competition for the first sacker's post, now being contested by Ed Czaplicki and "Boo" Smart.

Manasseh also said that a number of season boxes remain available for sale. He will be at Legion Memorial Stadium from noon on today to take orders for the remaining boxes.

Durocher Promises Giants May Retain Negro Pitcher

OAKLAND, Calif., March 25. —(AP)—New York Giants' Manager Leo Durocher, said today he may have a Negro pitcher this season.

The hurler is righthander Ford Smith, a Jersey City player whose winter home is in Phoenix, Ariz.

He said Smith was the best pitcher he had seen in action on the "B" squad four game tour.

Among other things, Durocher said he was satisfied with the rookie bonus pitcher, Lou Sleater, Catcher Sam Calderone, and Infielder Bob Hofman.

TOP DRAWER

Center Fielder Bobby Thomson accounted for 27 home runs and 109 RBI's with a .309 average last trip, is the mainstay of the Giants' outer defense.

GOPHERS STEAL SHOW IN ANNUAL FLORIDA RELAYS

Minnesota Spikemen Cop Eight Firsts, Set Four New Records

By F. T. MACFEELY

GAINESVILLE, Fla., March 25. —(AP)— Eleven trackmen from Minnesota ran, tossed and jumped to four new records and eight first places in seventh annual Florida Relays today.

The Minnesota team won two of the five relays and every individual event except the broad jump and javelin throw.

While Minnesota dominated the meet, Bob Kirk, 22-year-old North Carolina senior, won the Kearney-Raybun Memorial trophy as the outstanding individual. Kirk threw the javelin 209 feet, six 5-8 inches for the record Minnesota didn't set.

It was the second straight year Kirk won the event. He topped the field at 190 feet plus in 1949 but this time the southern conference champion had the whip to wipe out a mark of 198 feet, 2 1-4 inches set by Bob Salisbury from Georgia in 1940.

Byrl Thompson, big Minnesota junior, who copped the trophy last year, repeated first places in both the discus throw and shot put.

He tossed the 16-pound weight 52 feet, eight inches for a new mark. Last year he set it at 49 feet, four inches. His winning discus throw of 159 feet was well short of the record he marked up in the event in 1949.

N.J.C. Victim Of No-Hit No-Run Job In First Game At Northwestern

DEAL, DUSAK HOPE TO MAKE RED BIRD CLUB AS PITCHERS

Righthanded Pair Attempt To Follow Trail Of Walters, Lemon

By Ralph Roden

NEW YORK, March 25. — (AP) — Ellis (Cot) Deal and Erv (Four Sack) Dusak once again are making determined bids to stick in the major leagues — this time as ptichers.

The two, both righthanders on the roster of St. Louis Cardinals, hope to follow Bucky Walters and Bob Lemon who successfully switched from other chores and became outstanding pitchers.

Dusak is more familiar in major league circles than Deal. The 29-year-old native of Chicago played the infield and outfield for the Cardinals from 1946 to 1948 appearing in 100 or more games in each of those seasons. However, he was unable to hit .300. Dusak's closest approach was .284 in 1947 he tailed off to .209 the following season.

The Cards sent Dusak to their Rochester International League team for the 1949 season to learn the pitching trade.

Erv, who gained the nickname of "Four Sack," while socking 18 homers for Mobile in 1941, won 11 games and lost eight for Rochester including a one-hit triumph over the pennant winning Buffalo Bisons. But he still has a lot to learn.

Dusak admits his chief stumbling block is lack of control. He ran up six straight victories after mastering a curve and now is practicing on a side arm sinker pitch taught him by stocky Ted Wilks, ace Card relief pitcher.

Deal, 27, is further along than Dusak in the A. B. C.'s of pitching.

The promising pitcher broke into the game as a switch-hitting outfielder and part-time pitcher. His attributes at both positions were excellent.

Following a three-year hitch in the armed forces Deal prepped at Toronto in 1946 and 1947, alternating between the outfield and the mound.

He joined the Boston Red Sox at the tail end of the 1947 season and began the 1948 campaign with the Sox before he was shunted off to Louisville of the American Association.

The Cards obtained his services when he was traded to the Red Birds' Columbus farm in the Association in 1949. Deal's chief claim to fame happened on Sept. 3, 1949, when he started and completed a 20-inning triumph over Louisville during which he struck out 20 Colonel batters. He compiled a 15-9 record for the year. Deal also was successfully used frequently as a pinch-hitter.

At the moment Deal looms as the best bet of the two to stick with the Cards but it is believed that with another year of apprenticeship Dusak will make the grade.

Pelicans, Crackers Open New Season As Southern Loop's All-Time Champs

By STERLING SLAPPEY

ATLANTA, March 25.—(AP)—New Orleans and Atlanta will open the 50th anniversary baseball season of the Southern Association April 14 as the all-time co-champions on the playing field and at the paying gate.

In recent years Nashville has challenged the leaders on the field and Birmingham at the gate. But the great records built up by New Orleans and Atlanta still stand and put them among the best baseball towns in the south and among the best in the nation.

Atlanta has won the most pennants since the Southern Association grew out of the old Southern League in 1901. Twelve times a pennant has flown from Atlanta's flag pole.

New Orleans pushes Atlanta closely with 11 season championships. Nashville is third with nine, two of them won in the last two years and two others won in the first two years of the association.

Birmingham is fourth with six and Memphis next with four. Little Rock has won three pennants, Mobile two and Chattanooga two.

After 49 campaigns New Orleans leads in the number of times in the first division — 42. Nashville and Memphis are tied for second place with 29 first division teams, Atlanta is fourth with 26.

Birmingham has finished in the first division 24 seasons, Little Rock 16, Mobile 12 and Chattanooga 11.

New Orleans also leads in all-time won and lost records. The Pelicans have won 3,809 games and lost 3,178. Memphis is second with 3,766 victories and 3,281 defeats.

Other records showing victories first and defeats second are:

Atlanta, 3,653, 3,225; Nashville, 3,597, 3,453; Birmingham, 3,567, 3,461; Little Rock, 2,924, 3,389; Chattanooga 2,757, 3,243, and Mobile 1,981, 2,279.

Mobile has been in the association fewer years than any present member.

Nashville has been host to four all-stars games but won only twice. Atlanta met the all-stars three times and won each game. Memphis defeated the stars once and lost once. Other all-star hosts were Little Rock and Mobile, once each.

In the matter of attracting customers, Atlanta is far ahead with 7,300,915 paying customers since 1915, the first year permanent attendance records were kept.

New Orleans is a weak second with 5,634,031 and Birmingham third with 5,552,835. In recent most of the gap to second place.

Memphis ranks fourth with 5,414,243; Nashville fifth with 4,348,659; Chattanooga sixth with 3,470,406; Mobile (including attendance at Knoxville before the franchise was transferred) seventh with 3,025,583, and Little Rock eighth with 2,993,802.

The largest single day's attendance was 26,261 in New Orleans April 19, 1938 for the first game of the season. Memphis was the visitor. The second largest opening date was in Atlanta against Birmingham. The crowd was 21,812.

The largest crowd ever to appear for an exhibition game was about 26,000 last April in Atlanta ent.

Birmingham holds the record for one season attendance — 445,926 in 1948.

FREEBOOTER WINS GRAND NATIONAL JUMPS

WOT NO SUN 2ND; ROYAL FAMILY'S MONAVEEN FIFTH

300,000 Spectators Witness England's Historic Steeplechase

By Ben Phlegar

AINTREE, England, March 25. — (AP)— Freebooter, a half brother of an Irish plow horse, won the Grand National Steeplechase today, smashing a 23-year jinx on favorites.

Never worse than third, the handsome coffee-colored gelding breezed home in the brilliant sunshine 15 lengths ahead of Wot No Sun. Acthon Major was third, another five lengths back in the field of 49 starters.

The favorite's triumph thrilled a crowd of 300,000, including the royal family, after the front-running Cloncarrig fell two fences from home, it was easy for Freebooter.

It was the first time the king and queen attended since 1937 and the gay thousands gave them a tumultous welcome, along with the Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret, and the Duchess of Kent. She is the king's widowed sister-in-law.

Monaveen, jointly owned by the queen and Princess Elizabeth, finished fifth behind Rowland Roy after leading in the early stages. The royal entry, which had been leading in the early stages, was the sentimental choice of thousands of British housewives with only a shilling or two to risk.

Freebooter, a co-favorite with Roimond, went off at 10 to 1. He had been the public choice ever since bookies began quoting prices in January, and the huge throng liked his looks today.

The last favorite to win the Grand National was Sprig, at 8 to 1 in 1927.

Monaveen, a 9 to 1 second choice in the final betting callover last night which saw Freebooter favored at 8to 1, started at 100 to 7. But the late plunge on Roimond, 100 to 7 last night, eased the odds on Freebooter. Roimond, second in last year's race, fell this time on the first time around the course, which is navigated twice.

Trailing behind Monaveen in sixth and seventh place were Ship's Bell and Inchmore, the only other official finishes. Thirteen horses came home, but six were not classed as official finishers because the stewards said they missed one of the fences.

Freebooter carried 165 pounds, including green-eyed Irish Jimmy Power, over the 30 hazardous jumps of the four mile, 856-yard route. His time was 9:23 3-5, compared with the record of 9:20 2-5 set by Golden Miller in 1934 and equalled in 1940 by Bogskar.

The nine-year-old winner belongs to Mrs. Luelein Brotherton of York, the widow of a wealthy chemical manufacturer. She paid 3,000 guineas (then worth $12,600) for the horse five years ago. The winner's purse today was $24,053.

Powder, 26-year-old, was riding his second National.

Monaveen lost his chance for victory through two bad jumps. After leading almost halfway through the race, he hit the 14th fence hard.

"I was shot up on to his neck and almost feel off over his ears," said his rider, Tony Grantham.

"He made up ground after this, but a further mistake at the fen (No. 23) after Becher's brook put him right out of the race."

Russian Hero, the 1949 winner at 6-1 lasted only as far as the first fence today.

"We met the jump wrong," explained Jcokey Leo McMorrow. "Russian Hero tried to brush his way through it and came a purler (fell)."

Six horses fell at the first two fences and less than half the field was still mounted when the second circuit began.

Gil Dodd Shows Distance Running Style To Japanese

TOKYO, March 25. — (AP) — Gil Dodds, the old miler, today showed 15 of Japan's top middle distance runners his heels and the stride of a champion.

Dodds took time out from his visit to Japan in behalf of the Pocket Testament League and put on his spikes for a workout.

He let Kikuo Moriya of Nihon University set the pace in the 800 meters, then breezed past him easily in the final stretch. It was the first look the 15 runners had of the holder of the American indoor mile record.

They were impressed by (1.) His easy stride and effortless pace, and (2.) The fact he kept his heels on the cinders until his final sprint. Japanese middle distance runners go the route on their toes.

My 66 Years In The Big Leagues

By

Connie Mack

(Manager Of The Philadelphia A's For 50 Years)

CHAPTER 1
The First 100 Years Are The Hardest

I have had my share of cheers and jeers. They have called me Mr. Baseball, the Grand Old Man of Baseball, and many things unprintable. But if I were to write my own epitaph it would read, 'He loved his God, his home, his country, his fellow men and baseball.'"

By the grace of God, if He so wills it, I enter my ninetieth year on December 23, 1952, with only ten years to go to cross the home place of the century mark. Whether I make it depends on the decision of the Great Umpire who sooner or later calls us "out."

The scoreboard at the moment says: "Two strikes — three balls." Father Time is in the pitcher's box.

There is gratitude in my heart for having been privileged to take part in the development of America's national game. I have seen it rise from the cow pastures and sand lots into the greatest game in the world, a game "of, by, and for the people."

I was a boy in the typical American home town of East Brookfield, Massachusetts, a village of little more than 300 population, when the National League was formed seventy-five years ago. I was one of the fathers of the American League when it was organized fifty years ago.

Many happy memories are brought back to me as we celebrate the Diamond Jubilee of the National League, the Golden Jubilee of the American League, and the Fiftieth Anniversary of the National Association of Professional Baseball Players. As baseball years are counted by seasons, these anniversaries all come at the close of the season of 1950.

The Power of Inspiration

Baseball is a powerful inspirational force in American life. It is a training ground for good citizenship. There need be no fear for the future of America so long as we maintain the high standards of good sportsmanship in our national game.

It seems significant to me that while the American people were celebrating the one - hundredth anniversary of our Declaration of Independence, and throngs were gathering at the Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia in 1876, the National League establishing America's national game was born.

It seems equally significant that the American League came in with the twentieth century and its amazing developments. With two great leagues under the American flag, and true to the American system of free enterprise, the natural result has been strong competition for supremacy.

We, however, have handled our problems much more intelligently than the nations who, in their fights for world supremacy, have engaged in two bloody world wars, settling their disputes on battlefields, while we in our national game have settled our disputes peacefully in our World Series.

When I was a young fellow of but seventy - three, my friends began to remind me that I had passed the alloted threescore and ten years and that the time had come for me to write my autobiography.

I succumbed to their entreaties to the extent of a series of personal reminiscences that appeared in The Saturday Evening Post under the title: "Life Begins at Seventy-Three." I now look back on these as the "follies of youth," for since that time I have reached, I hope, the discretion of maturity.

When a man is approaching his ninetieth year he begins to gather wisdom. His opinions have taken or substantial form and he is beginning to see the world as it is. As I look about me on the wonders of life, the magnitude of God's creation, I realize the infinite purpose behind it.

An old New England neighbor once declared: "The only improvement I could make on God would be to make good health instead of disease contagious." He too was shortsighted, for good health is contagious and disease is the exception. Millions of us are in perfect health, while a small percentage of us are in bad health.

I am more inclined to agree with the man who said: "The only change I would make in God's plan would be for us to grow younger each year rather than older. We waste too much of our youth in growing old."

We Live in a Marvelous Age

When I look around me and recall that I was here before most of our modern inventions, I begin to feel as old as Methuselah. I was here before the telephone, the automobile, motion pictures, the airplane, and long before the radio. I came when railroads and the telegraph were new.

It was in my first year of professional baseball that somebody invented the fountain pen, and it was then that the first electric trolley cars began to run. I was playing with the Washington Senators when somebody invented the adding machine and photographic films. I was with the Pittsburgh Pirates when somebody invented photo-engraving, and our newspapers first printed actual news photographs. Before that the only pictures we ever saw were old woodcuts or line drawings. It was quite a sensation to us when the horseless carriage came along.

We were just starting to win pennants with our Philadelphia Athletics when the Wright Brothers made their first successful flight in an airplane. It didn't create nearly so much excitement as our winning our first pennant. If anybody had suggested television to us then, we should have considered the person crazy.

It had never occurred to me at seventy-three, when I wrote the Post story, that I would ever be the author of a book. Well, here it is—believe it or not. When I heard about young people in their twenties writing their autobiographies, I decided that it was the duty of any man approaching his ninetieth year to tell how he did it.

In the vigor of youth as an octogenarian about to become a nonagenarian (and perhaps a centenarian) I am enjoying my debut as a young author. Moreover, as a man of Irish blood, I do it with a sense of humor.

If it is true that old men like to write about the follies of their youth to amuse us, then my recollections may not amuse you, for my follies, as follies are known, have been few. I have led a very exciting life without any false stimulation; neither do I smoke or use profanity. I do not state this as a virtue, but as a fact. And I have known no dull moments. Certainly I have been in love, and I married both girls— but not at the same time!

Now nearing my eighty-ninth year I am still in love—in love with my family, in love with my country, and in love with baseball.

ANNOUNCEMENT

For many years now my friends, the sports writers, have been speculating about when I will retire from baseball. I guess I should have done so many years ago, but being a man whose life is so absorbed by baseball, it has been hard for me to make this decision. I am still in fine health, I enjoy the work and up to now I would have been lost without the work on the bench.

But you have to make the break sometimes and this 1950 season seems to be the most logical time. It will be a most strenuous year for me and, when it is over, I will consider that I have earned a rest from the vigorous activities of a long life.

I am therefore able to announce,

It sounds like a plot out of a novel and Freddie, an ex - sailor from Harrisburg, Pa., hopes to add the upset ending. The odds are 8 to 1 that he won't.

Brown - haired, 26-year-old Freddie boxed with Charles when the 28-year-old Cincinnati Negro was tuning up for his title defense against California's Pat Valentino ast October.

Beshore says he left the camp with the feeling that he could take the champion if he ever got the chance.

He's getting the chance Wednesday. For a while, though, it looked as if fate was going to turn the other way on him. Beshore and Charles originally were scheduled to meet Feb. 28. Four days before

In the third set with Miss Moran serving, the Santa Monica miss drove Mrs. Todd's return out of bounds. When the score was announced as 15-all instead of 30-love in favor of Miss Moran, the latter seemed to lose all interest.

"I threw the last set away," Miss Moran said.

SNEAD UPS GREENSBORO LEAD TO 3 STROKES

HARRISON FIRES 66 TO PULL INTO RUNNER-UP SPOT

Clayton Heafner Slumps To Fall Into Fifth Place Tie With Burke

B KEN ALYTA

GREENSBORO, N. C., March 25. —(AP)— Par golf was good enough for Sam Snead to boost his Greensboro Open Golf Tournament lead to three strokes at the halfway mark today.

The slamming man from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., matched par on each nine for a 35-35—70 to go along with a first round 66 to lead the field with 136 going into tomorrow's final 36 holes in this $10,000 test over the Sedgefield Country Club's 6,720-yard course.

E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, veteran Arkansas traveler, campaigning out of St. Andrews, Ill., zoomed into second place, three strokes away, on the strength of the day's best round, a 33-33—66. He cut seven strokes from his first day 73.

Sharing third place at 140 were Chandler Harper, Portsmouth, Va., and Johnny Palmer, Badin, N. C., each had his second straight par 70.

Clayton Heafner, Charlotte, who began the day a stroke out of first place, slumped to 74 and a fifth place tie with Jack Burke, Jr., White Plains, N. Y., at 141. Burke had 72.

Most of the top challengers on the basis of the first round scores, floundered despite perfect playing conditions. They just didn't have the long tee and iron shots to overtake Snead, seeking his fourth title here in 11 years.

Snead balanced an over par hole with a birdie on each nine for a pair of 35s. On 18 his 15-foot putt for an eagle three was short and he closed with a birdie.

Harrison, had the hottest putter of the tournament working for him. The Dutchman canned a 50-footer on two and another on 12 for two of his five birdies. His only venture over par came on the eighth when he took a five after putting a ball into the water.

He got that back on 12 with his long putt and on 16 dropped one from 15 feet.

Sixty two players qualified for tomorrow's final play, with 143 the qualifying limit.

However, all Carolinas and Virginia pros will be eligible to compete for the usual added money for their group.

Top amateurs were Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ohio, and P. J. Boatwright, of Spartanburg, S. C., at 145. Stranahan had 72 today, Boatwright was a stroke lower.

Most of the low scorers of yesterday had their troubles today. Paul O5Leary, of Bismarck, N. D., who started the round in third place with 68, skidded to 77 for 145.

Milon Marusic, Albany, N. Y., and Skip Alexander, Knoxville, Tenn., both blew from 69 to 76. Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago dropped from 70 to 77 and Jimmy Clark, Huntington Beach, Calif., toppled from 70 to 76.

Bayou DeSiard Golf Course Will Be Expanded To 18-Hole Layout

The Bayou DeSiard Country Club has retained the services of Perry Maxwell, nationally known golf course architect of Tulsa, Okla., to design a new 18-hole golf course for the recently constructed Country Club here, it was announced yesterday.

Maxwell arrived in Mornoe Friday and has already started work on the project.

The present nine-hole course will be extended by the addition of another nine holes, giving the club a full length championship 18-hole course. When completed, this will be the only 18 hole golf layout in northeast Louisiana.

Maxwell has built 70 golf courses in the last 25 years, among which are included many of the country's best known courses, such as Colonial Golf Club at Fort Worth, Tex.; Grand Hotel course at Paint Clear, Ala.; University of Oklahoma layout at Norman, Okla.; Nichols Hills at Oklahoma City, and many others.

At a meeting of the Bayou DeSiard greens committee Friday afternoon, Maxwell entered into a contract with the club. Work will begin on the course as soon as the new design is approved. The additional nine holes will be built in a heavily wooded area adjoining the present course.

GIRLS TEAM WITH MEN FOR FEATURE RELAY SCRAMBLE

Beverly Lehmer, Marilyn Martin, Jack Curtis, Bill Steddum On Card

The girls will come back to Gus Kallio's Arena Tuesday night to match their skill with the men in a mixed tag team scramble that features Jack Curtis, "Wild Bill" Steddum, and a pair of girls—Beverly Lehmer, Omaha, Neb., and Marilyn Martin, Los Angeles, Calif.

Promoter Kallin, who has promoted just about every type of known wrestling show during his ten years here, is matching men and women for the first time.

"I learned they had a match of this type in New Orleans recently that went over big. So I'm going to promote one here to see how it works," Promoter Kallio said last night.

Miss Lehmer, coming here for the first time, will be paired with Steddum, the rowdy Texan, against the combination of Curtis, former world's light heavyweight champ from Vicksburg, Miss., and Miss Martin who last Tuesday night defeated Millie Stafford, Racine, Wis., in a girls' match here.

A special event match has also been scheduled for Charlie Laye, also an ex-champ, and "Black Phantom," the hooded matman who is currently giving Steddum a close race for honors as the southern circuit's No. 1 villain. Kallio said tag feature wrestlers would also get tuneups in one-fall preliminaries, beginning at 8 o'clock.

Curtis, who had previously agreed to wrestle here Tuesday with any opponent Kallio can secure, still doesn't know he's matched in the affair with the girls, Kallio said, but Steddum seemed to think it funny.

"When I asked Steddum if he would consider a tag match with girls, he laughed like he thought I was kidding," Kallio declared. "Finally I convinced him I was serious about the business, and he finally consented."

Kallio said Miss Martin had requested Henry Harrell, Black Phantom, or Charlie Laye be signed as her partner.

"But I already had Curtis picked for the date and figured he would be a better drawing card," Kallio said. "But if Curtis backs out when he learns about the girls, we can still arrange a good card with Laye or Phantom moving into the tag picture. However, I believe Curtis will go through with the assignment."

The tag feature and the Laye-Phantom "special event" will have time limits of an hour and fifteen minutes, two falls to win.

Bill Barney, only licensed referee in the Twin Cities, will handle the matches, and the "special" admission prices will be in effect, $2.00 ringside, $1.50 general admission, and 75 cents for children under 15 years of age.

Kallio said he expected another large crowd and has taken steps to better attend his customers this week. Two ticket offices will be set up to facilitate the flow of customers through the doors. The regular ticket door will be for ringside customers, and general admissions will use the center door.

Carolina Cup Steeplechase Is Taken By Flare Flight

CAMDEN, S. C., March 25. — (AP) — Flare Flight, eight-year-old bay gelding sporting the racing colors of Alfred M. Hunt of Pittsburgh, Pa., won the 18th renewal of the Carolina Cup Steeplechase here today before a record crowd of more than 15,000.

Flare Flight took the lead at the start and never was headed. Grover Stephens of Ligonier, Pa., rode a masterful race astride him.

Flare Flight, finishing six lengths ahead of Royal Mission, owned by Lee Chandler, 3rd, of Ligonier, Pa., covered the three-mile timber course in 7:55 2-5.

The favorite, Some Gold, owned by Paul Butler of Hinsdale, Ill., was third, a half-length behind Rayol Mission.

L. T. I. BASEBALL, SOFTBALL BEGINS

Pelican Basketball Lettermen Also Named By Principal Youngblood

Having completed one of their most successful seasons in basketball, the Louisiana Training Institute Pelicans have begun training in baseball, track, and softball.

In the season just completed the Pelicans ran up 26 victories against only six defeats against high school and Recreation Junior League competition, winning the 1st place trophy in the Junior League.

Principal Kermit Youngblood last night announced that the following boys had earned letters for the varsity squad:

Jerry Lagrange, Bill Moncrief, Robert Barrios, Charles Carroll, Peter Pugh, Henry Manual, Leon Maas, and Gilbert Deese. The following boys earned Midget monograms: Wiltz Rock, Kenneth Crochet, Kenneth Welch, Addison Carrier, Odis Kirk, Vincent Bonomo, and Joe Celestine. The Midgets sported an inexperienced team this season and finished in the third spot in the Recreation departments league for the smaller boys.

Talent for the coming baseball season is somewhat better than usual as there are several boys available who have had previous experience at the local school. Boys in this category include Lagrange, who can work on either end of a battery; Deese, who played some at first and catcher last year; Pugh, infield and catcher; Walter Leone, Bill Moncrief, and Carroll, outfielders; and Barrios, Manual, and Ottis Odom, infielders. The track prospects are somewhat slimmer as there are only three lettermen from the team that took second place at the North Louisiana rally at Louisiana Tech last year in Class C. They are Lagrange, sprints and relays; Odom, javelin thrower; and Pugh, broad jump and hop, step, and jump.

Practice also began this week for the grammar school softball leagues which open the first of April for sixth and seventh grade teams of local grammar schools, sponsored by the Monroe Recreation department. The Junior Pels won the sixth grade trophy last year, and lost out in the final playoffs of the seventh grade league to the Millsaps School of West Monroe.

Principal Youngblood stated that games are being sought for the baseball and softball teams, and any teams interested in playing the locals are urged to contact him.

M'NEILL, CHAFFEE WIN NET CROWNS

Kovaleski No Match For Veteran In Men's Section Of Indoor Meet

NEW YORK, March 25. — (AP) — Don McNeill of New York, and Nancy Chaffee of Ventura, Calif., today won the singles titles in the National Indoor Tennis Championships.

McNeill, winner of these laurels 12 years ago and the 1940 champ at Forest Hills, was too smart for Fred Kovaleski of Hamtramck, Mich., beating the former William and Mary College star 11-9, 4-6, 6-2, 6-2.

Miss Chaffee added the singles crown to the mixed and women's doubles titles she won last night. The 21-year-old California girl, unranked because of illness last summer, defeated Althea Gibson, first Negro ever to be a finalist, 6-0, 6-2, in a 40-minute finale.

The Gibson girl, from New York, is the current eastern indoor champ.

Gertrude Moran of Santa Monica, Calif., now on a tour, won the women's indoor title last year while Pancho Gonzales, now a pro, took the 1949 men's crown.

Kovaleski started his bid in the final just 13 hours after leaving the court at 1:15 a.m. finishing up last night's marathon program.

His last night's play obviously took plenty out of the 25-year-old former National Public Park champion who, after the first two hard fought sets with McNeill, lost the steam in his service and the spring his legs.

McNeill, who followed his 1938 indoor victory with runner-up performances to Bobby Riggs in 1940 and to Pancho Gonzales in 1946, used a vicious backhand and accurate passing shot to keep Kovaleski on the run.

For two sets, it was a fight of long exchanges, once the services could be put in play.

Kovaleski fought off five McNeill game points to hold a 14-point opening game in the third set but in the final McNeill hurred into a 4-0 lead against a very tired Kovaleski.

Santa Clara's new football coach has a great deal in common with his predecessor, Len Casanova. Both are former prep mentors, both served as officers in the U. S. Navy, both are T-formation advocates, both are fathers of two daughters.

West Monroe Clubs Will Be Busy Today

West Monroe's two entries in the Louisiana Delta Baseball League will be busy today, one in a tryout camp and the other in a exhibition game.

While the West Monroe Volunteers are holding a practice session at Selman Field, the Rebels of Manager "Lefty" Counts will appear at Calhoun in an exhibition game at 2:30 o'clock with the Calhoun club, also a member of the Delta loop.

Manager Counts last night said any players desiring to work with the Rebels be on hand at 1 o'clock this afternoon at Reef's Cafe, West Monroe. The club will meet there before traveling on to Calhoun.

The Volunteers are also inviting prospective talent to meet with them at Selman Field.

Ohio State Still Rules N.C.A.A. Swimming Ranks

COLUMBUS, O., March 25.—(AP)— Ohio State retained its N. C. A. A. swimming championship tonight against the bids of strong teams from Yale Michigan and Iowa.

Yale's 300-yard Medley relay team polished off the second place in the final event by setting a new N. C. A. A. meet record of 2:51.2.

The Yale combination of backstroker Albert Rackiewich, breaststroker Robert Essert and freestyler Raymond Reid jumped to a fast lead and never was headed. Reid still was moving away from the field when he touched the end of the pool at the finish.

Ohio state counted a winning total of 64 points.

LAUREL FEATURE WON BY MAGNET, LITTLE HARP 3RD

Record Crowd Greets Return Of Horse Racing To Maryland

By George Bowen

LAUREL, Md., March 25. — (AP) — One of the biggest crowds in Laurel's history watched W. P. Taylor's Magnet win the featured event on today's opening card of the Maryland 1950 horse racing season.

The switch in the spring opening from Bowie to Laurel was greeted enthusiastically by 21,681 fans who braved a chilling wind. The record attendance at this 39-year old track is 23,749 set in 1945.

The big turnout bet a healthy total of $966,467, showing the Maryland Jockey Club moved smartly in grabbing the first race meeting in the middle Atlantic states.

Last year Laurel betting on opening day amounted to $767,578 and averaged only $617,619 during the fall.

The 4-year-old Magnet came north for the Capital Handicap with three triumphs in six starts at New Orleans Fair Grounds. But Maryland betters overlooked him in favor of their local pride, Little Harp. The winner, owned by W. P. Taylor of Houston, Tex., returned $22.00 for each deuce bet.

Little Harp owned by Mrs. James McGee, ran like the favorite for most of the six furlong dash. But after leading from shortly after the break, Little Harp faltered in the last 50 yards.

Jockey Raymond Shufelt moved fast then with Magnet and drove under the wire three-quarters of a length to the good of Little Harp. Risk-A-Whirl took third place ahead of four other starters.

The Capitol Purse was worth $5,625 raising Magnet's earnings this year to $11,625. The winning time on a heavy track was 1.16 4-5.

Jockey Ira Hanford booted Little Harp to a lead of a length and a half as the field ran down the backstretch to the first turn. Challenging all the way was Risk-A-Whril with Jockey Mike Bastile aboard while Magnet was held in third and fourth place.

When the pack straightened out for the run for home, Magnet moved up to second for his winning bid.

The feature was typical of the juicy odds returned lucky bettors. The daily double gave many a bundle to start off the 12-day meetpng, returning $516.60 for $2. There were 100 tickets sold on the winning combination of Jones Reward, paying $33.20, and straight and Glory Be, a $16.60 winner.

Other records were hung up by Minnesota's Spring Medley and two-mile relay team.

The Sprint Medley foursome of Paul Neff, Dick Gregory, Tom Mason and Bill Schimmel sped the distance in three minutes, 31.8 seconds. In this unusual event the first man runs a quarter of a mile, the second and third 220 yards each and the fourth a half mile.

The record setting two-mile relay team marked up a time of seven minutes. 53.4 seconds. The team included Ron Barnes, Walt Ostrem, Schimmel and Dick Kilty.

Minnesota also claimed first places in the hundred yard dash, 120 high hurdles and pole vault.

Georgia Tech was a double winner taking the mile and 440-yard relays. Auburn with Miler Whitey Overton kicking up the winning margin nosed Maryland in the distance Medley relay.

Henry Poss of Duke gave his team a first in the broad jump.

EZZARD

the fight, Charles claimed a rib injury and the bout was postponed.

But the state is all set now for Charles' third title defense and his second in the state where he is not recognized as champion.

Charles won N. B. A. recognition as Joe Louis' successor when he outpointed Jersey Joe Walcott in a 15-round playoff in Chicago last June. New York doesn't acknowledge anyone as champ at the moment.

Since then Ezzard has put his crown up for grabs twice. He stopped Gus Lesnevich, the former light heavyweight king in 10 rounds in New York last August and kayoed Valentino in eight in San Francisco Oct. 14. Charles hasn't done any fighting since then outside of exhibition bouts.

Despite his idleness he's a prohibitive choice and will have to stow Beshore, a virtual unknown in the east, to maintain his prestige.

The champ certainly can't add to his stature by beating Beshore. Freddie "earned" his title shot by losing two close ten rounders in this city to contender Lee Oma in December and January. He had compiled a fair record on the Pacific coast.

A mediocre performance by Charles would be reflected in the gate receipts of any June outdoor bout he is signed for — providing he gets past Beshore, of course.

On Wednesday night, Charles can pick up around $25,000 if the gate hits the $85,000 mark optimistically predicted by promoter Dewey Michaels of the Fairview A. C. Michaels figures on a sell-out of the Municipal Auditorium's 13,000 seats.

The fight will not be broadcast or televised.

Ezzard is down for 40 per cent of the net gate and Beshore is marked in for 17 1-2. Beshore could collect close to $11,000 which still is a pretty good cut for the one-time gob.

Beshore, a busy, crowding body puncher, is determined to cash in on the unexpected opportunity.

"I realize that some guys wait all their lives for a shot at the heavyweight championship and never get it," said Freddie. "I'm pretty lucky to get the shot and you can bet I won't blow it if I can help it."

He has been boxing since 1946 when he left the navy. His record shows 26 victories, six losses and one draw. He was stopped in one heat by Bill McClure and in five by Francisco De La Cruz, whoever they are, in 1947.

Charles, has won 66, lost five and drawn once. He's got an 18-fight winning streak going, including his knockout wins over Lesnevich and Valentino.

CHICAGO, March 25.—(AP)—Halfback Albert Campana of Youngstown (Ohio) College, who gained Little All-American recognition the last three seasons, was signed today by the Chicago Bears of the National Football League.

In four seasons at Youngstown, 190-pound Campana averaged six yards per ball-carrying try and scored 29 touchdowns. Owner-Coach George Halas of the Bears described Campana, 23, as "an exceptional runner, blocker and defensive back.

In complete accord, my associates in the Mack and Shibe families have begun to prepare the way for my retirement. While retaining the presidency for the time being, I have stepped out as treasurer, turning the financial tasks over to my son, Connie Mack, Jr., who has been assistant treasurer since 1938. My son Roy Mack remains as vice president. Our board of directors, with the exception of the late Robert J Schroeder, remains unchanged: Roy, Earle, Connie, Jr., Benjamin Shibe Macfarland.

My Shibe partners are in active service. Benjamin Shibe Macfarland, grandson of our club's first president, who has been the snior road secretary in the American League in years of service, has been assicoated with the A's since boyhood. He is now secretary of our club, with his nephew, twenty-two-year-old Frank Macfarland, Jr., succeeding him as road secretary. Frank Macfarland, Sr., is now our assistant treasurer.

It is my desire always to have a Mack-Shibe combination in our national game. For this purpose I have trained my sons to keep the tradition going, and I hope they will train their sons to follow in the path of their grandfather—and so on all through the Mack line.

My son Earle will succeed me as manager of the Phiiadelphia Athletics. My sons Roy and Connie, Jr., will be associated in the business and the financial operations. Earle Mack started about 1913 and played his first game as catcher with the A's when Coombs and Plank were pitching. At bat he got a single and a three-bagger and outhit any man in our club that day. And he was a good first baseman.

His managerial experience has covered many years as my assistant, and his previous experience was as manager of the Raleigh, North Carolina, club for three years, from 1913-1915. In 1917 he became manager of the Charlotte team in the North Carolina League; later the same year he was made manager of the Hanover team in the Blue Ridge League.

In 1920-22 he managed the Moline, Illinois, team and went from there to the Martinsburg club in the Blue Ridge League, and won the championship. I called him to Philadelphia in 1924, and he has been the assistant manager of the A's for twenty-six years.

My son Roy never played baseball, but has become an expert in the business office. Connie, Jr., my youngest son, is interested in office administration. He played on his Germantown Academy team and then starred with Duke University but later became a coach. The Mack boys are all "chips off the old block."

Some people may charge me with forming a dynasty in our national game. Call it what you will, I assure you that the Macks and Shibes are imbued with the spirit of American democracy and will always remain true to the best traditions of American sportsmanship

It's Great To Be Alive

Again let me say that it is grand to be alive on these Diamond and Golden Jubilees of our national game. Today baseball has reached tremendous proportions. Its future is assured on a sound financial basis. It offers unlimited opportunities to young men with athletic ability.

In 1949 more than 62,000,000 people paid admissions to witness the skill of the professional players. About 20,000,000 of these attended the games of the National and American Leagues, over 41,000,000 more attended games in the minor leagues.

Add to these millions more who eagerly followed the games over radio and television, and you begin to appreciate what baseball is doing for the American people—millions of men, women, and children, finding recretation and exhilaration in our national game.

How many professional baseball games have been played throughout the country since I became manager of the Philadelphia Athletics? It has been conservatively estimated that more than 1,000,000 games have been played in organized baseball since baseball began.

We now have two major leagues and more than fifty minor leagues. These are playing some 60,000 games a year. That means that at the present rate they will play 3,000,000 games or more during the next fifty years.

Our yearly attendance will increase every year. At the present rate, the grand total during the next fifty years may reach 310,000,000—twice the present population of the United States.

This is a wonderful world, filled with wonderful people and, although I shall not be here to see if my predictions prove true, I shall stay here as long as the great commissioner of time will renew my yearly contracts.

While these three-quarter century and half-century records are completed at the close of the 1950 playing season, the baseball world decided to hold year-long jubilee celebrations throughout 1951, starting the next great era in national baseball. The two major leagues, all the minor leagues, the American Legion Junior clubs, and the sand-lot teams will join in the festivities.

LOUISIANA OIL AND GAS NEWS

Condition Of Oil Stocks Reported 'Best In Weeks'

By Max B .Skelton

HOUSTON, March 25.—(AP)—Oil industry stocks are in their best condition in many weeks.

Gasoline, the only importat exception in recent weeks, has joined other commodities in a downward trend.

After 16 consecutive weekly increases, gasoline stocks last week dropped slightly to 135,284,000 barrels. The heavy consuming season, normally considered to start April 1, is just around the corner.

Kerosene, light fuel and heavy fuel oil stocks totaled 98,500,000 barrels, compared to a year earlier figure of 127,400,000.

A year ago stored gasoline amounted to 127,300,000 barrels.

Crude oil in above ground storage also continues its steady declines, dropping to 245,702,000 barrels on March 11. This compares to 254,449,000 on December 31 and 275,190,000 last May 28.

Soaring crude figures last year were a primary factor in cutbacks in production allowables. As 1950 began, crude stocks were falling but gasoline was climbing rapidly — 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 barrels a week — and the cutbacks continued.

Economists are now estimating, however, 1950 gasoline demand is leading 1949 by from 3 to 5 per cent.

A mild 1948-49 winter season has caused kerosene and heating oils stocks also to jump last year while the industry was worrying about market demand and crude production slumps.

These commodities now are considerably below storage figures of a year ago — kerosene by 5,000,000 barrels, light fuel oil by 7,000,000 and heavy fuel oil by 18,000,000. This more than offsets the heavy gasoline climb.

A recent American Petroleum Institute report places 1949 crude production at 1,818,800,000 barrels. Additions to proven crude reserves over 1948 totaled 1,369,045,000.

Reserves declined in nine states — Arkansas by 2,500,000 barrels, Colorado by 20,600,000, Kentucky by 3,000,000, Michigan by 2,800,000 Montana by 6,500,000, New York by 4,216,000, Ohio by 800,000, Pennsylvania by 6,400,000, and Wyoming by 24,185,000.

Increased reserves in 13 states ranged from 750,000 barrels in Nebraska to 1,025,500,000 in Texas.

Texas and Louisiana this week increased crude oil production allowables for April — Texas by 130,376 barrels daily,, Louisiana by 1,659.

Texas crude purchasers last week told the state's oil and gas regulatory body market conditions have improved. They predicted Texas would lose markets to other states if April Texas allowables were not placed higher than March.

The commission's new April order does not give the purchasers everything they sought but it does aid flush production fields.

A new proration formula adopted with the March order was based on well depth and acreage, with mer's — maximum efficient rates of operation without waste — as a ceiling.

This cut some high mer fields by as much as 65 per cent.

After listening to protests at its April hearing last week, an mer factor was added to the new formula.

April's allowables will be based on depth and acreage, but only part — 44,000 barrels — of the anticipated demand increase will be distributed statewide in this manner.

Another 86,000 barrels in estimated new demand go to 134 fields slashed sharply in the March order. These are the fields most capable of producing more oil.

The April Texas allowable will be 2,088,722 barrels daily, 130,376 above the March 18 average.

Louisiana's April allowable calls for 536,528 barrels daily, compared to March's 534,869. Gross April production is estimated at 513,528, compared to a March estimate of 502,369.

American Petroleum Institute reports place actual Texas crude production for the week ending March 18 at 1,872,350 barrels daily, Louisiana at 528,850.

Crude Oil Production In U. S. Shows Increase

TULSA, Okla., March 25. —(AP)— After two straight weeks of losses, the country's daily crude oil production came back during the week ended March 18 to show a gain of 14,825 barrels, the oil and gas journal reported.

The journal figured the total daily average production at 4,776,550 barrels.

Major increases included Kansas up 8,550 barrels to 259,700 barrels; Wyoming, up 3,800 barrels to 159,000; Mississippi, 3,250 to 97,000; Colorado, 2,000 to 59,900, the eastern fields, 1,150 to 56,800, and Alabama, 900 to 2,650.

Oklahoma, Montana and Utah eached gained 600 barrels. Oklahoma's total was 418,650 barrels, Montana's 24,100, and Utah's 2,900. Arkansas increased 300 barrels to 80,700.

Principal losses were in Illinois, down 3,200 barrels to 177,800; Michigan, off 1,700 to 43,900; and California and Indiana, each down 900 barrels to 863,100 and 27,500 barrels, respectively.

Kentucky and Louisiana each dropped 100 barrels, the former to 25,700 and the latter to 506,750. In Florida production slipped by 25 barrels daily to 1,100.

Production was unchanged in Texas, 1,838,450 barrels; New Mexico 129,400, and Nebraska, 1,450.

Hanson Reports Harassing Results Of Spy Allegations

WASHINGTON, March 24. —(AP)— Vigorously reasserting he is innocent, state department official Haldore Hanson today blasted Senator McCarthy (R.-Wis.) for calling him pro-Communist. Hanson said the charge has touched off unjustified "whisperings of suspicion and hate" against him.

Hanson declared he deeply resents "the false accusations" of McCarthy who he said spoke "irresponsibly and protected by senatorial immunity." Hanson added that as a result of the charges, he and his family "have been subjected to a series of humiliating incidents."

Hanson expressed his criticism of McCarthy in a letter to Senator Tydings (D.-Md.), who heads a senate foreign relations subcomittee investigating McCarthy's contentions that Communists and fellow travelers have infested the state department.

Tydings has announced that Hanson's request for a chance to reply to McCarthy at a public hearing has been granted. He will testify next Tuesday morning.

Hanson, 37, is director of the state department technical staff for President Truman's "point four" program for underdeveloped areas of the world.

On March 13, McCarthy accused him of having pro-Communist proclivities" and called him "a man with a mission—a mission to communize the world."

Hanson, in his letter to Tydings today, noted that he "flatly denied these irresponsible charges" when McCarthy made them.

He added that each official review of his loyalty record has produced a clearance.

Hanson said he wants a public hearing "not only for the purpose of refuting Senator McCarthy's charges, but also in order that I may personally tell you and the other members of the committee what damaging effects such false accusations . . . can have upon an innocent American in his relationships with his neighbors and his community." He added:

"I would like to do anything within my power to prevent others who are innocent from going through such experiences."

In recounting some of the "humiliating incidents" to which he said he and his family have been subjected, Hanson declared:

"Each of these incidents is probably trivial in itself, but shows what a chain reaction such irresponsible charges can have and, I fear, will continue to have.

"For example, a man who feeds cattle on my farm in Virginia has been asked why he continues to work with 'that Communist.' One neighboirng farmer began last week to refer to me as 'that Russian spy.'

"A man near my farm made public remarks which could reflect on my credit standing, an indispensable asset in the cattle business.

"A petition calling my family undesirable and urging that we get out of the community was circulated in a village near my farm. Most people approached refused to sign it. Several of them were good enough to report the story to me.

"I understand a lawyer has now advised the drafter of the petition not to continue his activities."

Hanson said that if those incidents were the work of an occasional gossip he would not dignify them in a letter to the committee.

"But these cumulative actions," he added, "occurred in a decent, educated, church-going community where I have owned a farm for five years, helped others, been helped by them, and enjoyed a reciprocal friendship and respect with many of my neighbors.

"I hold no resentment against those involved in these incidents, but I deeply resent the false accusations of a United States senator, speaking irresponsiblily and protected by senatorial immunity which can start such whisperings of suspicion and hate."

Hanson told Tydings that when McCarthy made his charges, "I pointed out (they) were based solely on my public writings in China 12 years ago, and that he had withheld from your committee and the American public the following facts which are public knowledge:

"First that my assignment to cover the Chinese Communists was as a correspondent for the Associated Press in 1938; second, that the Chinese Communist armies were then under Chiang Kai-Shek's supreme command and were resisting the Japanese invasion; third, that the work of the Chinese guerillas was one of the great news stories of 1938, and I wrote the story as I saw it."

Hanson said he knew, as soon as McCarthy made his charges, that an examination of his record by the committee "could quickly establish the complete falsity" of the charges.

Small Mine Has Pretty Coal Digger

BARNESBORO, Pa., March 25. —(AP)— The little N. & T. Cerankoski mine doesn't dig much coal. But it boasts the prettiest, if not the most unusual digger in the business.

The pit is a two-person operation. Ted Cerankoski does the actual pick and shovel work.

The remainder of the firm's many tasks — operation of the tipple, loading trucks, weighing and delivering —are expertly handled by his wife, comely 28-year-old Naomi Cerankoski.

Clad in a full-length fur coat that has outgrown its social usage, Naomi deftly trundles wheel barrows, wields shovels, pilots trucks and all the other odd jobs that must be done on the surface of a mine.

After her ten-hour stint at the pit, Mrs. Cerankoski reverts to her element.

Besides the normal housewifely duties which she crowds into her evenings, the blonde matron must care for a seven-year-old son.

But she says she enjoys her double role, particularly that of miner.

"I'm not content in doing housework any more after being about the mines so long," she admits. "I like the work at the mines."

The Cerankoski's began their joint business venture six years ago. Ted, a veteran of 20 years in the pits, first took his wife into the firm as a bookkeeper.

"Pretty soon she was doing all kinds of work," he explains.

Now she has a slight edge over him.

And Ted admits Naomi has moved her managerial talents with her from the Cerankoski kitchen.

BRITISH USE STEEL

LONDON — (AP) — A British tire firm has developed a non-skid tire with steel coil springs in place of the usual tread. The springs are embedded in the tire during the vulcanizing process.

The company, (Tyresoles, Ltd.), calls the invention "Wyresoles". Sir Patrick Hamilton, its chairman, said engineers agreed that for safe driving on wet roads the film of water under the tire must be shattered and dispersed quickly.

The company claims the springs do this efficiently.

COTTON

New York

NEW YORK, March 25.—(AP)—Cotton futures, following early easiness which centered mostly in new crop months, turned firm in late dealings today.

Initial selling was attracted to the market by senate approval of a bill to boost the cotton acreage goal by 1,200,000 acres to a total of 22,200,000. The bill now awaits presidential approval.

The covering movement, which was attracted in late dealings, found offerings light.

Futures closed 20 to 35 cents a bale higher than the previous close.

New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, March 25.—(AP)—Cotton futures declined here early today but reacted upward on trade buying and week-end short covering.

Closing prices were steady unchanged to 30 cents a bale higher.

The early sell off was attributed to long liquidation on the passage by the senate of a bill that would increase cotton acreage allotments by approximately 1,200,000 acres.

Trading was quiet during much of the short Saturday session.

Middling 15-16th-inch spot cotton remained unchanged at 31.75 cents a pound. Local sales totalled 238 bales.

CHURCHMEN WILL BE REMEMBERED

Those Persecuted By Communists Will Be Prayed For Today

VATICAN CITY, March 25.—(AP)—Pope Pius XII will lead Roman Catholics throughout the world in prayer tomorrow for Josef Cardinal Mindszenty and other persecuted churchmen — most of them in Communist-dominated lands.

L'Osservatore Romano, the Vatican newspaper, said he may also deliver a pastoral address when he goes into St. Peter's Basilica to lead the crusade of prayer.

The ceremony will be broadcast by the Vatican radio beginning at 4:50 p.m. (10:50 a.m., Eastern Standard Time) on the short waves 31.10 meters, 41.27, 50.26 and the medium wave of 202.

The Pope called in an encyclical two weeks ago to all Catholic bishops for a Passion Sunday crusade of prayer for a new order of "truth, justice and charity" and for "the opportune remedies for the present evils."

He listed among these evils the armaments race, which he said leaves "the souls of all fearful and suspended," the fact that "frequently truth is replaced by lies" and the persecution of the church.

Though he did not mention communism or Russia by name, he deplored that "in not a few countries the rights of God, the church and even of human nature are offended and downtrodden."

Ministers wearing the highest insignia, he said, "are either removed from their seats, exiled and jailed or hindered so they cannot exercise their ministry."

The 1950 issue of the pontifical annual lists nearly all of the Catholic Church's hierarchy in Russia and her satellites as being jailed and exiled, some since 1929.

GET WORK DECORATIONS

WARSAW, Poland —(AP)— The Communist-led Warsaw government, constantly urging more and more work is adding two new decorations to the long list already being awarded to Poles who work the hardest. The new orders are called "Banner of Work" and "Builders of People's Poland".

Much along the lines of the so-called Stakhanovite system in Soviet Russia, directors in all branches of industry are encouraging workers to exceed their production targets.

MISS MARY ANN WELSH BECOMES BRIDE OF FENSKY C. TERZIA, JR.

The First Presbyterian Church was the scene of a beautiful spring wedding on Saturday afternoon, March 18, when Miss Mary Ann Welsh and Fensky Conroe Terzia, Jr., were united in marriage. Dr. Guy M. Hicks, pastor of the First Methodist Church, performed the impressive ceremony which took place at 4 o'clock. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Aubrey Mackaye Pyburn of this city and the late Harvey Lee Welsh, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fensky Conroe Terzia of Monroe.

Arrangements of white stock and gladioli stood against a background of glossy green smilax to form a lovely setting for the exchange of vows. The church was illuminated by the glow of myriad white tapers in tall candelabra which were lighted prior to the ceremony by Theo Terzia and Orlando A. Easterling.

Norman K. Fisher, at the organ, played a program of nuptial music, including the traditional wedding marches for the processional and recessional.

The bride's exquisite wedding gown was of airy white nylon tulle and handmade French lace. The shirred tulle bodice was designed wtih a deep yoke and long sleeves of the tulle, which were accented at the shoulders by small scalloped cap sleeves of the lace. A deep, scalloped peplum of the lace overlaid the full, circular tulle skirt which ended in a graceful train. Her fingertip veil of illusion fell from a high-crowned cap of the lace, and she carried a bouquet of white bride's roses and lilies of the valley tied with white streamers. Her only ornament was a strand of pearls. She was given in marriage by Aubrey Mackaye Pyburn.

Mrs. Charles Coleman Schober, III, of Philadelphia, Pa., was her sister's matron of honor, and the bridesmaids were Mrs. John Bennett Fudickar of Monroe, sister of the bridegroom; Miss Anne Anderson, Miss Mary Margaret Hannah, Mrs. David Kent and Miss Virginia Frederic all of Shreveport.

Their lovely gowns of white organza were enhanced by circular bands embroidered in yellow, and were worn over yellow taffeta with matching taffeta sashes tied in large bows in the back, with streamers extending to the floor. The bodices were styled with high, pointed collars and brief sleeves and the skirts were very full. They wore cloches of yellow horsehair braid trimmed with yellow taffeta bands, and their bouquets of yellow tulips were tied with yellow bows. Short white kid gloves completed their ensembles.

Leo Frank Terzia, Jr., of Monroe served his cousin as best man, and the ushers were Clarence H. Webb, Jr., of Shreveport, and Theo F. Terzia, Orlando A. Easterling, John Ralph Eunson and John Bennett Fudickar, all of Monroe.

Mrs. Pyburn chose for her daughter's wedding a gown of woodland green lace with a hat of matching green trimmed in tulle and natural straw braid. Her corsage was a yellow-throated white orchid. Mrs. Terzia, mother of the bridegroom, wore a dusty rose chiffon dress trimmed in seed pearls and bronze bugle beads, with matching hat and mauve orchid corsage.

The yellow and white motif of the wedding was further carried out in the artistic floral arrangements throughout the Department Club where the reception was held following the ceremony.

Guests were greeted at the door by Mrs. T. Russell Welsh, aunt of the bride and Mrs. Moulton Storey, and were ushered into the foyer where the mantel was adorned with a fan-shaped arrangement of all yellow gladioli, daffodils, ranunculas, acacia and tulips, which was reflected in the mirror above. On either side of the mantel were standards of ferns. Yellow candles burned in a silver candelabrum on the table in the foyer which held the guest book, provided over by Miss Fran Bolton of Alexandria and Miss Frances Peyton.

Throughout the drawing room were decorative bouquets of yellow and white gladioli, tulips, stock and candytuft. The piano held a large silver bowl filled with white tulips and candytuft, and on the mantel was an effective arrangement of white stock. The bride and groom received guests with their parents, and the bridal attendants.

The bare, polished surface of the bride's table in the dining room reflected the glow of white tapers in a handsome branched silver candelabrum, decorated with poufs of white tulle caught with lilies of the valley and fern, which centered the table. At one end was the bride's bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley, and at the other was the beautifully - embossed wedding ring cake. Mrs. Newton Burgess Jackson, Sr., served the cake. An artistic arrangement of white stock, tulips and carnations, in a silver soup tureen, graced the mantel.

Presiding at the punch bowls, which were placed on separate tables in the dining room, were Mrs. Leo F. Terzia, Sr., Mrs. V. H. Reitzell, Mrs. L. F. Terzia, Jr., all of Monroe, and Mrs. Bess J. Coleman, Mrs. Arthur F. Carr and Mrs. E. Marvin Anderson, all of Shreveport. Assisting in the serving courtesies were Miss Lou Williams, Miss Mary Katherine Curtis, Miss Barbara Johnston, Miss Alice Murray, Miss Mary Miles Sharp, Miss Janet Kerlin, Miss Betty Jane Beene, Mrs. William Comegys, Jr., Mrs. Ray O'Brien, Jr., Mrs. Harry Marks, Mrs. Clarence Wells, Miss Pete Garrison, and Mrs. Twain Giddens, Jr.

Other members of the house party included Mrs. J. H. Jordan, Jr., Mrs. Harris Frederic, Mrs. M. B. Hannah, Mrs. L. S. McGee, Mrs. D. M. Pyburn, Mrs. F. N. Stele, Mrs. J. R. Eunson and Miss Patsy Reitzell.

When Mr. and Mrs. Terzia left for their wedding trip to Havana, Cuba, she was wearing a navy blue gabardine suit trimmed in red, navy accessories and a flowered cloche.

Upon their return they will make their home in Bastrop.

Out-of-town guests for the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Talbot and Miss Katherine Talbot of New Orleans; Arthur Lieberman of Grand Rapids, Mich.; Mrs. James Bolton and Miss Fran Bolton of Alexandria, Miss Graham Price of Natchitoches; Mr. and Mrs. William Brantley Jackson of Dallas, Texas; Mr. and Mrs. Hiram C. Pyburn, Miss Lillian Talbot, and Mrs. D. M. Pyburn, all of Ruston; Mr. and Mrs. F. N. Steele, Fred Fudickar, Jr., Miss Rosalind Riley, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Terzia, Sr., Dr. and Mrs. V. H. Reitzell, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Sherrouse, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Easterling, all of Monroe.

Sherrouse P. T. A. Has March Meeting

"Training a Child's Attitudes Through Good Books, Good Music and Good Pictures" was the subject of a very interesting message brought by Miss Julia Wossman to the Sherrouse P. T. A. on Wednesday afternoon at the regular March meeting.

"Miss Julia" stated, in part, that our childrens' attitudes are trained just as our attitudes were. One's attitude toward life is based on a happy childhood. Quoting Angelo Patri, noted child authority, she said, "Give a child something useful, something to cherish — a book; there must be a book. The book will remain to be read again and again."

Our children get the best pictures through nature. Art is also given through children's books. It is not necessary to provide an art course but have beautiful pictures in those first books.

The best music is from songs of the birds and the old spirituals. All southern children should have the richness of the background of the Negro spirituals that sound so close to prayer.

Although books and music are important, attitudes are not formed by these alone, but by being loved as a little child.

During the business session that followed, Mrs. J. D. Kelly, president, announced that Mrs. W. S. Vincent, State P. T. A. president and principal of Sherrouse School, has been officially appointed by the governor as a member of the state planning committee which will participate in the Mid-century White House Conference of Children and Youth. Mrs. Vincent then explained the importance of the working of this committee.

The governor of each state has been asked to set up a planning committee which will be all concerned about education for children. This committee is to find out whether education today is meeting the needs. How we feel toward our fellow man is not in keeping with science and invention. We need to have better schools, teachers, professional people and social workers if we keep up with invention. Parents will have to know more things about their child. The plan also calls for a parish-wide group for, unless community people know if they are giving their children the best and right things, the state cannot know. We really have an opportunity now to speak for ourselves and help with education problems.

A report was given on the Fifth District meeting in Farmerville by Mrs. Leroy Williams and Mrs. Matt Rice. Mrs. W. O. Webb announced that the scrapbook was awarded a "superior" rating and will be submitted for judging at the state convention in April.

Mrs. Matt Rice, member of the nominating committee, reported the following nominees for new officers: president, Mrs. J. Leroy Williams, first vice-president, Mrs. Raymond John; second vice-president, Mrs. Sidney Williams; treasurer, Mrs. E. J. Foster; secretary, Mrs. E. H. Lyons. There being no nominations from the floor, this panel officers was unanimously elected.

Members were reminded of the coming state P. T. A. convention to be held in Monroe. All out-going and in-coming officers were made official delegates to the convention and all other members were urged to attend as many sessions as possible.

In accordance with Mrs. Stringer's suggestion made at the Farmerville meeting, it was agreed that the two functioning study groups will hereafter be called "discussion groups." At this time Mrs. George Pearce, Jr., leader, announced that the elementary discussion group will meet in the home of Mrs. J. Herbert Walker, 209 S. McGuire, on Friday, March 24th at 9:30 a. m. Time of the preschool discussion group will be announced later.

At the conclusion of the meeting refreshments were served by the hospitality committee.

MONROE BRANCH OF A. A. U. W. HAS LUNCHEON AT COUNTRY CLUB

The Monroe branch of the American Association of the University Women held its annual luncheon at the Country Club on Saturday with Dr. Mildred Christian of Sophie Newcomb College as guest speaker. Dr. Julia Hunter was hostess on this occasion and Miss May Coker presided over the meeting.

In a gracious introduction, Mrs. W. R. Hammond presented Dr. Mildred Christian not only as one of the outstanding educators of the south but also as a personification opportunity for women. Dr. Christian, who is now Professor of English at Sophie Newcomb College of Tulane University, in her speech measured up to her introduction in every aspect.

As the subject of her talk, Dr. Christian discussed what she considers the most significant and most worthwhile phase of the entire A. A. U. W. Program. This is the providing of fellowship to make possible further study and have proved themselves experts in their fields of work. While giving credit to other activities, of the A. A. U. W., Dr. Christian stressed the personal appeal to her of the fellowship program because these opportunities for women of genius are not duplicated by any other club or organization.

Dr. Christian gave interesting facts about the 31 talented women from various parts of the world who last year received A. A. U. W. fellowship enabling them to spend a year in study which would benefit countless others. One striking conclusion drawn from the surprisingly diversified fields of study included is that no field of endeavor is now closed to women.

In conclusion Dr. Christian named the features of the fellowship program which most impressed her in her work with the awards. These were the generosity of the grants in money and in spirit; the common sense, thoroughness, and fairness in selecting the winners of the grants from among the many applicants; the genuine democratic spirit of the awards; and the significance of these fellowships to education, to women, to international relations, to civilization, and to areas all over the world.

Members attending the luncheon were: Mrs. Adelia Baylor, Miss Eleona Brinsmade, Mrs. C. E. Buckley, Miss May Clay, Miss May Coker, Mrs. Aimee Cook, Mrs. John Coon, Miss Carrie Dee Drew, Mrs. Norman Edwards, Miss Emma Ferguson, Mrs. W. R. Hannond, Mrs. Marion Hargrove, Mrs. Sarah Hollingsworth, Dr. Julia Hunter, Mrs. D. H. Martin, Miss Leota Martin, Miss Hazel Mitchell, Mrs. Maude Musselwhite, Mrs. Mary Peavy, Miss Ola Mae Pennington, Miss Juanita Porter, Mrs. George Riser, Mrs. Laura Szabo, Mrs. A. E .Tatum, Miss Ina Merle Thomas.

Guests in addition to Dr. Mildred Christian included Mrs. Kennedy Abington, Mrs. J. M. Boyet, Mrs. Malcolm LeFevre, Mrs. S. M. McReynolds, Mrs. Elizabeth Manheim, Mrs. G. S. Manning, and Mrs. A. S. Tidwell.

NEW BOOKS ARE ADDED TO COLLECTION AT PUBLIC LIBRARY

Many new books of fiction have been added to the collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library during the past few weeks. A book which will be widely read and discussed is "The Cardinal" by Henry Morton Robinson. This is a book which has many of the features of A. J. Cronin's writing. It is first rate story telling and characterization and has enormous appeal. It has an immediacy in setting, in problems, in intimate relation to issues with which newspapers and periodical readers are concerned. Also in its spiritual values, the handling of material carries tremendous power of conviction and interpretation and conviction. This is the story of a priest and his career from curate of a small city parish, to the final achievement of Cardinal. The bood has implications that are social, economi, political as well as religious. There's plenty of action in the book and Father Stephen is a vital figure of almost heroic stature.

Followers of the Hornblower stories will welcome the new one called "Mr. Midshipman Hornblower." Mr. Forester has gone back to the early days of Hornblower's entrance into the British Navy. His career was almost ruined at the beginning because he earned the nickname of "The midshipman who was sick at Spithead." However, he quickly erased this memory by engaging in a spectacular duel. Some of the chapters in this book appeared as short stories in the Saturday Evening Post, however if you like Hornblower, don't miss this one.

For a while the market was overcrowded with historical novels. Lately not many have appeared. This month several historical novels have been released by well-known writers in the field "Phantom Fortress" by Bruce Lancaster has for its central character Francis Marion, the Swamp Fox. Many people in this section are proud that one of their ancestors fought with Francis Marion. This is one of the most glorious stories in American history and Mr. Lancaster has done it full justice. Several years ago Jan Westcott wrote a novel called "The Border Lord", dealing with Scotland at the time Mary was queen. His new book "The Hepburn" deals with the same period, especially with the adventures of Patrick Hepburn, a dashing figure of a turbulent period. You will like this. "Bridal Journey" by Dale Van Every is a story of our western frontiers and the men who built them. This is a fast paced adventure story and well worth reading. Lawrence Schoonever is a writer of historical novels who puts a great deal of research behind his work. His "Burnished Blade" which appeared last year was extremely popular. His new novel is called "The Gentle Infidel". This is again laid in the 15th century, but the area involved is the one around Constantinople, where the Turkish and Christian empires touched. This is a story of sheer adventure, highly colored and with a fast pace of story.

Many readers ponder stories with a modern or recent setting. "The Duke's Daughter" by Elizabeth Corbett carries on the story of the characters found in her earlier books, such as "Immortal Helen". "A grove of Fever Trees" is a modern story with the setting in Africa. The author is Dalphne Rooke and the book is well done. "Brat Farrar" by Josephine Tay is a story with an English setting. The characters are well done and the plot is interesting. It appeared in an abreviated form in "The Ladies Home Journal".

"The Shadow of The Peak" by Richard Mason is another story based in the life of a minister. "The Town and The City" by John Kerouac is a long family story, showing the disintegration of a country bred family when confronted with the problems of the city. "Great Day in The Morning" is a glorified western. It is well done and will appeal to everyone who is interested in the history of the old west. "Nothing" by Henry Green is a sophisticated English novel with a modern setting. "The Feast" by Margaret Kennedy is a story dealing with a hotel which was doomed by an overhanging cliff and the guests who were in danger of their lives. There is a suggestion of "The Bridge of San Luis Rey" in this book. This is a haunting sort of story and one that will cause a

MY MAN and YOURS

Margene

By Margene Danch

Bill has had some definite ideas about the up-bringing of the Lawson dog next door.

"Teddy could be as well behaved as the next dog if a firm hand were administered."

To prove his point, he decided to take Teddy for a walk with our baby. Teddy agreed wholeheartedly and they set off. Bill pushed "Nudnick" briskly in the stroller and Teddy bounded joyously ahead. A half hour later, they were back. Bill's face was flushed and I sensed all had not gone well. He soon clarified the situation:

You know what that darn Teddy did? He ran out in the street and chased a hot rod!" Then he added. "The car ran right over him!"

"Good heavens! Any serious results?"

"Yes," Bill said slowly. "The car almost tipped over! Teddy wasn't even hurt! He yiped once and then started chasing birds!" Bill recovered his poise. "We'll walk to the store now. See you later Margene.

Hardly had he stepped out when I heard a motor scooter approaching. (Teddy hates them!) I heard a dog barking madly, the sound of metal upon concrete...a horrible crash and then silence. When I peeked out, I saw an outraged motorcyclist yelling at Bill. The motor scooter was upside down on the curb. Teddy was watching from a safe distance.

It didn't take a detective to figure out what had happened. Teddy had leaped out at the motor-cyclist and frightened him toward the sidewalk. The machine hit the curb and turned over, throwing the rider. He had assumed Bill was Teddy's owner and was now giving him a royal bawling out!

Poor Bill learned the hard way to leave the training of other people's dogs to the "other people!"

Margene.

NEWS FROM THE GIRL SCOUTS

A trip to the E. L. Neville gardens proved to be a beautiful sight to the eyes of Brownies of Troop 10, (Mrs. Arthur Wedemeyer, leader) who enjoyed their stroll among spring beauties of colorful array. Camellias, iris, jonquils and azaleas were the main attraction and so effective were their colors that the leader could not resist taking color photos of the girls standing amidst all this splendor. Another jaunt this troop has made was one to the Butterkrust Bakery, where they arrived just in time to see how the dough is mixed by electric mixers for bread and rolls, also how it is kneaded, mixed and cut for baking, all electrically done. This was extremely fascinating to Troop 10, who took happy leave of the bakery munching on sweet cakes and hot rolls — yummy!

Troop 6, Intermediate, Mrs. Fran J. Bennan, leader, had a wonderful time Friday afternoon after school at a skating party held at Skateland on Louisville Ave. Each troop member invited a guest and enjoyed an energetic afternoon, stopping now and then to indulge in ice — cream and cold drinks. The owners of this skating rink state that in the future any Girl Scout or Brownie Troop wishing to skate may make up a party of not less than 20 girls and skate free of charge, too. Whoa, there! The line forms to the right! First come, first served.

'Spose you noticed that very good picture of Troop 19, Brownies, in the Monroe News — Star Wednesday night — well, to tell the story, these girls, with their many an intelligent question and received just as many answers from Mr. Edward Wnatley, instructor of bioliogical science at Northeast Junior College when they visited the Science building there recently. They saw mounted birds, a mounted Mexican racoon, odd rack formations, deep sea fish, reptiles, Indian relics, and most fascinating of all, a real skeleton! They looked into a microscope at plant and animal life, and, to tell the truth, Mrs. Copeland states, they haven't stopped talking about this visit yet! Isn't it wonderful to be a Brownie? Or a Girl Scout?

Troop 38, Brownies, have invited their parents and friends to their Investiture Ceremony to be held tomorrow afternoon at 3:00 p. m. at Lida Benton School. This school has such a perfect spot for the Brownie ceremony, there in the patio with its lovely flowers and shrubs and to make it extra super perfect, it offers a fish pond made to order for "Twist me and turn me and show me the elf — I looked in the pond and saw myself!"

We're going to see first hand what green thumbs Troop 18 has, because pretty soon their flowers should come popping up like mad! Mrs. Louis Kusin, leader of this troop, took all the girls home with her one recent afternoon, and gave each girl her own tiny plot to plant the seeds of her choice. Soon will come weeding time, and though we've never looked forward to pulling weeds out of our beds, we know 15 Brownies who can hardly wait!

THE REVIEW CLUB MEETS IN HOME OF MRS. F. V. BARNETT

The Review Club met Monday, March 20th, in the home of Mrs. F. V. Barnett. The meeting was opened with the reading of the club collect, followed by a business session conducted by Mrs. W. L. Mitchell, Jr., vice-president.

In observance of Federation Day, Mrs. E. P. Cudd gave a brief history of the Review Club, showing how it became a part of the General Federation of Women's Clubs and discussing the value of the Federation to member clubs, especially the smaller ones, and to the women who belong to them. Mrs. Cudd then conducted a forum on pertinent questions about the organization and management of the General Federation.

Mrs. W. L. Alexander introduced the afternoon's program, which consisted of two novels dealing with the modern educational system. Mrs. Z. J. Byrd discussed "The Golden Net," written by Ruby Redinger, a new American author whose freshness of style and perfection of construction make her well worth watching. This book is an account of the struggle of a young woman scholar to adjust to her career as a teacher in a small co-educational college and of her participation in the many conflicts of a group of highly complex personalities. Through the story we get a good picture of a small college, with its petty jealousies and its removal from the world as it is.

Mrs. A. R. Holloway reviewed Virgil Scott's "The Hickory Stick," the story of a heroic struggle to maintain personal integrity. Doug Harris, an ambitious high school teacher, who got his education the hard way, was disillusioned to learn that most teachers, as well as most people, were ready to compromise their ideals at the drop of the proverbial hat. An idealist himself, Doug was forced by circumstances to make a choice between what was right and what was materially profitable. In the end, he discovered that he could not sell out to a system and go on living in peace with his own conscience. The author is obviously sincere, but he seems to have stacked the cards against Doug, against the schools, and, in the larger sense, against the whole process of living.

At the conclusion of the program Mrs. Barnett served a delicious salad course. Members present were Mrs. W. L. Alexander, Mrs. J. K. Brothers, Jr., Mrs Z. J. Byrd, Mrs. E. P. Cudd, Mrs. W. T. Davis, Mrs. C. P. Gray, Jr., Mrs. Durwood Griffin, Mrs. A. R. Holloway, Mrs. W. L. Mitchell, Jr., Mrs. Sam Smith, Mrs. Lea Thompson, and the hostess.

JUNIOR CHARITY LEAGUE TO PRESENT 'PINOCCHIO' AT NEVILLE AUDITORIUM

The children of Monroe are looking forward to a treat next Friday, March 31, when Suzari Marionettes, one of America's leading puppet companies, come to town. The Suzaris are bringing with them their own puppet-version of a Broadway comedy hit . . . and it's a musical!

This seems to be Broadway's year, both for musicals and for puppets. Suzari Marionettes, who played last season at City Center Theatre in New York, co-billed with Paul Draper and Larry Adler, have taken Broadway's grown-up version of "Pinocchio" and reproduced it faithfully on their own large-sized puppet theatre. This is a replica of a Broadway stage, boasting all the technical effects of the legitimate theatre. "Black light," an under-water ballet scene, with a huge whale, and the appearance on the stage of puppet and human actors at the same time, are a few of the remarkable features of this musical comedy.

The bringing together of traditional puppetry, which has its beginning in the celebrated Commedia dell'Arte, with the technical excellence of modern Broadway theatre, is the unusual achievement of Suzari Marionettes. America's most active puppet company, they now play to audiences of half a million a year in this country and in Canada.

Suzari's director, Miss Dorothy Zaconick, when she was only a youngster, put on a puppet show in a New York department store to earn her passage to Europe, where she studied puppetry with European masters, and gave performances in Prague, Vienna, and many other continental cities.

When the "Three Little Pigs" were famous in America, Miss Zaconick was putting on her own version of the same show in Austria, with pigs looking dangerously like three fascist dictators who had not yet met their Waterloo. Miss Zaconick almost met hers, yet she successfully dodged the Gestapo, and managed to get home safely. It was then that she instituted the "Suzari" Company, named after her favorite puppet clown. The company now occupies its own three-story brick workshop in Manhattan, and has a large and competent staff.

"Pinocchio," which the Suzari company will give here in Neville Auditorium is full of singable tunes that will be remembered by those who attended the Broadway musical. In the well-known story, Pinocchio is a puppet who longs to become a human boy, and finally does. On Broadway, a young man played the parts, both of the puppet and the human boy. But the Suzaris have their own method of transformation. Something of a surprise awaits those who attend his performance next Friday night, 7:30 p.m.

Father's Night Held At Claiborne School

A father's night program was held at the Claiborne School in the third grade room on March 17, at the P. T. A. meeting.

The program was opened with group singing after which the fourth grade children gave a play, "The Little Bear's Chair." The characters in the play were: Mike Wallace, Polly Riser, Lina Berlin, Sarah Heard, Dale Hubbard, Evelyn Beavers, Brinda Gilmore. Mary Steed and Margaret Ann Moore sang, "When Irish Eyes are Smiling", and they were accompanied by Miss Jane Wallace at the piano.

The business session was opened by Mrs. Fred Riser and the treasurer's report was given by Mrs. George Jackson. It was decided that a chicken spaghetti supper be given but the date was undecided. It was voted that a life membership pen be given and a committee was selected to choose the person to whom the pin shall be presented.

The guest speaker, Mr. Mack Avants, was introduced by Miss Marguerite Norris, principal. Mr. Avants discussed building plans and the forthcoming school bond election. After his talk a discussion period was held and questions were asked concerning the points brought out earlier. After the meeting was adjourned the group assembled in the cafeteria for a social hour, during which refreshments were served.

MRS. C. W. EARLE HOSTESS AT READER'S CLIQUE MEETING

The members of the Reader's Clique met Thursday afternoon at the beautiful country home of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Earle's on Clear Lake with Mrs. Oliver Lowery, hostess.

Attractive arrangements of spring flowers were placed at vantage points throughout the reception rooms. Thi. is a meeting that all the members look forward to with great anticipation, as at this time of the year the Earle gardens are in bloom and the beauty is thoroughly enjoyed by all the guests.

The meeting was called to order by the President, Mrs. Sidney Gill, roll call and the reading of the minutes by Mrs. Clay Albright, books were checked and distributed by Mrs. Mike John, Jr.

Mrs. Edwin Crowley, chairman of the Easter Egg project announced that work was progressing on the Easter eggs and quite a few are now ready for sale.

Mrs. Evans Ethridge announced that the Junior Charity League was sponsoring the Marionette show "Pinocchio" on March 31.

At the conclusion of the business meeting Mrs. Ryland introduced Mrs. Earl Stovall, who in her charming manner very interestingly reviewed "The Biography of W. C. Fields" by Robert Louis Hale. She said in part:

"W. C. Fields was born William Claude Duckenfield, April 9, 1879, to parents who imigrated to this country from England in 1870, settling in Philadelphia. There were two brothers and two sisters in the family.

He had a very unhappy childhood, leaving home at the age of eleven years, living in the gutters, stealing and getting into trouble, fighting with other boys, (some attribute his big, red nose to these beatings, while others attribute it to his drinking in later life.)

He had numerous jobs and at fourteen he wanted to go to Atlantic City, so he put on a juggling act to which his friends contributed $100.00. Arriving in Atlantic City he got a job, his manager borrowed the money he had left and never repaid him, so to his dying day Fields would never loan money. At nineteen he was earning $125.00 a week, because of his distrust he would put his money in all the banks under many different names.

He made a trip to Europe and upon his return he married Miss Harriette Hughes of New York City, they had one son, W. C. Fields, Jr., who is now a practicing attorney. Fields and his wife soon separated mostly on account of religion, as she was a very religious person while he had no religion.

In 1936 he went to a Health Resort taking Miss Mickel, his nurse-companion with him, and during this time he made broadcasts with Edgar Bergen then with Lucky Strike. In 1937 he moved from the hospital and made pictures for Universal at $125,000.00 for each picture.

On his 65th birthday he said he was a tired old man and went back to the hospital, where he died on Christmas Day. He called Death the "Old Man in the bright red night gown."

In his will he left both his wife and son $10,000.00 each, other bequeaths and $80,000.00 to establish the "W. C. Fields" college for boys and girls who had no home with the understanding that no religion should be taught. This will was contested by Mrs. Fields, and during this year, he was the forgotten man in the cemetery where no marker marked his grave."

During the conversation hour that followed delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Earle and Mrs. Oliver to:

Mrs. Fred Parrish, Mrs. G. L. Morgan, Mrs. Ivy Jordan, Mrs. Henry Menuet, Mrs. Sidney Gill, Mrs. Clay Albright, Mrs. Burl Hollis, Mrs. J. S. Harbuck, Mrs. R. C. Todd, Mrs. Mike Johns, Jr., Mrs. Edwin Crowley, Mrs. F. T. Wilson, Mrs. Evan Ethridge, Mrs. Stanley Archibald, Mrs. W. M. Ryland, Jr., and guest, Mrs. Earl Stovall.

The table was laid with a red and white checked cloth, centered by a miniature bale of cotton and tiny slave cabin. Down the length of the table were placed boles and leaves and miniature plantation scenes. Kerosene lamps lighted the table. Can Dick Tracy Teach?

Comics May Be Used In Schools At Ingolstadt

By Percy Fant
(Of The Morning World Staff)

Comic characters—the ones in the funnies—are as American as baseball. Take Dagwood and Blondie, Dick Tracy, Flash Gordon, Tarzan, Maggie and Jiggs—they really live in the minds of Americans, especially the kids.

The American imagination is adapted to the unbelievable performances of these comic characters. A quick trip to Mars, such as those taken weekly in the funnies by Flash Gordon, Buck Rogers, and other imaginary space travelers, cultivate foresight into the future and no doubt add something to the imagination of the reader.

The funnies are growing in popularity in the United States. The increased sales of comic books and the insertion of funnies in daily and Sunday newspapers prove that point.

And that popularity has gone another step—even some of the comic characters are being portrayed in the movies by "real live" actors and actresses.

No doubt comics play an important part in American entertainment, relaxation and past-time activity. But Europeans, some of them at least, have never seen a comic book; they aren't as acquainted with the comic heroes and their daily troubles and accomplishments.

A wide-scale introduction of comices to Europe, to Ingolstadt, Germany in particular, is advocated by Camillo Noel, city editor of the Donau Kurier. He has a unique idea and it might help the international feeling between America and Germany by cultivating a common interest among inhabitants of both countries.

Noel proposes this: he says comic books could be used to teach students the English language at Ingolstadt schools. Apparently some Monroyans agree with him. The Civitan Club of Monroe, at a meeting Thursday night, approved a plan whereby local residents will have an opportunity to put old comic books to good use—the ones that have been read and clutter up shelves.

If the comic books, and funny papers, are turned over to the club, the club in turn will mail them to Ingolstadt. A location where local residents may take their "comic magazines for Ingolstadt" will be announced later.

Noel's idea is to "teach German youngsters the English language with a "laugh." It might work. If the young Germans take the language used in the comics seriously though, they may cultivate a large vocabulary of slang expressions, typical of Americans but not exactly what one could call the "Queen's English."

Noel got his idea when young contestants in Ingolstadt failed to enter the Monroe-Ingolstadt International letter-writing contest because they didn't have command of the English language. All entires had to be written in English.

However, now that the local Civitan Club has endorsed a "comic book-to-Ingolstadt" campaign the young Germans, before too long a time, should be quite capable of writing to Americans in a language kids in the U. S. A. can understand best.

Housekeeping Requires Being A Good Electrician

By David G. Bareuther

To be a successful housekeeper, the modern housewife is obliged to be somewhat more of an electrical wizard than Thomas Alva Edison was at the time he invented the electric light.

Modern households can be so packed with new electrical and other gadgets that a woman is expected to know more about mechanical maintenance than any man needs to know about his automobile.

A man can usually pull in at the nearest service station when something goes haywire under the hood of his car.

But a housewife is alone and on her own with a veritable Frankenstein monster, which inventors have jokingly nicknamed the "labor saving" house.

It may save physical labor, all right, but when it comes to mental labor—ask your wife.

Matching her wits against the best brains among advertising men and salesmen, she is expected to be able to accomodate on a breakfast table more gleaming chromium and glass equipment than any ordinary table was intended for.

There could, be for instance, an electric coffee maker, an automatic toaster on a tray with conserves, an electric egg cooker, a bacon grill, an electric fruit juicer, a waffle iron with tray for batter, an electric biscuit warmer, a radio, a table lamp, and in season, an electric fan—and if there still is room for a husband and some children—perhaps an electric cigarette lighter and electric clock would be handy.

April Fool Gadgets Give Laughs. . . Ha!

By Saul Pett

NEW YORK—Oh, this'll fracture you, Laugh? You'll die.

Seems there is a new—ho, ho ho—a new gadget out. Looks like a real fountain—ha, ha, ha—like a real fountain pen. Only you take the top off and it—hee, hee, hee—it explodes! Imagine!

Then there is a new table knife. Looks exactly like any other table knife. But try to spread some butter with it. Just try and the darn thing will collapse! Honest a real knee-slapper!

Can you stand it. Well, just one more. You hold what looks exactly like a pack of chewing gum. Matter of fact, there's a stick sticking out. Offer it to someone. He pulls on it. And water squirts out! All over his hand, his face, April Fool! April Fool! Yuk, yuk!

These are among the newest gadgets available for the practical jokers who will blossom out for this annual frolic. Richard Appel, one of the biggest manufacturers in the field, knows them well.

"Funny thing about the squirting chewing gum," he says. "For years everybody was making squirting gadgets. The ring which which squirts, for example, is 60 years old. Also, lots of people made chewing gum which snaps or explodes. But nobody had thought to make squirting chewing gum until we brought it out. It's a big hit."

You will be glad, or dismayed, to learn that practical jokers are increasing, according to reports reaching Appel. "In time of trouble and tension," he theorizes, "people resort more and more to humor to forget."

Other Appel conclusions:

Americans buy more practical jokes than anybody but sales are weakest in Maine and Vermont. Despite their reputations for being humorless, the British buy a lot of the gadgets when they have the dollars.Latin Americans are great practical jokers and, judging by sales over many years, the "Germans have the worst sense of humor, but there are sour pusses in every country."

Appel's business has been in his family for generations—in fact, since 1852. It operated from Germany until 1937 when, because of Hitler, the firm was moved to this country.

Appel, who is graying, immaculate and rather serious, is the idea man. His guinea pigs are secretaries, tool makers and other people around his plant in lower Manhattan.

"My mind is working night and day on the next gadget," he says. "I watch all of the new practical things, new tableware or pens or pencils that come out. I always think of them in terms of a practical joke.

"Our industry suffers from a lack of real creators. Too many people are thinking only of turning out old gadgets for less money. Thus, they sacrifice realism. But that's tragic. For in this business you have to imitate real things used in everyday life to such perfection that no one will be suspicious."

Among practical jokers, Appel reports, many of the old favorites are still going strong: the fake spilled bottle of ink ("at least 60 years old"); the leaky glass; matches which explode or sprout snakes; tiny pellets which, when placed on a lighted cigar, crate synthetic snow (20 years old); a concealed tube which makes dishes jump; hot toothpicks (with pepper); candy, which, when unwrapped, jumps in all directions, throwing out springs and miscellaneous parts.

Itching powder; sneezing powder; soap which leaves a lather the color of blood; foaming sugar; exploding cigars, cigarets and match boxes; a table spoon with a big hole in it; silverware which explodes and snaps; face cream jars which shoot, snap, explode or eject a snake; and of course, the "hot seat" and the telescope which leaves the viewer with a black eye.

Laugh? You'll die!

ALLIGATOR GETS LAST LAUGH

Shortly after the 'gator (above) was slain, his killer received notice that a game warden had filed charges against him with the district attorney. The little boy in the saddle added to the attraction of the display of the beast held on North Second street. Following the attraction, John Elmendorf, who said he killed him, told a radio interviewer how he did it. The 'gator was said to be eleven feet, four and one-half inches long. He weighed 455 pounds. Elmendorf said he killed him at Calhoun brake. (Staff Photo by Marvin DuBos.)

Gator Killing In Ouachita Unlawful

By Oland Silk
(Of The Morning World Staff)

On looking into this matter of killing alligators in Ouachita parish, several revelations were unveiled, particularly that:

1. It is against the law.

2. They are no more suitable for pets than are those in the newsreels.

3. Some professional wrestlers may tangle with them, but this sport cannot be recommended for the anaemic.

Regarding the first point: Game wardens while enforcing the law must, in addition to running down game violators, have to crack down occasionally on alligator killers in this section of Louisiana. In fourteen other parishes it is open season on the armored beasts.

In the other 50 parishes it is illegal to kill them and has been since 1926. However, during a prescribed period they can be killed. Last year the season on them extended from November 1 until January 1.

Since legislators who were on the scene in 1926 couldn't be located, it took some inquiry to find out the reasons for the discrimination. These reasons were advanced: In the southern parishes, the alligator skin and meat are deemed valuable, some portion of the population deriving a livelihood from said business (one said that alligator meat was better than beefsteak); they are in sufficient number in the southern parishes to prevent anxiety over their becoming extinct any time soon. In the other sections of the state, conservation officers took a dim view of the scarcity of them and were instrumental in getting laws passed protecting them; in addition to that, selling skins and meat of alligators is not a business in those regions where the law protects them; the gator also renders a great service to fishermen by eating gar, who reportedly wreaks havoc with the fish supply.

Warden Collins said there are relatively few 'gators in north Louisiana. He said their hangouts around Monroe are Chenniere lake, Black bayou and Calhoun brake. A number are believed to be in Lafourche swamp.

The fourteen parishes in deep south Louisiana in which 'gator killing is not forbidden are: Orleans, Jefferson, St. Charles, Terrebonne, St. Mary, Iberia, Vermilion, Cameron, St. Tammany, St. Bernard, Plaquemine, Lafourche, St. James and St. John.

A case involving 'gator killing will be held in fourth district court at some future date. John Elmendorf, who said he killed the eleven-foot reptile in the picture above, is under $150 bond. The warrant was served by the sheriff's department. G. M. Martin preferred charges.

In a radio interview, Elmendorf stated that he shot the reptile in Calhoun brake while he and a boy were hunting them in a boat. Elmendorf claimed he shot the 'gator in self-defense.

Alligators have 100 years in which to grow into big, bad beasts. That is the life expectancy of them. They are natives of southeastern United States.

These torpedo-like terrors of the marshlands are the most formidable reptiles in the states. Their water tactics for grabbing a good meal are gruesome. And they are not discriminating in what their diet consists—they have a genuine appetite for human beings.

In the water they approach to kill from under the swimming body of the victim, clamping their huge jaws down and dragging the struggling animal, be it pig, dog or human, to the depths below, turning over and over as they do so.

Judy Greer Has Doll For Each Occasion

Dolly "doings" is all in the day's work and play for Judy Greer, a first grade pupil in the Farmerville School.

With Grandmother Norris to help her design, cut and sew beautiful costumes, Judy's dolls are replicas of the best dressed ladies in America. For that reason her Terry Lee doll won first place in a recent Farmerville School Doll Show sponsored by the first grades.

A lovely doll in blue has the rare distinction of being able to talk about her "operation". She spent several weeks in a New Orleans Doll Hospital. Dolly gossip has it that she had her "face lifted." Truth is, 'she is not as young as she looks.'

Judy's first real doll models her own baby clothes. Other dolls are included in her large collection to which she is adding new characters on every occasion possible.

Judy's chief interest is in foreign and storybook dolls. She never tires of stories about the far off people her dolls symbolize.

She does not believe in keeping her treasured works of art packed away in boxes. Friends who visit her know at once that doll collecting is her hobby. Lovely or unusual dolls greet them from the mantle, piano, console table and other points in the room.

Judy changes her dolls as decorations, much as others change their flowers, to please her moods, which usually go along with special occasions or holidays. During the month of June her brides and their maids are featured. November usually brings out her Indian and Pilgrim dolls. Her smaller dolls, Bob Cratchit and Tiny Tim, the Manger Scene or a combination of them may be used in December. February, the Queen of Hearts and lovely Colonial ladies. March is a time for her Dutch dolls, and so on around the calendar.

Doll enthusiasts claim that doll-appreciation is arriving at the distinction of being classed with art and music appreciation. That being the case, Judy's collection provides a field for the cultivation of deep feeling and sensibility for art.

Rebuilt Town Turns Back Time To Days When West Was Wild

By Merrill Englund

VIRGINIA CITY, Mont.—They're turning back the clock 86 years here—to the days when Virginia City was Montana's territorial capital, jumping-off place for the Alder Gulch gold strike, headquarters of the Vigilantes and "the liveliest town west of St. Louis."

In six years, State Sen. Charles A. Bovey and his wife, Sue, have restored much of the main street.

If that notorious early day bandit, Henry Plummer, were to come back, he'd feel pretty much at home here today.

Plummer—the Vigilantes handed him—could go through the swinging doors into the Bale of Hay Saloon, pound on a bar nearly 100 years sold and demand a slug of whisky, just as he did when he was sheriff of nearby Bannack, while 100 of his road agents terrorized travelers on the mountain trails around the town.

He could eat at the Wells Fargo Coffee Shop, and put up at the Fairweather Inn, named after Bill Fairweather, one of the prospectors who made the original strik at Adler Gulch, only 1 1/2 miles from here.

Bovey—slim, balding, well-to-do ("until I got involved in this"), looked Virginia City over in 1943. Before that he and his wife had built "Old Town," a replica of a frontier village on the fairgrounds at Great Falls.

"I got the idea of setting up a frontier town after visiting Henry Ford's Greenfield Village," Bovey says. "Never did care much for history out of a book—I want it alive, with action and excitement. Have a grudge against museums—things under glass look too dead. They don't mean much."

Virginia City is about 80 miles sautheast of Butte on Montana highway 34. When the Boveys found the Madison County seat town, the historical part of it was busy falling apart. That's all over now.

The main street is Wallace Street—"not named after Henry," says Bovey, "but for an old pioneer." It now includes:

The Fairweather Onn, a two-story hotel, where the only concession to the years has been in the plumbing department.

Rank's Drugstore—oldest in the state—complete with bottles of old medicines, like "Foley's Kidney Remedy," which, according to all the pioneer women's needs—from hair ribbons to false teeth.

Montana's first newspaper plant in Virginia City.

An assay office, where gold was tested. It includes a pair of scales and samples of gold dust.

The Brewery Gardens—a restaration of the original Gilbert Brewery—where tall tales are spun over copper pitchers of beer in the label, is also "good for pinkeye and distemper."

The coffee shop—where buffalo, elk and venison steaks are served.

The Wells Fargo Ticket Office, complete even to an old territorial map of the United States.

A general merchandise store, which carries candle light.

The Montana Post building, where this state's first newspaper was published.

Right at the moment, Bovey is looking for a jail. The original was converted into a house shortly after it was built. "They didn't need much space for a jail in those days," Bovey says, "just one room and a coil of rope." When he finds a jail, he'll move it here.

Instead of a jail, Virginia City had—and has—"Boot Hill," the cemetery where five highwaymen were buried after the Vigilantes hanged them.

Except for the hotel, saloon and coffee shop, most of the establishments on main street are peopled by dummies, dressed to the minutest detail in the clothing of their time.

Next to the Bale of Hay, for example, is a barber shop—where the figure of a barber bends over the wax dummy of a bearded customer. One night, not too long ago, the BH's bartender noticed that a tourist would come in for a quick drink and then leave—to return in a few minutes and repeat the performance.

"What's up?" he finally asked the man.

"I'm waiting for a shave," the man said, "but, gee, it's taking that barber a long time to finish the guy ahead of me."

Bovey wants more live people in his part of town. He's thinking of bringing in a blacksmith and a jeweler. He also has started buliding a small hotel at the nearby ghost town of Nevada City, in Alder Gulch. Then he can run a stagecoach daily the 1 1-2 miles between the two hotels.

Bovey inherited a lot of money made a lot more. He's the son of C. C. Bovey of Minneapolis, director of General Mills. Charley came to Montana in 1926 with orders from his father to live simply.

He went in for wheat, sheep and cattle. He financed his Virginia City venture by selling a cattle ranch, then the sheep ranch—"and Sue keeps reminding me that there's only one ranch left," Bovey says. He has 2,500 acres of wheat near Great Falls.

But Virginia City is beginning to pay out—50,000 tourists visited this town in 1948, and last year they totaled between 80,000 and 100,000. They weren't gypped either. Double rooms, with bath at the Fairweather Inn bring $5 a night. A good steak at the coffee shop goes for $2. A shot of whisky at the Bale of Hay is worth from "one bit, two for two-bits," on up

Bovey and old music box.

Sharp Lawnmower Helps Improve Looks Of Lawi

Spring and fall are the important conditioning and repairing times. Summer—and on—means a weekly cutting treatment and sprinkling when the weather is dry.

The experts agree on few things, but one of them is that grass-seed is best sown in the fall. It is possible to get a good lawn started and to do some patching-up work in the spring, if only to slow down the encroachment of the lawn-lover's scourge, crab grass.

Whole books have been written on the production, care and treatment of lawns, and those who have before them the job of starting a new lawn will do well to read and study a full treatise.

But even the handsomest lawn needs some assists with the coming of spring. Undoubtedly there are some sparsely planted areas which could do with re-seeding. Certainly the whole lawn can do with a healthy fertilizing, even if lime, fertilizer or top-dressing were applied in the fall.

A good commercial fertilizer, applied with a liberal hand will usually turn the trick. The top-dressing of dry, shredded sheep or cow-manure will be wonderful spring tonic every three or four years.

A lawn roller-which is a some-amount of use it will get—is almost essential to produce a good lawn. One rolling in the spring, after the winter accumulation of water has dried or dribbled away, is a must. The roller presses back into the earth the crowns of the little plants which have been heaved out by winter's alternate heat and cold. But rolling the lawn when it is too wet is worse than no rolling at all—go to it when you can pick up a handful of earth and have it crack in the hand, not cling in a muddy mass.

It is almost a complete waste of money to plant good grass seed in the spring. Plant it in April or May and it won't have a chance to get established in the cool weather it likes. If there's emergency re-seeding to be done, clover the best bet.

Sometimes, if last summer' lawn was mostly devoted to weed it is easier and wiser to dig u the whole area and start from th beginning. Take a good look what weeds are growing and yo may have a better idea of what wrong with the soil: A bumpe crop of dock or sorrel shows sou earth—and that means liberal dos ing with ground limestone not t be followed with fertilizer for couple or three weeks). Quantitie of buttercups and ferns show th soil is too moist, and some actio or drainage is indicated.

Good grass requires good soil and the better it is, the better the results. Crabgrass, which has seeds around always, can't make much headway where grass has a good start. It likes sun—and a thick planting of strong grass won't permit this ideal condition.

Give the grass its spring treatment, watch it all summer and eliminate with weed-killer things like dandelion and plantain. Cut it regularly with a sharp mower set to cut two inches from the ground. Then re-seed in the early fall, giving it a chance to become established.

ITALIAN COIN COLLECTION

ROME, —(AP)— The Italin Ministry of Education has inherited one of the world's most valuable collections of coins, but says it cannot find a home for it. It is the 120 000-piece collection of the late King Victor Emmanuel III, who left it behind when he abdicated in 1944. He began collecting coins when he was a boy, and became a leading authority on numismatics.

Right now it is closed up in 28 steel cabinets and 12 cases in the cellars of the Quirinale, former palace and home of the Popes which is now occupied by the president of Italy.

Winnsboro Methodist Preacher Is Listed In "Who's Who"

By Otis Hassell
(Morning World Correspondent)

WINNSBORO, La., March 25.—Rev. W. H. Bengtson, pastor of the First Methodist Church at Winnsboro, has been notified by Bishop Ivan Lee Holt, president of the International Methodist Historical Society, that his record is such that he will be included in "Who's Who in Methodism." This new biographical reference work is being prepared by the International Methodist Historical Society and the editorial board of "Who's Who in America."

This honor accorded Brother "Beng," as he is affectionately known by his many friends, came as no surprise to the people in this community. Although he has been in Winnsboro only ten months, the First Methodist Church has undergone a great change during this time. The church, as one member described it, has been "revitalized."

In addition to being pastor here Rev. Bengtson is also co-pastor of the Methodist-Presbyterian Church at Baskin. He preaches there on alternate Sundays at 9:30 a.m. This early service being necessary in order that he get back to Winnsboro in time to conduct the regular 11 o'clock service.

Rev. Bengtson has a method of delivering his sermons in such a way that he holds the undivided attention of his congregation at all times. Bengtson once said that he didn't mind members of his congregation looking at their watches to see how much longer he was going to preach, but that it did bother him a little when they began to shake or knock on them to see if they had stopped running.

His talks are short and are so interesting that his listeners never even think of looking at a watch. During the past ten months the congregation of the Winnsboro First Methodist Church has been steadily getting larger.

Rev. Bengtson's last appointment was at the First Methodist Church at Welsh, La., where he stayed eight years. This writer hopes that he will better his Welsh record on this appointment and be here longer than eight years.

In addition to preaching at two churches, performing marriages, conducting funerals, visiting the sick and shut-ins and attending the numerous meetings of the boards and organizations of the church, which is a full-time job in any man's language, he still has time to be one of the most active civic leaders in Winnsboro.

The church building has recently undergone extensive repairs which included painting, cleaning and redecorating.

The large basement of the church is used by three different scout organizations. Brother "Beng" is scoutmaster of troop 53. The church basement and kitchen is used at times by the high school, agriculaural organizations, American Legion and last week a school of instruction for census-takers was held there. Monday night is "play night" at the Methodist Church and Brother "Beng" is on hand to lead the young people in a series of entertaining games. This play night is not for Methodists only, but for every young person in Winnsboro.

Reverend Bengtson is a naturalized American citizen. He was born September 5, 1898, in Nortorf, Germany, and came to this country when he was four years old, landing at Galveston, Tex., in 1902. He attended Blinn Memorial College, Grenham, Tex., September, 1916, to June, 1920, and Central Wesleyan College, Warrenton, Mo., September, 1920, to June, 1923. While here he was a member of the student volunteer band and had the South American mission field in view as his objective. He received his A.B. degree in June, 1923. It was while attending this college that he met his future wife, Edna Selma Hake, of Hayleton, Ill. She graduated in 1924 and they were married on November 22, 1925.

REV. W. H. BENGTSON

Rev. and Mrs. Bengtson have four children, two boys and two girls. Robert William, 23, is married, has been licensed to preach and is now attending the Pirkins School of Theology, S. M. U. George Wesley, 19, is a junior at L. S. U. where he is studying forestry and wildlife conservation. The girls, Dorothy Elain, 16, and Margery Jenelle, 14, are students at the Winnsboro High School.

Reverend Bengtson joined the Southern German Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church on trial in November, 1923, and was received into full connection by the Southern German Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church in November, 1925. He was ordained deacon in November, 1925, and was ordained elder December, 1928.

His appointments have been: Meyers Memorial Methodist Episcopal Church, Sealy, Tex., November, 1923, to December, 1932; Eighth Street Methodist Episcopal Church, New Orleans, La., December, 1932, to January 15, 1941; First Methodist Church, Welsh, La., January 15, 1941, to June 15, 1949, and First Methodist Church, Winnsboro, La., June 15, 1949, to date.

Reverend Bengtson served on the statistical staff of German Conference of Methodist Episcopal Church from November, 1924, to December, 1929. He was elected statistician of the Southern Annual Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, December, 1929, and served until that conference was dissolved in view of unification on October, 19, 1939.

He was: President of New Orleans Protestant Ministerial Alliance, 1939; served as conference trustee of the Southern Annual Conference from December 1, 1932, to October 19, 1939; Protestant chaplain of New Orleans Area Boy Scouts of America, 1936-1941; served as delegate to the South Central Jurisdictional Conference held in Oklahoma City, May 28-31, 1940; member of the board of ministerial training of the Louisiana Annual Conference, November, 1940, to June, 1948; trustee, Seashore Methodist Assembly, 1940 to 1942; member of the committee on minimum salaries, 1940 to 1946; member of the Commission of World Finance, Louisiana Annual Conference from November, 1940, to June, 1948, and he has been an accredited recreational leader since 1942. In June, 1948, he was elected secretary of the Commission of World Service and Finance of the Louisiana Annual Conference and still holds this office.

Reverend Bengtson is a member of Welsh Lodge No. 232, F. and A. M.; Welsh Chapter No. 50, R. A. M.; Welsh Commandery No. 10, Knights Templar, and Rebecca No. 2 Chapter, O. E. S., Welsh, La. He is scoutmaster of troop 53, Winnsboro, and in December, 1949, was presented with the Veteran's Scout award for 20 years service.

Oldest Worker In Twin Cities Now Retiring

'Uncle' Ben Allen Has Been Employed 65 Years At Union Oil Mill

Sixty-five years of continuous service to one established firm in the Twin Cities, a record for continuous employment hereabouts, came to a close yesterday when "Uncle" Ben Allen, 94-year-old employe of the Union Oil Mill, Inc., in West Monroe, retired from his job of porter and general handy man. In the years that he has been employed by this mill, he has become known to almost every woman and child in the Twin Cities, and his genial personality and devotion to his friends of both races have made him beloved by a wide circle.

"I's allus stuck to my white friends and they'se allus stuck to me," he declared Saturday in the office of the mill company as he took leave as an employe, but not until he had promised to loaf around there a little while each day. His employers say they would be lost without seeing "Uncle Ben" in the course of a day, and he also would not feel right if he couldn't see "Marse" A. B. Colmer and "Marse" C. W. Wallace often.

The history of "Uncle" Ben Allen is of interest. He was born in Alabama of a slave family in 1856 and he has memory as a child of the marching of soldiers througn that state.

In his teens he was herded with other young able-bodied Negroes in a box car and brought over the old V. S. and P. to Richland parish to work in cotton fields.

The old V. S. and P. line ended in Monroe. Later in or about 1885, the line was extended and "Uncle" Ben said he worked on the right of way for the extended line, which extended through Cottonport (West Monroe) on to Ruston.

West Monroe was simply a cotton field and the site of the present Union Oil mill was devoted to an extensive field of cotton. About 65 years ago, the first small building of the present Union Oil mill was built and "Uncle" Ben was employed at that time and ever since he has found work there although it has undergone many changes of ownership and management.

"Uncle" Ben has survived three wives and has been father of six children, seven grandchildren, five great grandchildren and three great great grandchildren.

Although his education was very limited, "Uncle" Ben valued education highly and saw that his children had better educational opportunities than he himself had possessed. With commendable pride he tells that his daughter, Gertrude Ammon, served for years as supervisor of Negro schools in Ouachita parish. She was a woman who possessed excellent education and was highly regarded. Her death was greatly regretted for she was respected by both races in this parish. At this time, a granddaughter of "Uncle" Ben, Leslie May Allen, has the position of supervisor of colored schools of the parish, the post that Gertrude Ammon held. One of the colored schools of Ouachita parish is named the B. J. Allen school.

When the present management took over at the Union Oil Mill, h aded by the president, C. W. Wallace, the incoming chief executive humorously "fired" Ben for a day and re-hired him the next day. "I don't want anyone to be connected with this business longer than myself," he declared jestingly. And so it went that way. "Uncle" Ben returned the following day to his job.

A pension will be provided for him, and a daughter keeps house for him in a little place he owns not far distant from the mill.

He says he just can't keep away from the mill for it has been a part of his life through the years, and no one there wants to miss his company, either.

"I owe my long life to trust in God and living honest and upright and minding my own business," he says. And his employes assert that there is no more honest man than "Uncle" Ben, who has proved his worth to the company every day he has worked there.

TALLULAH

Mrs. E. Otis Edgerton was the honoree at a lovely surprise birthday party given by her sister, Mrs. Burt Culpepper and niece, Mrs. John Day at the Edgerton home. Many beautiful flower arrangements, gifts of Dr. Edgerton decorated the reception rooms and a handsomely embossed birthday cake, surrounded with pink carnations each tied with different colored ribbons formed the centerpiece of large round mahogany table. As the guests sang, "Happy Birthday" Mrs. Edgerton was invited to cut the cake and each guest was invited to take a carnation as a souvenir. Mrs. A. L. CHILD-STUDY COURSE GIVEN

Eighty Parish Teachers Work With Expert From University Of Maryland

Eighty teachers of Ouachita parish, who are members of organized Child-Study Groups, had the privilege on two days recently of working with Miss Julia Weber, consultant from the Child Development Institute of the University of Maryland.

Miss Weber was a consultant at the 1949 Tech Workshop and was well known to many Ouachita teachers, who value and appreciate her ability.

During the two days the study groups worked together in groups of about twenty teachers each in order to work more intensely on a few specific and important problems. In her discussion Miss Weber emphasized the fact that a knowledge of the scientific principles underlying developmental tasks at each maturity level is now being considered necessary if real needs of all children are met; and that human behavior to be understood must be seen in the light of compelling needs during infancy, early childhood, late childhood, early adolescence and late adolence.

The schools participating in Ouachita's program are: Crosley, Lenwil, Mitchell, Ransom, Claiborne, Drew, A. L. Smith and Logtown. There are twelve groups with the following leaders: Mrs. Cook, Miss Fannie Oxford, Miss Gertrude Gregory, Mrs. Theresa Lomax, Mr. J. W. Rutledge, Mrs. Elnora McClendon, Mrs. Alton Burkett, Miss Marguerite Norris, Mr. O. K. Bailey, Miss Marie Filhiol, Mrs. U. N. Bradford, Mrs. W. D. Clark, and Mrs. Lee Buatt.

Mrs. Chrissie H. Williams is the co-ordinator of the program and Supt. Mack Avants enthusiastically endorses the project as being a long-range program designed to improve teaching, learning situations, and work toward greater personal inner satisfaction for all.

California Farm Workers No Longer Are Migratory

Most Of Them In That State Work On During Certain Seasons

By Bill Becker

BAKERSFIELD, Calif., March 25. —(AP)—"Migratory workers" is now a misnomer if you're referring to the average California farm laborer. Better call him "seasonal."

The plain facts seem to be:

Most farm workers have been in the state's central (San Joaquin) Valley for three years, and many for seven or more; the influx is no longer great.

Only about one worker in every three or four follows the harvests up and down the state; the others stay put and work the crops in their immediate vicinity, or in the same county. (Vicinity and county have different meanings here. Kern county alone has 8,000 square miles.)

But they all work in season.

Until mid-April, however, when the potato crop starts to come in, there is no "season" for the farm worker. With the cotton harvest over early this year, it has been the longest—and toughest—off season for crop-pickers in years.

A survey through five counties —Kern, Tulare, Fresno, Kings and Madera—shows at least 30,000 farm unemployed, with relief rolls of all counties doubled and tripled over last year.

The $9 or $12 a day which most has, in most cases, long since disappeared. Hundreds of families—no one knows the exact number—are existing on a diet of federal surplus commodities—potatoes, apples, honey, powdered eggs and powdered milk.

The thin faces and bloated abdomens of many of the children attest that this is far from an adequate diet. Some 20 infant deaths have been attributed to malnutrition recently.

"Conditions in this valley are worse right now than any I've seen in the South," says sociologist Henry Richardson after several weeks' investigation.

But the welfare departments of all counties report they are out of funds and all but the surplus food relief is about to end. County supervisors are disinclined to vote emergency aid, and are asking state or federal help. The state is investigating.

In a recent survey of some 166 farm labor camps, the state division of housing classified only 17 as good. More than 50 were definitely classed as bad, some were condemned and operators hauled into court. The rest fall into that broad category—"adequate."

But probably less than a third of the vast labor force live in large labor camps, put up by farmers' associations or labor contractors. The vast majority live in shanty towns or tent cities sponsored by individual farmers or put up by the workers themselves.

The crux of the problem is that agricultural workers are not covered by state unemployment insurance. Thus far there has not been much of a move to include them in the benefits because, at best, they're out of work at least four months every year.

Better and cleaner housing and some change in the unemployment insurance program may be the ways to avert further "Grapes of Wrath."

POPULARITY OF PIANO GROWING

American People Are More Aware Of Importance Of 'Music In Home'

The piano is becoming more and more each year a part of the American home. Thomas E. Wyatt manager of the Philip Werlein store, says he believes it is due to the fact the American people are aware today more than ever how important music in the home really is, particularly with the piano.

The piano has at all times been an instrument that stood alone in the family of instruments. There are several reasons why this is true. Wyatt says that it is definitely the basic music instrument of today.

This, he credits to the fact that the piano is the most practical instrument of the few that have all three of the basic elements of music. These three elements are melody, harmony, and rythm. Another reason is that the piano, because of its furniture appeal as well as its musical appeal, is not only the most conspicuous, but the most attractive musical instrument in the home. It is an instrument that is the center of home social activities.

"Our schools of today are adopting the piano at a rapid pace as a part of the nation's great plan of education. Approximately seventy-five per cent of the unit sales is for the beginners and use in schools. Some of the schools throughout the nation have employed music teachers for the piano thereby offering both private and class piano instructions to the pupils at no extra cost, he said.

One of the leading American piano manufactors shipped over three thousand pianos in one month of 1949. This according to shipping records, was an all time high for any factory in one given month.

Wyatt said that even though the piano is on a steady increase in popularity the electronic organ cannot be overlooked, as it is rapidly gaining public recognition.

The organ at present is not accepted as well as the piano for educational purposes. The majority of these instruments are purchased for the more advanced musicians and churches. The increase in organs based on dollar volume sales for the nation, according to the latest census of organ manufacturers, is 6,700,000 in 1947 against 2,100,000 in 1939. Today the output is well above that. The electric organ got its start in 1934. In that year the Hammond Instrument Company, a maker of electric clocks, produced the first electronic organ. In 1936 the retail sale of the Hammond organ were about two and a half million dollars.

The reason for this is mainly price. A pipe organ would cost from about six thousand to two hundred thousand or more. Today the electronic organ which will give practically all the effects of a monstrous pipe organ can be purchased for a little over a thousand dollars.

People today are more than ever musically minded. And according to the most reliable information at hand, the state of Louisiana is second to none.

AGED BELT STILL GOOD

ARON, O., — (AP) — After transporting more than 14,000,000 tons of coal during the past 14 years, the world's oldest cord-type conveyor belt still is in operation averaging 1,000,000 tons a year. B.F. Goodrich engineers developed the belt to move coal from hopper cars to Ohio river barges.

Brownie Troop Notes Birthday

WINNSBORO, La., March 25.—(Special)—The Brownie troop of the Girl Scouts of Winnsboro celebrated their first birthday Friday afternoon. The troop was organized one year ago with sixteen girls being registered at that time.

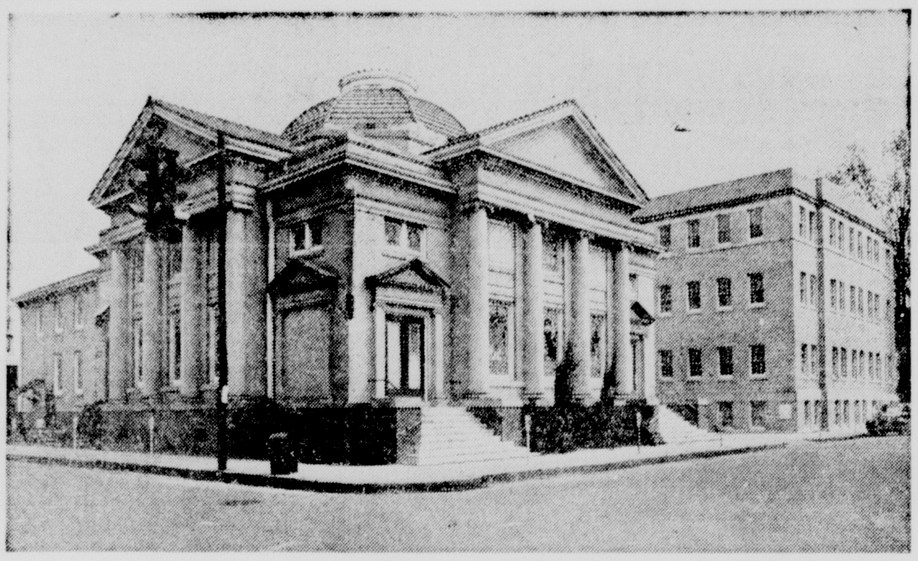

In celebration of their birthday, the troop enjoyed a hike out to the home of the assistant leader, Mrs. Wm. A. Butler. Refreshments of birthday cake decorated with "Happy Birthday Brownies", and the one candle, soft drinks and sandwiches were enjoyed by the 26 Brownies present. Each Brownie brought a present of fruit, which was later delivered to an "Old Folks Home" near Winnsboro.

The leader of the Brownie troop is Mrs. Otis B. Hassell, and the assistant leader is Mrs. Wm. A. Butler. The four committee mothers who assist with the troop are: Mrs. Carey Kincaid, Mrs. Frank Sims, Mrs. Wm. Stitt and Mrs. Robert F. Mulhearn.

If we wish to do those things that do not 'group' in the realm of worship, we can justify ourselves in that. How will all this pan out in the general reckoning?

William E. Gilroy, D. D.:

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Almost on the verge of His death, when the cross was looming darkly over Him, Jesus had said to His deciples, "Be of good cheer; I have overcome the world" (John 16:33).

But even as He assured them of that victory, He told them that "in the world ye shall have tribulation," and much of that 16th chapter of St. John's Gospel predicts in detail the persecutions that would befall them. They would be put out of synagogues, they would be scattered, the time would come when anyone who killed them would think that he did God service.

But in spite of these things Jesus peace, and the strengthening conviction of God's love, and that He himself was the divine messenger come from God.

It is necessary to know these things, and to feel their full reality, if one would understand the seeming miracle of the growth of the early church, and the faith that sustained the diciples in the face of the immensity of the world's evil, the hostility of the religious who thought they were doing God service in opposing them, and the violence of the persecution that was soon to burst upon them.

Jesus had said, "My kingdom is not of this world." Only the vision of that kingdom, so different in its deep essentials from the kingdoms of the world, and a profound faith in its overcoming, could have inspired the disciples. Only this could have held them firm and unwavering in their mission of making the Gospel known to the ends of the earth.

That mission for the time being became largely a matter of the maintenance of faith and fellowship, as the Christian communities took root in the larger pagan communities. "See how these Christians love one another." became a byword descriptive of that fellowship of believers.

But as the church grew and expanded, so persecution increased. The course of Paul and other missionaries was shaped by the violence of the persecutions that drove them from place to place. They fulfilled with exactness the admonition that Jesus had given earlier to those whom He had sent forth two by two, "When they persecute you in this city, flee ye into another" (Matthew 10:3).

The persistent and enduring faith of these early Christians has been manifested, or recovered, by Christians in our own time, who have had to face sufferings and persecutions, even unto death, such as one would never have believed possible in this twentieth century —persecutions that have been inflicted alike upon Jews and Christions, the common inheritors of the faith and religion of the Bible.

The need of the world is that Christians everywhere might attain that faith in Christ and His conquering power, that they be not overwhelmed by seeming defeat.

The world situation today is not unlike that that confronted those early Christians. We are faced not only with great evil, with ignorance, and apathy, and darkness, but with immense forces of materialis mand materialistic power. These are reinforced in governments, in armies, in science and technology, concerned almost more with powers of destruction, than with life and human welfare, not to speak of spiritual salvation.

The war between Christ and anti-Christ is upon us as never before since the days of early Christianity. Can we attain the faith in Christ that assures our overcoming, even through tribulation?

When the Apostle Paul made his great declaration in Romans 1:14-16, 'I am ready to preach the gospel to you that are at Rome also. For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek," he was speaking as a Roman citizen, as well as a Christian Apostle.

Paul was a free-born citizen of Rome in a Roman world in which the mass of men were slaves. Many born in slavery had purchased their liberty with a great price, like the chief captain in Acts 22:28. Paul, of course, had not seen Rome, though he was to go there as a prisoner, late in his missionary career. Rome was not just a city, but a world power, that had brought all of that world beneath its rule. To be a Roman citizen anywhere was to possess rights and privileges unavailable to others.

When Paul was arrested, through the false charges and investigations of his persecutors in Palestine, and could not get justice there, he did what citizens in modern democracies have often done when they have regarded themselves as denied justice in a lower court; they have appealed to a higher court. American citizens have taken their issue right up to the Supreme Court; citizens of the British Empire have had recourse to the house of lords. Paul exercised his rights to appeal to Rome, and Festus, the Roman governor said, "Has thou appealed unto Caesar? Unto Caesar shalt thou go."

Thereupon followed interesting and great events, the dire peril of the voyage and shipwreck described so vividly in Acts 27, the eventual arrival in Rome, the comparative freedom of his life as a prisoner there (Acts 28:16, 30-31), his writing of the great Epistles of the imprisonment, such as Galatians, Ephesians, Philippians, and Colossians the long awaiting for the justice he hoped for but never received, and the disillusionment that led him to write so differently about earthly powers, in Ephesians 6:12, from what he had written, earlier and before that disillusionment, in Romans 13:1-3.

I think that Paul was disillusioned, but his disillusionment only brought out the more strongly his Christian imperialism. He was essentially an imperialist, with a world view, and a great sense of power. He admired the power of Rome, as power, but as he surveyed its might he saw also the unsoundness of that power, and of power built upon force, and exercised in unrighteousness.

Over against that imperialism he set the imperialism of a world built upon love, and God's redeeming power in the gospel of Jesus Christ.

As I stood in Rome, years ago, beside the great ruins of the colosseum, and observed in its walls the tablet to the Christian martyrs who had been thrown to the lions in its arena, I realized the triumph of Paul and the vindication of his faith. He brought to Rome a power mightier than its own.

CHANGE MINDS ON TRUMANITES

States Righters Decide Not To Bar Truman's Voters From Primary

JACKSON, Miss., March 25—(AP)—The Mississippi house loaded with states rights Democrats changed its mind today about trying to bar President Truman's voters from August Democratic primaries.

The house flung a challenge to Mississippi Trumanites for a new battle of the ballot box, and voted to let them in the August primaries as candidates and voters.

Representatives amended a previously passed bill that sought to raise a roadblock against pro-Truman supporters in this state. The change was made, according to the bill, "so that the voters may again express themselves on the issues involved."

State, county and city employes will be covered by Workmen's Compensation Laws, under terms of a house-passed bill adopted 19 to 11 in the senate.

But the senate, which held the bill on a motion to reconsider, changed the house proposals to make public workers pay 25 per cent of the protection.

Senators beat off efforts to raise the maximum payment for disability or death from $8,600 to $12,000, and refused to exempt employers hiring less than 10 persons. Present law exempts firms with less than eight workers.

The house political party bill, meanwhile, authored by Rep. Jim Blount and House Speaker Walter Sillers, still put in clear terms the house's intention to crack down with a legislative bill on anyone claiming to represent a political party in this state, without having been elected as required by law. Persons holding party office in this state must be elected through a convention of precinct, county and district delegates.

Even that provision, however, was watered down. The original bill provided for misdemeanor penalties in violations. As it stands now, circuit court injunction proceedings would be authorized against anyone making such claims without an election to back them up.

Blount said at the time the original bill psased it was not meant to bar Trumanites from organizing or running. Two states rights Democratic members of the house had protested some of the provisions were "unfair."

The lawmaker said the house adopted an amendment that stipulated loyalty to the national Democratic party would not bar participation in primaries. The amendment said:

"It is not the intention of this act to bar or prevent any person from . . . participating in the Democratic primaries in 1950 and 1951 solely because of declared allegiance to the so-colled national Democratic party, rather than the regular and lawful Democratic party of Mississippi."

There was no house opposition to the change. The bill still requires senate action.

States Rights Democrats insist they are the legal Democratic party in Mississippi, while Trumanites also hold tight to the party label.

Clarence E. Hood of Meridian, pro-Truman national committeeman for Mississippi, named at a Jackson Hotel meeting in 1948, challenged Gov. Fielding Wright to enforce the proposed act affectint political party office holders, as originally adopted in the house.

Hood and Mrs. John Clark of Deklab are recognized by the national Democratic party as committee members.

Wright, who was States' Rights vice-presidential candidate in 1948, supports as national committee members J. B. Snider and Mrs. Hermes Gautier.

The senate wrangled all morning over the Workman's Compensation bill. Mississippi's legislature installed the first law two years ago.

A senate amendment to the house version would save state taxpayers $100,000 a year, said Chairman Nate S. Williamson of the senate labor committee. He quarterbacked the senate action.

Williamson said the senate amendment struck out a clause in the present act that allows insurance companies, which pay administrative expenses of the state Workmen's Compensation commission, to regain the money through tax deductions.

House agreement will be required on several senate amendments to the bill.

Sen. Earl Evans, Jr., protested it was not fair for the state to say in its laws private employers must foot expenses for Workmen's Compensation, but require public workers to pay 25 per cent of the cost.

He insisted Workmen's Compensation was an obligation of any employer, public or private, to pay workers injured on duty.

But Sen. Oscar Wolfe, Jr., asked: "Why shouldn't a man with his salary paid by the taxpayers be required to contribute? I think public workers would be delighted to do so, to gain this protection."

Another senate amendment raised from $7 to $10 the minimum amount paid weekly to a disabled worker. The maximum is $25.

Also, a new provision was thrust in that makes the insurer of an employer, who contests a workman's claim in court and loses, liable for attorney's fees of the employe.

Glorify your church services with this magnificent organ music!

Now—thanks to the new Hammond Organ—your church can have glorious organ music that is second to none!

Here is a range of tone and wealth of color that cannot be equaled by any comparable instrument—a quality of music that will be an inspiration to all in your church.

Here, too, is music of cathedral quality for your church, regardless of its size. For the Hammond Organ creates — within itself — the majestic reverberating quality produced by towering walls and vaulted ceilings. No other organ has this exclusive Reverberation Control.

The Hammond Organ, too, is the only organ which cannot get out of tune in any kind of weather. It is installed without requiring any structural changes in your church—and upkeep is negligible.

But you must see and hear this wonderful instrument to fully appreciate all that it can mean to your church. Then you will know why 15,000 churches, large and small, already own the Hammond Organ.

You will understand why, since its introduction, more churches have bought the Hammond Organ than all other comparable instruments combined.

To hear, see, and play the new Hammond Organ, you are invited to stop in soon. There is no obligation

DALE FLEMING IS ESSAY WINNER

Contest 'Why I Love America' Held In Lida Benton School

An essay contest, Why I Love America, sponsored by the L. B. Faulk Unit of the American Legion Auxiliary was successfully concluded at Lida Benton school Thursday afternoon.

Students in the fifth and sixth grades completed in the essay. Gold and silver Americanism medals showing the raised torch of freedom lamp suspended from a red, white and blue ribbon were awarded the winners. First prize was given to Dale Fleming with Sandra Tooke winning the second award.

The contest was held as an effort to instill in the hearts of our young people that the security of America lies in their faith and loyalty to the ideals layed down by the founders of this great nation.

The winning essay was as follows:

"Many people have written and delivered speeches on freedom in America. I would like to add my views, why I love America based on the song "America, the Beautiful".

"O, beautiful for spacious skies" —beautiful skies stretched across the nation, meaning good will and brotherly love to everyone.

"For amber waves of grain" —grain will grow, crops will be harvested and food for the nation.

"For purple mountains majesties"—to enjoy the beautiful scenes of America and the freedom of travel.

"Above the fruited plain"—a land of plenty, plain to roam, space for homes, industries and equal chance for all.

"America, America, God shed his grace on thee"—God blessed America by making it a fruitful and rising nation. We must ever remember His blessings and use them in the right direction.

"And crown thy good with brotherhood, from sea to shining sea" —God is merciful with us for our attitude to people and things. Why do I love America? This nation is truly America the Beautiful."

STAMPS QUARTET PLANS CONCERT

Will Be Presented At Missouri Pacific Booster Hall April 1

The Allen Brothers Stamps Quartet sent a concert of gospel music at 8 p.m. April 1 in the Missouri Pacific Booster Hall, Ouachita Avenue, sponsored by the Booster Singing Club.

There will be comedy and fun for all. Come and enjoy it. The quartet has been singing about six years. Benie Hickman was a member of the police quartet for a good while. This quartet will be present for the convention on April 2.

Admission will be announced later. This quartet was presented in concert in Corsley auditorium last month, and everybody immensely enjoyed it. Anyone desiring information call 6595-J.

There will be local amateurs performing, among which will be the Youth Quartet, Harris Sisters' Trio, Police Quartet, and many other performers. Benie Hickman is president of the singing convention in Alexandria. These boys have devoted their lives to gospel singing.

Tell your friends about this concert! Bring some one! But be sure and come yourself. Cooperation makes the whole, you know, so let's all work together for this concert, and the whole will be rewarded by excellent entertainment.

Travis Bottoms accompanies the group. Travis Bottoms is a very accomplished pianist. He has studied for years.

We are looking forward to your presence at the concert. Remember the Louisiana state singing convention to be held in Northeast Junior College in Monroe, on June 3 and 4.

Freezer Plant To Be Considered

FERRIDAY, La., March 25. —(Special) —Scheduled to be a source of some discussion at the next meeting of the Concordia parish school board April 14 are the new plans for the $36,900 food preservation plant to be established at Monterey.

Bids on earlier plans submitted by Goodman and Miller, Baton Rouge, La., architects, were rejected because the price of all bids exceeded the amount of money available.

The new plans just received at the office of J. S. Burris, parish superintendent show that the floor level has been cut from four feet from the ground to two feet. This would throw the plant at the mercy of floodwaters in the Monterey area.

Bids on the revised plans were scheduled to be received on April 14.

GEN. EISENHOWER LIKES JAMBOREE

Believes It Will Be Of Publicizing American Democracy

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, in a message to the Boy Scouts of America, said that he feels their second National Jamboree of 40,000 Scouts at Valley Forge, Pa., June 30 to July 6 "will result in greater understanding, appreciation and reverence of the precious gifts America bestows on all of us."

Gen. Eisenhower is a member of the National Executive Board of the Boy Scouts of America. His message follows:

"You camp on sacred ground when you hold your National Jamboree at Valley Forge Park — and your lives will be enriched by the experience.

"It was at Valley Forge in the winter of 1777-1778 that General George Washington, Father of our Country, was put to the ultimate test in holding his ragged, sick and hungry forces. His success in the darkest hour of the American Revolution was the inspiration for the later victories that established the Thirteen Colonies as a new nation dedicated to the principle of "Liberty and Justice for all." Valley Forge will forever symbolize Washington's spiritual strength and his moral force, his self-reliance and his leadership of men.

"You are a great brotherhood dedicated by your Scout Oath and Law to strengthening liberty. I am convinced that the Jamboree will result in greater understanding, appreciation and reverence of the precious gifts America bestows on all of us.

"I salute you who may be counted on to add much to our country's greatness when you assume the role of leaders. Valley Forge will help prepare you for that exalted task."

42 Fires Occur During February

The Louisiana Forestry Commission reports that during the month of February, 42 fires were fought by fire fighting crews in Jackson, Lincoln, Morehouse, Ouachita, and Union parishes. These fires burned a total of 579 acres. District Forester M. R. Smith of West Monroe stated that during this time of year fire occurrance is extremely high due to the large amount of dead vegetation on the ground, together with high March winds. All citizens are especially urged to be extremely careful with fire during this hazardous period of the year.

The Forester pointed out that during this present fire season very few fires have gotten very large due to the cooperation of the public, favorable weather conditions and improved fire fighting equipment and technique.

Smith stated that under normal weather conditions the worst part of the fire fighting season is over around the 15th of April or as soon as all vegetation is green.

The luncheon table was overlaid with a Maderia linen cut work cloth with crystal decor in oblong shape filled with orange blossoms, pink camellias and lavender vincus in reflection from tall green lighted tapers.

Guests invited from Tallulah to enjoy this prenuptial courtesy with Miss Lee were Mrs. William Z. Adams, Mrs. Mark H. Brown, Jr., Mrs. Jim Folk, Mrs. Hugh Montgomery, Mrs. William Sevier, Jr., Mrs. Horace Lee, Mrs. William Roundtree, Mrs. Thelma Gilbert, Mrs. Warren Sevier, Mrs. Andrew Sevier, Jr., Mrs. Edward Buckner, Mrs. Trent Palmer, Mrs. W. H. Pierson, Mrs. Albert Sevier, Mrs. Leo Shields, with Mrs. Mark H. Brown, Sr., and Mrs. W. F. Lensing of "Lewiston," Mrs. Andrew Servier and Mrs. W. D. Brown of "Gossyppia."

Awards in the games went to Mrs. W. Z. Adams for high score, Mrs. Buckner for second high and Mrs. Bell cut consolation.

The hostess presented the honoree with a silver cigarette box and brass card tray framed with her wedding invitation.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Graham and daughter Jackie spent the first of the week in Biloxi, Miss.

CHUM FUN'S TAKEN HIS FATHER TO OUR PLACE...DARNED IF I KNOW WHERE CHOPS IS.

WHILE, IN ANOTHER QUARTER OF THE CITY...

ALMS, NOBLE SAHIB, ALMS FOR THE LOVE OF ALLAH.

YOU KNOW, ON COOL MORNINGS IT'S NICE TO BE ABLE TO LET THE DOG OUT WITHOUT GOING DOWNSTAIRS. THEN BY THE TIME YOU'RE SHAVED AND BATHED AND GET DOWN TO BREAKFAST, THE DOG WILL BE READY TO COME IN.

YOU SEE, YOU SET THE CLOCK FOR THE TIME YOU WANT TO GET UP.

GOSH, A CLOCK-RADIO!

THEN, WHEN THE ALARM GOES OFF, THE RADIO STARTS. AT THE SAME TIME CURRENT IS TURNED ON IN THIS EXTENSION CORD PLUG IN THE BACK.

AH, THERE, ALVIN! MIND SKIPPING TO THE CORNER FOR SOME CIGARS?

DON'T YOU KNOW I'VE GOT A SPRAINED ANKLE, UNCLE AMOS?

T. M. REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

POOH-POOH! DID I EVER TELL YOU HOW I CARRIED THE MESSAGE TO CHIEF RAINBOW NOSE OF THE COMANCHES?

NO, I GUESS NOT!

I WAS AN INDIAN SCOUT ALLIED WITH THE BLACK-FEET WHEN CHIEF BASS-DRUM-HEAD SENT ME WITH A VITAL MESSAGE TO THE COMANCHES -- THE FIRST 50 MILES I RAN=

ONE PLACE ALONG THE 650-MILE ROUTE I HAD TO DIG A TUNNEL WITH MY HANDS UNDER A HOSTILE INDIAN CAMP=

MY BACK WAS FULL OF ARROWS FROM ENEMY TRIBES, ONE ARM WAS BROKEN, YET I HAD TO SWING FROM TREE TO TREE IN A FOREST FULL OF JAGUARS!

I HAD TO CRAWL THE LAST 18 MILES, HORRIBLY LACERATED AND EMACIATED, BUT A HOOPLE NEVER FAILED TO CARRY ON=

NOW, ALVIN, DO YOU THINK YOU CAN LIMP TO THE CORNER WITH YOUR TRIVIAL ANKLE SPRAIN?

SURE, UNCLE AMOS -- BUT WHAT PUZZLES ME IS --

AFTER ALL THE HARDSHIPS YOU STOOD, WHY CAN'T YOU GO WITHOUT THOSE CHEESY CIGARS FOR ONE DAY?

FLASH GORDON

by MAC RABOY and DON MOORE ®

DALE WATCHES HELPLESSLY AS THE SEA-DRAGON CLOSES IN ON FLASH AND RUBIA. JON'S GUARDS CAN'T USE THEIR RIFLES FOR FEAR OF HITTING THE STRUGGLING SWIMMERS.

FLASH WAITS DESPERATELY UNTIL THE DRAGON REARS DIRECTLY ABOVE THEM. AND THEN HIS RAY-GUN ROARS. THE SHATTERED MONSTER FALLS BACK INTO THE SEA.

PRINCE JON SITS IN JUDGMENT ON THE TYRANT QUEEN: "YOU KILLED MY FATHER AND ENSLAVED TROPIX. BUT NO MORE BLOODSHED. YOU ARE BANISHED TO THE PRISON MOON OF EXILA!"

"SO LONG--SEE YOU SOON!" JON CALLS. DALE MURMURS: "HE'S A FINE CHAP. BUT IT'S GOOD TO BE ALONE AND NEVER SEE THAT HORRID RUBIA AGAIN...I THINK YOU LIKED HER."

Copr. 1950, King Features Syndicate, Inc., World rights reserved.

IN FLASH'S PALACE, A SPACE-PILOT REPORTS: "SIR! I LANDED RUBIA ON EXILA. BUT I THINK SOMETHING'S WRONG ON THAT MOON. THEY EVEN PERMIT KANG'S BROTHER ZIN TO HAVE THE RUN OF THE AIRPORT."

DALE POUTS: "DREAMING OF THAT RUBIA?" FLASH SHRUGS. "DON'T BE SO SUSPICIOUS, DEAR. I'M WORRIED. THAT WHOLE CLAN IS DEADLY. FIRST MING, THEN KANG, NOW ZIN..."
